Senate 'Tap' Quiz Tripped Shimon, Says Pearson

Officer's Testimony On Phone Jobs In Three Hotels Called Conflicting

By Drew Pearson

The secret Senate testimony of Washington's wire-tapping cop, Lieut. Joseph Shimon, has now been obtained by this writer and shows "Handsome Joe" crossed himself up badly on one important fact.

With his lawyer whispering at his side, Shimon was a cool customer during most of the grilling given him in closed door sessions by Senator Pepper of Florida, chairman of the subcommittee investigating wire tapping.

But he had a hard time explaining away one tell-tale fact—namely, that he tapped the telephone wires of Attorney Hugh Fulton in the Occidental Hotel before he tapped the wires of Howard Hughes and his attorneys in the Carlton and the Mayflower. This was a month or so before he allegedly began shadowing Senator Brewster's shadow.

The alibi of both Shimon and Senator Brewster, who paid him expense money, is that Shimon was wire tapping only to watch Abner "Chick" Lappin, supposed to be shadowing Brewster.

Time Element Involved

However, if Shimon first tapped Hugh Fulton's phone when Fulton was scheduled to be Hughes' attorney, and then moved to the Mayflower and the Carlton when Hughes failed to retain Fulton as his attorney, the alibi may be pretty well punctured.

The Senators did some bird-dogging on this at Shimon's closed-door grilling, with the result that the lieutenant trotted out a new alibi. At the police inquiry into Shimon's wire tapping one year ago, he was asked: "Did you ever do a wire-tap job at the Occidental Hotel?"

"Yes," Shimon confessed. "It was all in the same investigation or a part of the same investigation that took me to the Mayflower and Carlton Hotels."

Yet when grilled by the Senators one year later, Shimon conveniently reversed himself. He claimed the Occidental Hotel wire-tap was done to catch a Cuban fugitive for Eddie Melchen, then chief detective in Miami.

Pressed by incredulous Senators for details, Shimon sadly reported: "Melchen, I believe, dropped dead last year."

Pressed For Details

This, of course, protects Shimon from having Melchen called as a corroborative witness. But the Senators were not satisfied. They pressed further as to why Shimon one year ago freely admitted that

Mike Quill Reveals O'Dwyer Won't Elude Him Long

Michael Quill, the CIO boss of New York subway workers, often kicked up labor headaches for retiring Mayor William O'Dwyer.

Last night, a radio interviewer asked him:

"Mr. Quill, there's a story going around that Mayor Bill O'Dwyer of New York took that job as Ambassador to Mexico just to get away from you. How about that?"

Replied Quill:

"We get along very well. I don't think there's anything to it. But I'm glad he's going to Mexico because I intend to go down and organize the streetcar drivers."

Temporary Home Found for 4 Of Evicted Alexandria Family

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

A little bit of yesterday's sunshine fell on the house-hungry family of Wilfred A. Corbin but things are still far from bright.

Mrs. Lena Corbin and her five-day-old daughter, Anna Teresa, left Alexandria Hospital in the afternoon and then in the evening, reunited with her 17-months-old twins, George and Charles, she made a 117-mile trip to Charlottesville.

There the group will make a temporary home with her brother, James L. Wright, a carpenter, who offered them sanctuary "for as long as they need a roof over their heads."

Wright first learned of the Corbins' plight through reading a story in The Washington Post which told of their eviction from an Alexandria home because of rent delinquency.

The father and the other six children, however, will not be with them. Jimmy, 4, and Woodrow, 3, are at St. Ann's Home in Washington and Regina, 7, and Bernard, 9, are in a Fairfax County foster home. Hazel, 11, is staying with her uncle, Bernard Corbin, 618 Columbus st., Alexandria, and Helena, 6, with a cousin, Mrs. Lester Scott, who lives nearby. Corbin is remaining at his tap-room, Patrick and Oronoco sts., Alexandria.

Corbin is still seeking a home he can afford for the family. On August 14, the family was evicted because he got behind in his $135-a-month rent.

Patuxent Boy Dies Here of Polio Attack

Five-year-old David Lloyd Hughes, Patuxent, Md., died of polio Saturday at Childrens Hospital. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur David Hughes.

David Hughes

On Tuesday, they said, he complained of a headache. Wednesday, he complained of a stiffness in the back and neck and said he couldn't sit up. He was taken to the home of grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hughes, 5001 Westway dr., Chevy Chase, Md., and a physician was called. The boy then was sent to the hospital.

His temperature rose from 103 degrees Wednesday to 107 Saturday.

He was the fourth fatality from polio in Greater Washington this year.

Surviving also are a sister, Gail Marie, 2½, and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hampshire, 4107 Farragut st., Hyattsville. The child's father is a civilian mechanic at the Patuxent River Naval Base.

Funeral services will be held at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday at the Westway dr. address. Burial will be in Andrews Chapel Church Cemetery.

Lattimore Speech Canceled By Hotel After Guests Protest

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 27 (AP).—A scheduled speech by Owen Lattimore, principal target of Senator McCarthy's recent attack on the State Department, was cancelled today by the management of the fashionable Wentworth-by-the-Sea Hotel.

Lattimore had been invited to address the resort hotel's "Sunday Night Entertainment Session." His appearance was sponsored by William G. Wendell, Portsmouth resident, described as "an old friend of Lattimore's."

James B. Smith, owner of the hotel, said he called off Lattimore's appearance after a poll of guests showed a majority of those voting were opposed to his participation in the informal program.

The Far Eastern expert, charged by McCarthy with being the Soviet's "top spy" in this country, was cleared of all charges by a Senate investigating committee.

Lattimore later said, "I am fighting a fight to insure that men like myself can criticize, advise or inform people in the Government without being subservient to that service."

"Big government and its bureaucracies naturally develop men who answer only 'yes' to their superiors. They tell their superiors only what they think their superiors desire to know."

U.S. Presses For Decisions On Arms Aid

Policy Discord Noted on Methods Of Defending Europe

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Top Administration officials have been debating for the last several weeks a set of momentous steps to provide the military defense of Western Europe.

Three major questions are at issue:

1. The consolidation of European military establishments under a single commander, an American.
2. The commitment, or promise of future commitment, of more American troops in Europe.
3. Rearmament of Germany.

The urgent need for a decision on these questions has been underlined by the increasing awareness that the North Atlantic Organization, in existence more than a year, has few concrete accomplishments. It has been further pointed up and dramatically, by the European nations' plans, announced in the last three weeks, for an expanded European rearmament and defense program.

It is generally conceded, on both sides of the Atlantic, that those plans fall far short of what is needed to withstand, and probably even to deter, possible Russian aggression.

Moreover, they are thought to be far short of what the NATO nations could do without reversing their present upward trend of living standards.

Some appraisals suggest that the British plans, probably the boldest, are 25 percent below what they could be without causing a deterioration of civilian living conditions. A couple of other nations could double their programs, some analysts think.

This being the case, the question arises: What must be done to bring those defense programs up to an adequate level?

A growing group of presidential

Cairo, Aug. 27 (AP).—Aroused Ethiopian peasants have slain two wealthy district governors in a continuing bloody revolt against the taxes and rule of Emperor Haile Selassie, an inforced source said today.

Truckloads of government troops have been rushed to restless Gojjam Province, in Northern Ethiopia, to quell disturbances which flared first late in July, the informant said. "Pressure" censorship has kept the news bottled up in Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital, the informant added.

Gojjam has a population of over one million. It is the largest province in the kingdom and the richest. Until recent years it had its own ancient dynasty of kings.

Truman Puts Railroads Under Army

195 Major Lines, 106 Others Involved In Seizure Ordered To Avert Strike

By The Associated Press

The United States Army seized the Nation's major railroads at 5 p. m. yesterday for the fourth time since 1943 to avert a Nation-wide strike.

About 300,000 trainmen and conductors threatened to walk out today at 6 a. m. in a wage-hour dispute unless President Truman put the railroads under Government operation.

Although the strike date had been set for this morning, the unions called it off last Friday when President Truman announced the Government would take over the lines. The unions had already said they were willing to work for the Government.

Mr. Truman issued the order for Army control of 195 major lines and standby control of 106 others to be effective at the comparatively quiet hour on Sunday afternoon.

Paper Transaction

The seizure was largely a paper transaction. There were no troops boarding locomotives or manning control towers. The whole Government operation of the Nation's vast network of railroads required only about 50 uniformed officers.

Seven railroad presidents—six of them with prior experience and colonels' uniforms still in their possession—assumed responsibility for keeping the trains moving.

The seven chiefs in regional offices will report to Secretary of the Army Pace and his top deputies. Notices of Army control were posted at major railroad stations. Other officers were asked only to report two hours before the seizure went into effect.

The same men ran the same trains and took orders from the same people.

All that happened physically was that in a few railroad offices over the country a few uniformed men established themselves at desks.

Southern Case Typical

The case at the Southern Railway offices here was typical.

Ernest E. Norris, president of the line, officially took temporary leave of that title and went on active duty as a Reserve Army colonel in charge of the Southeastern region.

[Officers assisting Colonel Norris on the local regional staff are: Lieut. Col. Alton A. Hill, transportation Corps, assistant director; Lieut. Col. Jonathan T. Kaigler, Adjutant General Corps, executive officer; Lieut. Col. Reginald C. Miller, Judge Advocate Corps, legal adviser; and Maj. Leon H. Durst, public relations officer.—Editor's note.]

Six more railroad presidents in various parts of the country made corresponding shifts.

The operation, coming at a critical time when the Nation is swinging into a tremendous preparedness effort, will mean a few more reports and not much else.

Uninterrupted operation was pledged by both railroads and unions.

The Army took a neutral position in the dispute which led to the strike call. But it expressed hope for an early settlement so the railroads can be turned back to private management.

Boat Capsizes—Three Saved

District Man, Fairfax Friend Drown at Lake Jackson, Va.

Two young employes of the Fruit Growers Express in Alexandria drowned yesterday when their motorboat capsized 40 feet from shore in Lake Jackson.

The dead were James O'Keefe, 27, of Fairfax Station, Va., and Julian Garner, 27, of 1240 Holbrook ter. ne. Three others in the boating party survived.

O'Keefe was swallowed up immediately in the 20-foot depths. Garner, after thrashing about to within a few feet of the shore, went under as the hand of a rescuer grasped futilely for his sinking form.

The tragedy occurred near the spot where four fishermen died in the overturn of their boat about a month ago. Camp Tapawingo, an Alexandria Girl Scout camp, overlooks the scene from the shore and the town of Brentsville in Prince William County, Va., is a mile away.

Rescue squad men from Manassas and Penn Daw dragged O'Keefe's body from the water at 5:30 p. m., three hours after it disappeared. Garner's body was recovered at 6:50 p. m.

Of the survivors, Howard Wood of Manassas, Sammy O'Keefe, 35, brother of one of the victims, and Mike Rizzo who lives at the same address as Garner, only Wood knew how to swim and found his own way back to shore. Rizzo and O'Keefe clung to the overturned boat until help came.

Rizzo, who is Garner's nephew by marriage, works as a mechanic for the Knox Oldsmobile Co., 7 New York ave ne.

Wood said the five friends started the ride in a 14-foot motor-

MacArthur 'Directed' to Cancel Message to VFW on Formosa

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

Gen. Douglas MacArthur yesterday withdrew from public circulation a message on Formosa he had sent to the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Chicago.

His action presumably was taken at the direction of President Truman.

Support for this assumption came from wording of a cablegram MacArthur sent to Clyde A. Lewis, VFW national commander, asking that the message be withdrawn. The text of the cable, made public by VFW officials in Chicago, said:

"I regret to inform you that I have been directed to withdraw my message to the national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars."

The White House had no comment. There were indications, however, the Administration position would be made clear today.

In Tokyo, MacArthur answered "no comment" through an aide when asked for clarification of his cable. Military officials there had said any explanation would have to come from the General himself.

MacArthur's views on Formosa have differed sharply from those of the Administration. The general has expressed his opinions to top leaders who have visited him in Tokyo. Because of this, State Department officials apparently were not too surprised at this new development. Some long have expected there would have to be a showdown with him on Formosa.

The MacArthur-VFW incident was the second time in two days the Truman Administration had cracked down on a high official over a foreign-policy issue.

MacArthur's statement had been distributed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars office at Chicago Friday and thereupon received general circulation among newspapers and radio stations for eventual publication today.

Among interested officials in Washington and particularly at the State Department it became known by Saturday afternoon that the United Nations commander in the Far East had issued a statement on Formosa which was regarded by the State Department

4 GIs Swim River, Set Rafts Ablaze

With the Second Division on the Naktong Front (Monday) Aug. 28 (U.P.).—Four daring infantrymen, armed only with gasoline and matches, swam the Naktong River with Communist bullets spattering the water about them during daylight Sunday and set fire to 16 enemy rafts.

The exploit began when Lieut. Clifford A. Philipsen, Portland, Oreg., "got tired of hearing about rafts" the Reds were massing on the west bank apparently in preparation for sending troops across at night. Philipsen asked for volunteers to "go over and burn them out."

At noon, Philipsen and three volunteers met on the river bank. Behind them were two tanks and artillery to give them cover.

Sergt. Billy Ramsford, Long Beach, Calif., led the team through mines concealed along the beach and the men stripped. Then they plunged into the muddy water, pushing two half-filled cans of gasoline before them.

They reached the rafts, sprinkled them with gasoline and set them afire as the Reds continued shooting. Then they began the swim back, with bullets cutting the water around them.

They hit the east bank and ran for cover. Pfc. Dean Brown, Bell Gardens, Calif., tripped over an American mine, but it did not go off.

Pvt. Virgil Mutean, Canton, Ohio, a mail orderly who volunteered, said after the venture, "I think I'll go back to delivering mail."

U. S. Casualty List Of 929 Is Largest Of Korean War

The Defense Department yesterday raised the toll of American casualties by 929 in releasing the longest casualty list since the outbreak of the Korean war.

The seventy-seventh casualty list identified 106 as killed in action and 16 wounded or injured fatally. It reported 407 wounded, 365 missing in action and 35 injured.

A Defense Department spokesman emphasized that the high number of casualties in the list did not mean an increase in the casualty rate among American forces. He attributed it to an administrative backlog resulting from rechecking and notifying next of kin.

240 Tons of Bombs

U. S. Fliers Blast Steel Plant, Rake 10-Mile Enemy Convoy

Tokyo, Aug. 27 (U.P.).—B-29 Superfortresses slapped 240 tons of bombs on a large North Korean iron and steel factory today, and fighter planes in the south ripped to pieces a 10-mile column of enemy reinforcement vehicles.

In one of the biggest aerial days of the war, planes of every type—American and Australian Air Force, United States Navy and Marine—hit targets from the enemy capital of Pyongyang to the south coast.

In what Gen. Douglas MacArthur called "a major strike against a single strategic industrial target," the Superforts dropped their bombs on the Japan Iron Co. plant at Kyomipo, 19 miles south of Pyongyang.

The planes bombed their targets visually and by radar and reported excellent results.

"The huge steel plant supplies the majority of iron and steel to the North Korean forces," MacArthur said.

Aerial scouts saw a huge enemy convoy moving eastward on the Uiryong-Haman-Masan highway. Within half an hour every available plane in the southern area was attacking along a 10-mile stretch.

The planes reported knocking out four tanks, 15 artillery pieces, 29 vehicles and nine ammunition dumps. Navy planes destroyed three more tanks and 30 other vehicles.

China Reds Accuse U. S. Of Air Attack

Korean Border Cities Reported Bombed; Americans Deny Acts

London (Monday) Aug. 28 (U.P.).—Communist China charged today that American Superfortresses and fighters aided by British planes bombed and strafed three Chinese cities on the Manchurian side of the Yalu River boundary with Korea, "killing and wounding" a number of persons.

The charge was contained in an official diplomatic protest to United States Secretary of State Dean Acheson from Chinese Communist Premier and Foreign Minister Chou En-Lai.

The protest identified the three bombed cities as Linkiang, Chi (Tsian) and Talitzu, all on the north bank of the Yalu across the river from North Korea.

The United States charged recently that the Chinese Communists had massed two armies of 200,000 men in this area of the frontier. Linkiang and Chi are important junction points on rail lines leading from Russia through Manchuria to North Korea.

(In Tokyo, a spokesman for the United States Far East Air Force said American planes "positively have not" bombed anything in Manchuria).

The protest said the attacks were made by at least three B-29s, five F-51 Mustang Fighters, one Mosquito bomber and four other aircraft. The Mosquito is a British bomber.

Chou's protest said, "The situation is very serious."

The note was dated August 27. It did not state when the attack was made.

In his note, Chou said, "I demand that the United States government immediately punish the United States Air Force for these provocative acts of invading the air of Chinese territory, killing Chinees people and damaging Chinese railway carriages" and "undertake responsibility for compensating for all losses sustained by China."

Foe Making 'Last Gasp,' Gen. Walker Tells Troops

Americans Stop 2 Enemy Attacks Along South Coast Near Masan

Tokyo (Monday) Aug. 28 (AP).—North Korean Reds hammered at four spots on the United Nations front today. On only one did they make a noteworthy gain, pushing to within 20 miles northeast of Taegu, vital American communications center.

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters reported South Korean divisions stood firm against the big Red offensive aimed at the east coast port of Pohang, eastern anchor of the United Nations defenses.

But 40 miles to the west, South Koreans withdrew two and a half miles before a Communist drive pushing southward from captured Uihung toward Taegu.

"The overextended enemy is making his last gasp," Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the Eighth Army, told South Koreans after visiting the front near Pohang. "The day of withdrawal is past."

"To you officers and soldiers of the Army of the Republic of Korea, I ask that you rise as one and stop the enemy in your front in his tracks," General Walker said.

"Let us tear him apart now so that our road to victory will be that much surer and quicker."

This was the situation as outlined in front-line reports and Monday's Eighth Army communique.

1. A Red drive along the east coast toward Pohang was checked north of that town by the South Korean Third Division. To the west, the South Korean Capital Division held positions taken after they were pushed back about 3 miles Sunday from Red-captured Kigye, 9 miles northwest of Pohang.

2. Communist forces captured Uihung, about 22 miles northeast of Taegu. One regiment of the South Korean Sixth Division was forced back 2½ miles. This forced a similar withdrawal by flanking troops of the South Korean Eighth Division on the east.

3. The United States Second Division moved against a toe-hold force of Communists on the east bank of the Naktong River, southwest of Taegu. This river-crossing force was trying to reestablish a bridgehead near Sinam, 6 miles southwest of Changnyong. A full Communist division, the Fourth, was smashed in this sector two weeks ago by the United States Twenty-fourth Division and United States Marines in one of the war's bloodiest battles.

Paris, Aug. 27 (NYHT).—The executive board of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization has declared Communist aggression in Korea violates international law.

Count Stefano Jacini, board chairman, said today this view had been indorsed without a dissenting vote at yesterday's secret meeting.

The executive agency of the 59-nation organization met at its headquarters here to decide to what extent UNESCO should support the collective action of the United Nations Security Council in Korea.

The board will meet Monday to pass on a resolution for action now being drafted in secret session by a special subcommittee. Whatever it decides will to a certain extent take UNESCO out of its neutral phase of acting as a perfectly intellectual organization without a political stand between the democratic West and the communist East.

Jessup Assails Talk Of 'Preventive War'

By Rep. Kee

Gag Urged On Unofficial Policy Talks

By the United Press

Chairman John Kee (D., W. Va.) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said yesterday officials who are not charged with making United States foreign policy would do well to "keep their big mouths shut" about it.

He made the statement amid speculation that President Truman may impose a gag on foreign policy pronouncements by military leaders because of the "preventive war" speech by Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews.

Matthews outraged the State Department by asserting in Boston Friday night that the United States should declare its intention "to pay any price, even the price of instituting a war, to compel cooperation for peace."

The White House backed Secretary of State Dean Acheson in promptly disavowing the speech as a statement of United States policy, raising the possibility Matthews may be reprimanded or even might leave the "little cabinet."

Kee said he disagrees emphatically with any suggestion the United States undertake a "preventive war" against Russia, and fully backs the Administration's foreign policy which is based on the belief that world peace can be saved by a firm defensive stand against Communist aggression.

French Minister Hits Matthews' War Speech

Sete, France, Aug. 27 (AP).—Defense Minister Jules Moch said tonight France is completely opposed to the idea of a preventive war as outlined by United States Navy Secretary Francis P. Matthews.

Moch said he regretted Matthews' statements and indicated he expects the Communists to try to make an issue of them.

MacArthur Cancels Note

as going beyond present United States policy.

Saturday afternoon there were meetings of high Department officials on the prospective reaction abroad to the MacArthur statement. It was learned these officials feared that what MacArthur proposed to say would play into the hands of Communist propagandists who have charged the United States with converting the Chinese Nationalist islands into a base.

President Truman, it was learned, was informed of this view.

The way in which MacArthur's cable was worded strongly indicated that though MacArthur was withdrawing his views, he had not changed them.

The VFW promptly issued a statement to newspapers and radio stations asking them to withdraw MacArthur's statement.

A little more than 24 hours earlier, the State Department and the White House had acted to disavow a statement by Navy Secretary Matthews in Boston that the United States should be prepared to institute a war if necessary to compel other nations to cooperate for peace.

Matthews' Remarks Disavowed

The State Department took the view this played into the hands of the Russians, who long have charged the United States with being a nation of warmongers and that it did not in any case represent United States' policy. Mr. Truman and Secretary of State Acheson discussed the matter and the department then issued a comment disavowing any responsibility for what Matthews said and declaring it was not American policy.

In substance, it has been known that MacArthur has felt the United States should take vigorous and positive steps to make certain Formosa, now held by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist forces, never falls to the Chinese Communists. He considers its possession by a friendly government or Allied forces essential to the security of American position in the western Pacific.

Although President Truman ordered the Seventh Fleet to defend Formosa after the Korean crisis broke, he did so as a means of neutralizing the island and preventing it from becoming involved in the Korean war.

U. S. Welcomes U. N. Probe

Only last Friday, the United States informed the U. N. it would welcome a U. N. investigation of the whole subject and reaffirmed what Mr. Truman had said — that the Island's future should be settled either through the U. N. or a Japanese peace treaty.

However, Britain, India and some other nations which would play important parts in any such settlement do not agree with the United States, either on its present Formosan policy or on any strong defensive line it might take.

Those Governments which have recognized the Chinese Communists are in a position of arguing that Formosa belongs to the Reds. American policy in this dilemma is directed toward trying to quiet down the whole issue and stall off indefinitely any decisions or showdown on Formosa's permanent status.

It was for these reasons, it can be stated on highest authority, that the Truman Administration took such a disturbed view of MacArthur's message to the VFW.

By The Associated Press

A top level State Department spokesman said last night that if the United States opened war and knocked out Russia with atomic bombs the result would be to create "many new and terribly difficult problems" in the world.

In a head-on attack against the whole idea of preventive war, Ambassador Phillip Jessup gave what amounts to a State Department reply to Navy Secretary Matthews' advice that the United States should be willing to start a war if necessary to "compel cooperation for peace."

Jessup, one of Secretary of State Acheson's most trusted advisers, gave the State Department view in a radio interview.

Both the State Department and White House have disavowed Matthews' declaration, saying that neither of those agencies had cleared it. A State Department statement in addition declared that what Matthews said does not "represent United States policy" and "the United States Government does not favor instituting a war of any kind."

Matthews said the views were his own. He spoke out Friday at Boston urging that the U. S. first get ready to defeat any attack, then declare its determination to pay any price to achieve world peace, even that of opening a war.

In the interview Jessup was asked whether war was inevitable and whether as some people say the United States should not "settle the whole thing right now by dropping atomic bombs on Moscow."

Jessup replied that "the threat of war is a serious one" but said war is not inevitable and that the free nations may be able to maintain peace if they make themselves so strong that aggressor nations will not be tempted to strike.

"Responsible and mature citizens realize, I am sure," Jessup said, "that the destruction of war is so catastrophic, that no stone must be left unturned in the effort to maintain our security and our highest values by peaceful means. It is my faith, and the conviction of our Government, that this can be done, if the free men of the world are determined to do it."

Then specifically on the idea of an atomic attack on Russia, Jessup had this to say:

"Dropping atomic bombs on the Soviet Union now is not the way we act; it is not the way America does things.

"But I do not see how anyone can believe that, even if our conscience permitted us to precipitate a war by dropping atomic bombs now, we would be any better off than we are. Such an action would not only not solve any problems, it would create many new and terribly difficult problems.

"Even if such an action were to be successful in knocking out the Soviet Union, it would leave occupation and reconstruction problems of such complexity as to make our present postwar problems look like child's play. And we would have sacrificed the respect and support of other nations.

"I do not believe this view can be seriously entertained by anyone who has given it thorough consideration."

Jessup urged that in this "most dangerous period" in their history Americans should recognize clearly that world communism and its leaders "the men in the Kremlin" are responsible for the situation. The answer so far as this country is concerned, he said, is that all the people should pull together to protect their liberty because at this point "we cannot afford to be divided, to waste our energies in the recriminations among ourselves."

Jessup strongly defended American policies in Korea prior to the outbreak of fighting, saying that it was the success of these policies in producing a Korean democracy which had compelled the northern Communists under "imperialist domination to attack the south.

He repeatedly described the decisions to oppose aggression in Korea as a move strengthening the chances for world peace.

Approval Seen For Doctors' Draft Bill

The House Armed Forces Committee is expected to approve a bill today drafting Government-trained doctors and dentists who served less than 21 months in World War II.

The bill would induct some 5000 doctors and dentists whose training was financed by the Government during World War II. Doctors and dentists already in the reserves would not be affected.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) said the measure would be sent to the floor for final House action Tuesday or Wednesday.

Locally, recruiting offices expected enlistments to jump if a bill providing monthly allowances to families of service men is passed by Congress this week.

No enlistments were reported yesterday by recruiting offices here.

District Selective Service Headquarters announced 110 men from Local Boards Seven and Nine were to report at Arlington Farms today at 7:30 a. m. for pre-induction physicals.

Most of those taking physicals are 23-year-olds, but draft officials indicated a few are 22. About 100 men will report for pre-induction physicals Wednesday and Friday, it was announced.

World Federalists Ask U. N. Charter Revision

New York, Aug. 27 (AP).—The United World Federalists, Inc., today urged the United States to seek a world conference to revise the United Nations Charter so that the U. N. will be given "real power" to stop future aggression.

Marine Corps reshuffles its aviation high command

Marines Shift Top Officers In Air Force

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Marine Corps yesterday reshuffled its aviation high command, dispatching a veteran airman to command Leatherneck air operations in Korea and bringing in a young tactical air expert as its director of aviation.

Maj. Gen. Field Harris, who won fame fighting the Japs in the South Pacific, will take over command of Marine air forces in the Far East. He'll take over from Brig. Gen. Thomas J. Cushman. Top officials are high in their praise of Cushman's work, but say Marine air reinforcements sent to the war zone make the command there a major general's post.

Maj. Gen. William J. Wallace, another outstanding veteran of the Pacific war, moves from director of Marine Corps aviation here to take over Harris' job in command of the First Marine Aircraft Wing at El Toro, Calif.

McQueen Succeeds Jerome

Moving up to chief of aviation is Brig. Gen. Clayton C. (Jerry) Jerome, now director of Marine recruiting and public relations. He'll be replaced in the latter spot by Brig. Gen. John C. McQueen, recently on duty on the West Coast.

Jerome, a graduate of the Naval Academy, is one of the Corps' youngest generals. The 48-year-old flier commanded a Leatherneck Air group in the Philippines which won some of the most flattering commendations from Army commanders ever given to a unit of another service.

Lieut. Gen. Oscar W. Griswold, commanding the Army Fourteenth Corps in the Luzon campaign, praised the close tactical support given his troops by Jerome's men as the "most efficient air support that the Fourteenth Corps has received to date."

Brig. Gen. Hugh Hoffman, commanding the First Cavalry, said he had "never seen more aggressive, more precise or more determined air attacks on dangerous and difficult enemy positions" than that given by Jerome's fliers.

Krueger Paid Tribute

Gen. Walter Krueger, commanding the Sixth Army and Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the Eighth Army, paid similar tribute to the Marine unit.

General Harris, a 1917 Annapolis graduate, was one of the commanders who started the American roll-back of the Japs after Guadalcanal. He won three Legions of Merit for his work in the Solomons, and a fourth as director of Marine aviation during 1944-45.

Wallace led a group on Guadalcanal and won the D. S. M. as commander of air defense and fighter command on Okinawa from March to Augst 1945. He is a native of Church Hill, Md. and entered the Marines during World War I.

McQueen, the only one of the group who is not a flier, is a Naval Academy graduate, class of '21. He fought in the Aleutians, Marianas and on Okinawa.

Farm Imports Top Exports After 8 Years

By the United Press

For the first time in eight years the United States is importing a slightly higher volume of farm commodities than it is exporting.

In reporting this yesterday, the Agriculture Department said the shift resulted from a 21 percent cutback in farm exports and a 6 percent increase in farm imports during the last fiscal year.

It said that during the year ending last June 30 the Nation exported $3,011,547,000 worth of farm commodities and imported $3,175,945,000 worth.

Most of the export cutback was due to a 47 percent slump in foreign buying of American wheat and wheat flour.

Farm imports consited largely of products which this country either doesn't produce or doesn't produce in sufficient volume to meet its needs. Topping the list were coffee, sugar, wool, rubber, cocoa and hides and skins.

Vinson Sets New Marine Goal: 4 Divisions, 26 Air Squadrons

By The Associated Press

Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee yesterday set a new higher goal for Marine Corps combat strength — four fully equipped war-size divisions and 26 air squadrons.

"We aim to get the money" for that force, Vinson said.

The new target is up by two combat divisions and eight air squadrons from an estimate advanced by Vinson only August 6.

He predicted then that Congress will be asked in January for more money for defense, including 500 million dollars for the Marines.

That sum was expected to permit the Corps to increase its strength to 174,000 men and to have two fully equipped divisions and 18 air squadrons.

It now has two divisions, organizationally. However, both were considerably under battle strength when the Korean War started. The size of Marine divisions fluctuates between a peacetime strength sometimes as low as 8000 to 10,000 men and the huge units of World War II days when more than 20,000 men were in combat divisions.

The manpower strength of the Marine Corps then was about 65,000 men and 7000 officers, with about 16 air squadrons.

When Defense officials went to Capitol Hill last month to support their request for an emergency military appropriation, the Marine Corps' portion of the proposed new funds was $128,395,000. This was in addition to the $200,923,000 asked for in the regular 1951 fiscal year budget, or a new total of $329,318,000.

The testimony given at that time indicated a manpower increase of almost 80,000 above the present level, or a new total of about 142,000.

Just what the proposal for two more divisions may do to the 174,000-man enrollment goal mentioned by Vinson August 6 was not made clear. The amount it would cost was not stated.

Along with his report of new plans for the Marine Corps, Vinson disclosed he intends to see President Truman to urge this country to step up its tank production by "hundreds of millions of dollars."

He said he has written Mr. Truman, Secretary of Defense Johnson and top military leaders that the Armed Services Committee is much concerned over the present tank procurement program.

Area Soldier Killed in Korea; Two Others Reported Wounded

A Washington area youth has been killed in action and two more wounded in Korea, according to Defense Department Casualty List No. 77.

Pfc. Gensmer

Pfc. Robert E. Fink, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Talmadge Fink, Rt. 1, Derwood, Md., was reported killed.

Corp. Leo Russell Brown, jr., 20, nephew of Mrs. Mary McGee, 3222 Park pl., ne., and Pfc. Charles E. Gensmer, 21, son of Mrs. Ester Eda Martin of Frankonia rd., about 4 miles south of Alexandria, have been wounded.

This brings to four the total number of local men who have been killed in the Korean war. Twenty-one have been wounded and 12 are missing.

Pfc. Fink, whose family lived in Cabin John until four years ago, comes from a fighting family. His four older brothers served in four different branches of the service.

Paul Fink, 32, 6116 Roseland, In., Luxmanor, Md., was in the Marines; Talmadge G. "Buddy," 27, 6412 79th st., Cabin John, was in the Air Force; Otha, 23, of Derwood, served in both the Army and Navy; and Lloyd, 21, was in the Army.

Pfc. Fink attended Gaithersburg high school, which he left in his third year. Until his enlistment 18 months ago, he worked on the farm of Russell Pope, Derwood. He had been overseas about five weeks when he was killed.

Besides his parents and four brothers, he is survived by another brother, Joe, 13, and two sisters, Shirley, 16, and Diane, 3.

Mrs. McGee received a telegram from the Defense Department Friday telling her that her nephew, Corporal Brown, was slightly wounded in Korea August 8.

Corporal Brown was born in Washington and graduated from Randall Junior High School. He enlisted in the Army about three years ago and has been overseas with the Twenty-fourth Infantry Regiment about two years, his aunt said.

Mrs. McGee reared Corpl. Brown from the time he was five years old, she said. They lived at 314 S. Capitol st. until his enlistment. Mrs. McGee moved to the Park pl. address about three months ago.

Corpl. Brown's parents are separated. His father, Leo Russell Brown, sr., lives in Washington and his mother, Ester Brown, in New York.

Pfc. Gensmer was seriously wounded in the right side August 12—two days after his 21st birthday. He was in action with the 7th Cavalry for 22 days, according to a letter he wrote his mother from the hospital.

Born in Alexandria, he went to school in Frankonia. He enlisted in the Army in November, 1948. He trained at Fort Meade and Fort Benning, Ga.

Pfc. Gensmer was home for a 30-day furlough in May. He reported to Seattle, Wash., June 21 and was sent directly overseas. He was in Japan only two days before being sent to Korea, he wrote his mother.

Hagerstown, Chancellor Men Killed in Action

Two men, one from Hagerstown and one from Chancellor, Va., have been killed in action, according to Defense Department casualty list No. 77. Another Hagerstown man and a Westminster man are missing.

Corp. Arnold G. Dye, son of Mrs. Mamie Dye, Pfc. Charles R. Toombs, son of Journey Toombs, Chancellor have been reported killed.

Corp. Charles W. Barton, jr., son of Mrs. Edith Barton, Hagerstown, and Pvt. Charles K. Eckard, son of Mrs. Freda Eckard, Westminster, are missing.

Twenty-four other men from Maryland and Virginia appeared on the list as casualties.

Enough Votes To Pass Profits Tax Claimed

By The Associated Press

Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) claimed yesterday enough Senate votes to attach an excess profits tax on corporations to the $4,508,000,000 tax-boosting bill pending in the Senate.

If that happens, Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the Senate tax-writing Finance Committee has said there may be no tax increase bill this year. George wants to hold full hearings on just how to apply a super levy.

A showdown vote in the Senate dispute may be reached today or Tuesday.

"The reaction of Senators to our amendment has convinced me we've got the votes to pass this thing," O'Mahoney told reporters.

He and Senator Connally (D., Tex.) are insisting that a heavy tax on extra corporation profits be attached to the "first installment" tax increase asked by President Truman to help meet costs of the Korean war and fight inflation.

As written, the bill would boost corporation income taxes for the last half of this year, while hiking individual income taxes starting October 1.

Chairman George, backed by a majority of the Finance Committee, insists that trying to ram through a complicated excess profits tax now—without public hearings and committee study—would curtail needed production and upset plans of business and industry.

ROK Troops Impatient To Hit North

By Robert Bennyhoff

On the South Korean Front North of Taegu (Monday), Aug. 28 (U.P.)—South Korean soldiers, who have been fighting longer than anyone else, are becoming impatient with Americans and want to start a march northward to Seoul and beyond.

That's a report from Sergt. Elmore Hattlestad, of Tampa, Fla., a member of the American advisory group with the South Korean First Division.

Hattlestad said a good many Korean soldiers are "getting unhappy, even though they are becoming confident United Nations armies will eventually win.

"Some South Koreans say 'wait no good,'" Hattlestad said.

He said some South Koreans "know about" the thirty-eighth Parallel, but "they don't like it—and as far as I can find out the North Koreans don't either.

These South Koreans don't believe our armies will stop there and they know they don't want to.

"If the South Koreans ever start moving northward and they are able to keep going, I will guarantee you the only way we'll ever halt them is to put an American Army in front of them," Hattlestad said.

He said from what he had seen, R. O. K. (Republic of Korea) military forces lack only leadership.

"You tell them what to do and they'll follow orders," he said.

"They are Orientals and they like to go as far as they can and keep going. They don't understand why Americans always go far and then halt. But they are awfully glad to see our GIs, planes, guns and tanks."

I asked if the South Koreans seemed to fight any better with the Americans with them.

He replied, "That's a debatable question—some of them like to take it easy and let our artillery, tanks and planes do the fighting for them. But some of the others seem to fight harder."

U. N. Korea Commission Meets Near Fighting Front in South

Somewhere in Korea, Aug. 27 (AP).—Fifteen members of the United Nations Commission held open meetings today in two cities, one close to the fighting front.

"After this period of death and destruction, we hope a free and united Korea will emerge," said the commission chairman, Anup Singh, of India.

The meetings were at Chinhae and Masan. Chinnae is 20 air miles west of the port city of Pusan. Masan is 27 air miles west of Pusan—and only a few miles east of high grounds where the United States Twenty-Fourth Division has been waging close-quarter hand-grenade fights with Red Korean units of a force estimated at 15,000.

"The free nations and peoples have arisen like one person and come to your aid," Singh told the South Koreans.

"They are fighting on your side, not only to help you but in defense of a principle. Never before have so many nations been banded together as they are now in Korea."

The commission secretary, B. A. Remborg, of Sweden, said:

"This is the first time in the history of the world that the overwhelming majority of nations within the framework of an international organization for peace and freedom have joined together in an all-out effort to stop aggression and to stop it by force."

Vanguard of British Arrives in Korea

Off Secret List

British Unveil Fastest Jet Night Fighter

London, Aug. 28 (U.P.).—Britain unveiled the world's fastest jet propelled night fighter plane today, dubbed "The Flying Radar Station," and announced it was designed especially to prevent an atomic Pearl Harbor in Europe.

Authorities declared that the twin engine plane flies "at a speed greater than any known night fighter" and already is in production to serve as the backbone of Western Europe's night defenses.

The two man plane was taken off the secret list just one day after the conclusion of aerial war games in which western defense chiefs learned that Western Europe, from the North Sea to the alps, was wide open to attack from the air.

Specific performance figures on the fighter were still secret, but authorities said the plane carries more radar, is heavier and has a higher performance record than any plane of its type in the world. An electrical gyro gunsight pins the guns on the target.

In the two days of joint aerial maneuvers, the biggest in Europe's peace time history, even "old-fashioned" propeller driven American B-29 and British Wellington bombers breached the west's radar defense and pierced fighter patrols.

The new jet, known as the NF (night fighter) 11, was tailor-made for European defense by the Hawker Siddeley group of aircraft factories.

Somewhere in Korea, Aug. 27 (AP). — Thirty-two British officers and aides arrived today at a South Korean airfield. They are the vanguard of more than 2000 well-trained troops who will enter the United Nations battle against North Korean Communists.

The British group, comprising several high-ranking offieers, their aides and noncommissioned officers, received a warm welcome from Americans at the field to greet them.

They were met by Col. Harry Robertson, Deputy Chief of Staff of the United States Eighth Army, who said:

"It's mighty good to have the British with us again."

They heard GIs exclaim: "Welcome, Limeys," and "We're glad to see you."

The main body of troops is expected to arrive the early part of the week, a British diplomatic spokesman said.

The advance party will consult with U. N. military officials to arrange billeting and other matters.

Heading the group is Brigadier B. A. Coad, commander of the British force.

The party came from Hongkong via Itazuke Airport in Japan, where they had received another warm welcome from the United States Air Force.

Lieut. Col. G. L. Kielson of Edinburgh, commanding the First Battalion of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, and Lieut. Col. Andrew Man, commanding the First Battalion of the Middlesex Regiment, both arrived with the advance unit. They wore kilts.

A spokesman for the group said the British troops have been training for a year in terrain similar to that of Korea.

All the senior officers agreed a difficult task lay ahead but that they were determined to do the job.

Reds Drive on Pohang Halted

fifth Division stopped two Red probing attacks on the Masan front in the south, where a hard-hitting United States aerial attack Sunday may have temporarily thwarted Communist plans for another eastward push toward Pusan, main U. N. supply port.

American jet and Mustang fighters roared out at dawn today to hit large new troop concentrations in North Korea and rake Communist forces which plunged 7 miles southward over the weeknd in their new thrust toward Pohang and its nearby American air field.

The surprisingly strong Red push was checked 4 miles west and 6 miles northwest of Pohang.

The new drive on Pohang demonstrated the Reds still are capable of mounting a heavy attack in an area of their own choosing.

A spokesman at MacArthur's headquarters said if the Communists can take the east coast city, they plan to slash westward in a new push toward Taegu, 45 miles to the west.

In recent weeks United Nations forces have halted Red drives toward Taegu from the southwest, west and north.

Associated Press Correspondent Tom Lambert reported from Korea that a feeling of optimism had been growing at Eighth Army headquarters for several weeks. He said it was sparked by the firm United States stand along the Naktong River and by American successes in turning back a major Red offensive towards Taegu from the northwest.

On the southern front, Associated Press Correspondent Stan Swinton reported that heavy smashes by American Navy, Air Force and Australian planes had balked for the present what may have been a Communist offensive.

Swinton said they blew up nine supposedly abandoned villages where the Reds were storing ammunition, and destroyed 4 tanks, 15 artillery pieces and 28 trucks along 9 miles of road jammed with Red vehicles.

Tokyo headquarters disclosed Sunday that the Second Division had replaced the United States' Twenty-fourth Division in the Changnyong area, about 23 miles southwest of Taegu.

Present whereabouts of the Twenty-Fourth Division were not disclosed. The Twenty-Fourth is the veteran American outfit in the Korean war, having seen almost continuous action since July 5.

Just north of the Changnyong sector, the Headquarters summary early Monday said, seven Russian-built North Korean tanks were sighted moving eastward toward the Naktong River.

On the east coast, carrier-based American planes reported they sank two small naval vessels and three large tankers. They reported damaging 27 other vessels.

Ships listed as sunk were described as one large submarine chaser or corvette, one corvette, an ocean-going tanker and two other large tankers.

This was the first report of subchasers in Korean waters. And except for an earlier report of a 10,000-ton freighter bombed at Inchon, no large ships had been sighted on the east coast.

The information indicated the North Koreans were either throwing more seaborne equipment into operations, or recently have received naval assistance from some other Communist country.

American pilots reported they damaged and left burning 9 corvettes, 6 coastal craft carrying supplies, and 12 power boats.

FULL - SCALE ATTACK — Reinforced North Koreans thrust within 4 miles west and 6 miles northwest (A) of Pohang Sunday in full-scale attack on eastern flank of United Nations' beachhead in Korea. South Koreans were engaged in heavy fighting (B) in area 40 miles west of Pohang and 20 miles northeast of Taegu. Reds attempting crossing of Naktong River in small boats near Changnyong (C) were repulsed. In far south (D) allied air attacks forestalled probable Red offensive toward Masan

Pacific Airlift Puts 50 Planes A Day in Tokyo

Tokyo, Aug. 26 (Delayed) (NYHT)—The Pacific airlift being flown by Air Force, Navy and civilian crews over three transoceanic routes from the United States West Coast met the vital invasion emergency successfully and now is filling all requirements of the Korean war for fast transport of high-priority men and materiel.

The big lift began rolling after the North Korean invasion started June 25 and the civilian contract carriers pitched in July 6 to help speed the flow of special weapons, ammunition and technicians to operate them.

Today the lift is responsible for more than 100 arrivals and departures a day of four-engined aircraft at Haneda Airport, outside Tokyo. The airlift pilots are flying nearly 100 tons a day, or about the same weight brought into Haneda each month before the war.

The big lift is being run by the Military Air Transport Service, commanded by Maj. Gen. Lawrence S. Kuter. His deputy for operations is Maj. Gen. William H. Tunner, on-the-spot director of the Berlin air lift two years ago.

General Tunner characterized the performance of both of the plane crews and ground maintenance of cargo-handling units in one word, "Splendid."

Others connected with the air lift high command say that civilian airline assistance has been invaluable and proves an assertion by Juan Trippe, president of Pan American World Airways, one of the chief civil participants, that America's merchant air fleet is a vital second line of national defense.

Attack on Tibet Held Unlikely

London, Aug. 27 (U.P.)—Peiping radio reports of Communist Chinese action against Tibet were construed by Far Eastern observers here today as part of a "war of nerves" being applied simultaneously in Indo-China and Hongkong.

Contrary to Peiping's claims on August 14 of a Communist entry into Tibet, responsible observers said there was evidence now that Chinese Communist Leader Mao Tze-tung actually was losing his enthusiasm for a Tibetan adventure.

They said that unless outside pressure was being applied, it would seem improbable that the Peiping regime, faced with the problem of administering the vast areas under their control and confronted with a famine, would contemplate aggression in Tibet.

Great significance was attached to Indian Prime Minister Pandit Nehru's statement Wednesday that India had "pointed out to the Chinese government the desirability of settling the Tibetan question peacefully."

Nehru apparently aims to persuade the Tibetans to accept the nominal suzerainty of Communist China, while in fact retaining independence. The sources said.

This is the status Tibet has enjoyed since the Anglo-China treaty on Tibet of 1914. Since then, both India and Britain have recognized Chinese suzerainty over Tibet as long as Tibet retains its autonomy.

In return for influencing the Tibetans, Nehru apparently hopes to obtain Mao's promise not to invade Tibet.

U. S. Presses Arms Aid Action

advisers have come to the conclusion that the United States cannot any longer expect the Western European nations to perform the defense task if America offers only its signature on treaties, its presence at international meetings, and its money for rearmament. Merely giving the Europeans some of the money to buy more munitions isn't enough.

U. S. Must Show Intent

For Europe to respond in the way that is hoped for, it is felt America must show its intent to help defend Europe from the Elbe or the Rhine, and not merely from the English Channel and the Pyrenees. Europeans want to be defended, not to be liberated some years after they have been overrun.

If such an American demonstration is made, in the concrete terms of planning to station some 6 or 8 or 10 more American divisions in Europe and of organizing a unified defense force from the European national armies under an American commander and international staff, it is believed the European nations will do the necessary.

They will fall to and raise the armies and produce the munitions to the limit of their capability, which is large. They will cement the will to resist, which now, except in Great Britain, is dubious.

This argument is still an argument. It is not a crystallized American Government position.

Moreover the basic idea of putting more American troops in Europe and consolidating European armed forces under an American commander-in-chief is being deeply challenged. Also, the whole question of timing, and of American initiative in pressing the proposal in the North Atlantic Council, is under debate.

Pentagon Disagrees

The arguments against committing more American troops, apparently come mostly from the Pentagon, although opinion there is by no means unanimous. The arguments include, among others, these points of view:

1. The desired military units do not now exist. The promise to create and station them in Europe is therefore premature. It could well be the thing that would provoke Russia to war. Or, short of that, Russia's answer would be to station at once, another 20 divisions or so in Eastern Germany.

2. What divisions the United States has and can bring into being in the next year or so should be kept here, free to be used where ever they are needed. If Russia pulls another "Korea" somewhere else in Asia or the Middle East, we must have freedom of action—and availability of armed men—to meet it.

3. If American troops are stationed in Europe, the European nations will relax, not augment, their rearmament effort. They will be delighted—to let the Americans do the fighting.

On the matter of an American commander—presumably a man of transcendent military stature—for the NATO forces, the opposing arguments also seem to emerge mainly from the Defense Department. Some of them:

1. Why name a commander when there is still little or nothing to command? Why not wait until the NATO armed forces have been built up?

2. That commander, in charge of American and European troops, would be responsible to and under the direction of the North Atlantic Council. This is comprised of civilians, with a civilian chairman, Secretary of State Acheson. This group, not representing the United States alone, would determine the strategy and plans for war, if war came.

But this determination, the argument runs, should be in exclusively American hands. The Defense Department, not a 12-nation council, should be in charge of fixing plans and policy and strategy in any future global conflict. Some highly placed informants, who declared that there is a deep conflict flourishing in the Administration, assert that the opposition centers in Defense Secretary Johnson. They say that he is moved by, among other things, an animosity toward Acheson.

It is alleged he is unwilling to take any steps that would take from him and the chiefs of staffs, and hand over to a group of which Acheson is the chief, control over the use of American forces.

Although opinion in the State Department and other agencies appears to be somewhat divided on questions of timing and tactics, the preponderant view is that the arguments listed above are for the largest part not valid. It is contended that they are based on a misreading of European psychology.

Civilian officials think that the European nations will respond vigorously to a concrete show of American strength and determination. It is felt that, again excepting Britain, the Europeans' will to resist is conditioned on their means to resist.

The French, for example, as "realists," will put their backs into military work, and their bodies into uniform, only when they see real hope, with the help of American men and munitions, of staging a successful fight, it is argued.

Furthermore, some officials believe that the old national allegiances for which men once fought are no longer strong enough in Europe. The West Europeans will have more willingness to fight and die for a European organization than for a segment of it, in the form of one small nation, according to this view.

The subject of rearmament of Germany arises from the almost unanimous opinion that Europe cannot be defended without German arms production and without German men under arms.

But, it would appear that even the Germans, and certainly their former victims in Europe, will not tolerate a new German national army. But they would agree, it is felt, to German divisions in an integrated European army under an American commander.

Throughout the Administration there is general concern and no agreement yet on matters of timing. Some officials feel decisions should be taken in time for next month's meeting of the North Atlantic Council. Others would go slower, and leave more of the initiative in these ideas to the Europeans.

The questions are now under intense discussion, it is known, in the National Security Council. That body, where Presidential assistant W. Averell Harriman sits as the eye and ear of Mr. Truman, will be presumably responsible for formulating the proposed solutions to be sent to the White House.

Convicted Murderer Flees Vermont Prison

Windsor, Vt., Aug. 27 (U.P.)—A convicted murderer escaped from the Vermont State Prison during the night by substituting a dummy in his bed and hiding in a recreation yard until guards left their posts on the wall, it was disclosed today.

Donald E. Demag, 27, serving a life term sentence on a second-degree murder charge in the bludgeon slaying of a harness maker, was being sought near his former wife's home in Burlington and in Syracuse, N. Y., where he once lived.

Chicago, Aug 27 (U.P.)—Charles G. Dawes, former Vice President of the United States, observed his eighty-fifth birthday today in the same quiet manner that has become almost a ritual in his later years.

"We don't plan any celebration at all," he said. "All we're going to do is have the family for dinner."

Germans Train For Red Army, Fugitive Says

Berlin, Aug. 27 (AP).—A fugitive People's Police lieutenant declared today that 600 picked men—most of them ardent Communists—are being trained in the Soviet zone's chief military school for officers in East Germany's future Red army.

He threw himself on the mercy of the West Berlin refugee office after fleeing here with his wife and two children from the Soviet zone. Until yesterday noon he was a candidate for a major's commission in the disguised military forces of East Germany.

This was his story as told to a reporter:

Since early June he had been enrolled in the Soviet zone's chief military school at Kochstedt on the Elbe River near Dessau. There 300 People's policemen are studying to become battalion commanders in the fledgling army with the rank of major. Another 300 are marked for junior commissions in the present Bereitschaften (militarized police battalions).

All are members of the Socialist Unity (Communist) Party.

"Most are firm believers in communism," he said. "Only a few may be getting their fill of dictatorship and terror like I did."

The major points of his story are confirmed by independent information in the hands of British and American intelligence officers.

Nucleus of New Navy Built in Soviet Zone

Berlin, Aug. 27 (U.P.)—The East German Sea Police—nucleus of a new, Russian-approved German navy—already has built up to a strength of 4000 men and a handful of small vessels, a well-informed Allied source estimated today.

"But it is just getting started," the source reported. "It will be much bigger soon. It is going to grow fast. Right now it has growing pains—not well organized and in a state of flux. But before long it will be something to reckon with."

The Soviet Zone police navy is still in the experimental stage, but reports reaching here said it will be developed, perhaps quickly, into a trained fighting force to support the Soviet fleet in the Baltic.

Formosans Celebrate Confucius' Anniversary

Taipei, Formosa, Aug. 27 (AP).—Formosa was decked out in flags today in commemoration of the 2501st anniversary of the birth of the Chinese sage, Confucius.

Greece Puts $2000 Price On Kidnaper

Heraklion, Crete, Aug. 27 (U.P.).—The government today placed a price of $2000 on the mustachioed head of Costas Kefaloughianos, who kidnaped a 19-year-old girl one week ago and has eluded her angry kinsmen and armed soldiers ever since.

Separate rewards of $700 each were offered for the seven armed guards the handsome, 35-year-old royalist, Costas, has ordered to protect beautiful Tassoula Petrakogeorgi, until the two can be married.

The government also rushed 1000 more troops to Heraklion, where it was feared that Costas had abandoned his mountain hideout and was taking Tassoula elsewhere by sea.

Costas and his friends abducted the black-eyed Tassoula from in front of a Heraklion movie house after her father, George, Liberal member of Parliament from Candia, refused to permit their marriage.

Tassoula's father declared he would rather see her in her grave than wed to a royalist.

In Athens, Costas's brother, Emmandel, warned the Populist (royalist) Party leader and former Premier, Constantin Tsaldaris, that "a long and bloody vendetta" is imminent between the two prominent families in Crete unless the romance is allowed to culminate in marriage.

Tsaldaris was expected to call on Premier Sophocles Venizelos for action today. Venizelos, a Liberal, already has refused one plea from Tsaldaris to intervene personally with Tassoula's father.

Tydings Puts M'Arthur Among 'Great Generals'

By the United Press

Chairman Millard E. Tydings of the Senate Armed Services Committee said yesterday that Gen. Douglas MacArthur belongs "in the ranks of great generals" for his conduct of the Korean campaign.

The Maryland Democrat made the statement in a transcribed interview over Baltimore radio station WBAL. He also said the Communists are licked unless Russia or the Chinese Communists come to their aid.

Bulgars Held Aiding Reds In Greece

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 27 (U.P.) The Greek guerilla movement still is conducting "raiding and sabotage" missions near the northern Greek border and is getting its aid chiefly from Bulgaria, the United Nations Balkan Committee reported today.

The Soviet-spurned nine-nation committee said Greece's independence and integrity still were in danger because of continuing activities of "scattered bands," though it made plain that elimination of large-scale guerilla action had significantly modified the threat.

The committee also reported that failure of Communist nations to repatriate an estimated 28,296 Greek children removed to those countries during the Greek civil war "constitutes a continuing source of international friction."

And, noting the reserve traffic of "political and other refugees" from Communist nations into Greece, the committee suggested it might be well to resettle these DP's outside Greece.

This up-to-date picture of the Balkan problem that has plagued the U. N. for four years was contained in the committee's annual report to the forthcoming General Assembly.

The nine-nation group said that Premier Marshal Tito's Yugoslav government, despite its break with the Cominform, still refused to recognize or cooperate with it. The same held for Greece's other two northern neighbors — Albania and Bulgaria.

But it added that Tito had maintained the policy, announced in July 1949, "of closing his frontier with Greece." It was this action, following the sensational defection of the Tito regime from the cominform fold, that has been generally recognized as an important factor in the sharp decline of the Greek guerilla movement.

13 Still Sought In Sinking of Hospital Ship

San Francisco, Aug. 27 (AP).—Coast Guard boats today searched the fog-bound waters off the Golden Gate, seeking traces of 13 persons unaccounted for in Friday's disastrous sinking of the hospital ship Benevolence.

At least 18 persons lost their lives and 492 were miraculously rescued after the big white mercy ship was rammed by the Luckenback line freighter Mary Luckenback Friday evening in dense fog less than 2 miles west of San Francisco.

An inbound freighter today reported spotting a body wearing a life jacket. One of the small Coast Guard craft found a life preserver, but no body, on checking the report.

The Navy, which released the figures, said it could not be certain the number possibly lost at sea is 13 because a complete roster of those aboard is not available.

The Benevolence had been taken from the mothball fleet and was on a shakedown cruise preparatory to going into service for the return of Korean war wounded. Aboard her were members of Navy medical units, men of the Military Sea Transport Service, Mare Island Navy shipyard men and members of the Pacific Fleet reserve.

A Navy spokesman said a better accounting of the missing will be available Monday when the organizations represented aboard the craft take a rollcall.

However, there was the possibility more survivors who went home before being checked off might report in, as have five since last night.

Divers have not yet entered the sunken vessel, lying on its side in 75 feet of water. But a Navy salvage ship, the Viking, was to arrive here Monday from San Diego, presumably to hunt for bodies and finally to move the Benevolence away from shipping lanes.

Meanwhile, a Naval Board of Inquiry has started an investigation into the Benevolence disaster.

Everything at Steak!

By Albert Parchey Mesirow

THIS being election year, the politicians, war or no war, are vying with one another to grant generous Federal and State subsidies to numerically powerful groups of voters. But there is no place at the public trough for Washingtonians who, of course, cannot vote. However, there is a group here deserving the most urgent consideration. The Government shows no inclination to help the local cab drivers by permitting an increase in 1942 rates to compensate for 1950 prices. Therefore, it's up to the cab-riding public, to you and to me, to help the cab driver balance his budget. We can do this by making it a rule to give a minimum tip of twenty cents for each ride, with proportionately higher tips for longer rides. The tip is no longer an "extra" for the driver; out of his tips, he must house, feed, clothe and maintain his family. His fare does not, at current prices, any more than pay for the installments on his cab, gasoline, oil and necessary repairs. You and I can laugh off the extra dime we tip him, but to the cab driver, it's no laughing matter. He needs that extra dime. Give it to him, won't you?

This week Parchey's is closed. On Saturday, at midnight, our staff took off on their annual vacations, to return the day after Labor Day. It occurred to me that you might be interested to know how they intend to spend their holidays.

Chef James Heller is going to Brooklyn to attend the wedding of a friend, and hopes to take in a number of games at the Yankee Stadium. He's a Yankee fan.

Chef Charles Walker will drive to Cleveland with his wife, to visit relatives.

Chef Norman Presley is planning a plane trip to Chicago and Detroit, and hopes to visit with his friend, Joe Louis.

Assistant Chef Joseph Jackson is taking this opportunity to get married and will honeymoon at a secret Shangri La.

Salad Chef Wilbur Smith is journeying with his wife to New York for a visit to his parents, and as many Dodger games as he can cross the bridge to see.

Salad Chef Lewis Yates will spend his vacation at home, playing with his brand-new baby daughter.

Luther Hennighan, Mixologist, with his wife and three children, will visit friends in Camden, New Jersey.

Mixologist Al Grey and his wife are already relaxing in Atlantic City.

Nathaniel Hawkins, Waiter No. 1, is flying to Tulsa, Oklahoma, to visit his mother and brothers and sisters.

Marshall Morgan, Waiter No. 2, goes to Brooklyn to see the Dodgers and some Broadway shows.

Rev. Joseph Foster, Waiter No. 3, will travel to the family farm at New Roads, La., to see his father, who is ailing, and perhaps do a little fishing.

James Littlejohn, Waiter No. 4, is our most devoted follower of the theatre. After a brief visit with his mother in Spartanburg, S. C., he will fly to New York to see more shows. Since he has already taken in "Death of a Salesman," "South Pacific," "Kiss Me, Kate" and "Mr. Roberts," his choice is somewhat narrow.

Fred Allen, Waiter No. 6, will spend a few days with his parents in Hamlet, N. C., and then visit friends in the Bronx, not too far from Brooklyn and his beloved Dodgers.

Roy Campbell, Waiter No. 7, has friends in Philadelphia who have invited him to come there and "just rest," which is what he will do.

Cleander Long, Waiter No. 9, his wife and two boys will visit one Grandma in Clifton Forge, Va., and the other in Charlottesville, hoping to get in a little fishing in between.

Hugh Hawkins, Steward, will relax in Atlantic City with his wife.

Obie Ponton, Glass Steward, will spend his holiday fishing on the Potomac.

Joseph Lee, China Steward, is journeying home to St. Mary's County, aiming to take some of those blues reported running in the Bay.

Top Leaders Of CIO Meet Here Today

By the United Press

Labor unity and expulsion of left-winger Harry Bridges' longshoremen's union will be major topics at meetings of the CIO's top leaders here today and Tuesday.

The seven CIO vice presidents are scheduled to meet together in the morning with CIO President Philip Murray and Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey to draw up an agenda for sessions the next day with the union executive board.

Bridges, who is free on bail following a perjury conviction for lying about his Communist activities, is still a member of the executive board.

Under a new clause in the CIO constitution, designed expressly to deal with left-wingers, the board has power to expel affiliated unions found guilty of following the Communist line. Several unions already have been kicked out and only Bridges' longshoremen and two other West Coast unions, the Fishermen and the Marine, Cooks and Stewards, have charges still pending.

11 Plants Struck

International Harvester Faces Tieup

Chicago, Aug. 27 (AP).—A system-wide strike against International Harvester Co. was called today by the farm equipment division, United Electrical Workers (independent).

The strike call, directed to 27,000 FE-UE workers in 11 plants, will virtually bring the big implement firm's operations to a standstill.

Nine other Harvester plants have been shut down since Thursday by another strike called by the United Auto Workers (CIO,) who represent 22,000 employes. The FE-UE ordered the strike effective at once.

In announcing the FE-UE strike, Gerald Fielde, director of the union's Harvester council, termed the company's withdrawal from a tentative contract agreements last week "the most brazen double cross in modern labor history."

W. J. Reilly, Harvester's labor relations manager, said "there is no real financial issue. The company has been and is willing to make very substantial wage increases for employes."

He said the "only real issue is the irresponsibility of the FE-UE union and the absolute necessity for the company to obtain some real guarantees of better future conduct on the part of leaders of that union."

The rejected agreement called for a 7-cent wage boost and semi-annual opening of the contract for wage discussions during the two years it was to have been in force.

Packard Pact Reported Nearly Ready to Sign

Detroit, Aug. 27 (AP). — Representatives of the Packard Motor Car Co. and the CIO United Auto Workers tried again tonight to reach agreement on a contract that will signal a return to work for 8000 Packard production workers.

A pact to end the 12-day strike was reported nearly ready for signing, but its terms were not disclosed. The walkout has been reported on the verge of settlement several times in the last week.

Canada Expected to Ask Right To Enforce Labor Arbitration

Ottawa, Aug. 27 (U.P.).—The government was expected today to demand that an emergency session of Parliament give it special powers to enforce arbitration and put an end to the nation's crippling six-day-old rail strike.

The biggest labor dispute in Canadian history was tossed into Parliament's lap last night when company negotiators walked out of a government sponsored conference on the rail dispute.

Donald Gordon, president of the government-owned Canadian National Railways and chief company spokesman, said the strike question now was "up to the representatives of all the people"—Parliament.

The Canadian government was unequipped by law to deal with a nationwide rail strike when 125,000 nonoperating rail workers walked out at 6 a. m. local time on Tuesday. Canada had no specific provisions for seizure, as in the United States, and the government had no powers beyond conciliation and mediation.

When Parliament convenes at 3 p. m. (EDT) on Tuesday, therefore, the government is expected to seek a compulsory arbitration law to deal with all public utility strikes plus special powers to end this strike.

Rally Week For Democrats

Several preprimary Democratic rallies have been scheduled for the coming week in nearby Maryland counties.

All candidates on both the State and county official Democratic organization slate will be introduced at a Prince Georges county rally Tuesday at 7 p. m. at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club.

Tuesday at 8:15 p. m. opposing candidates for the Democratic nomination will speak at a rally sponsored by the Third Precinct, Seventh District Democratic Organization of Montgomery County at the Glen Echo firehouse.

An old fashioned country "Corn Dip" will be the feature attraction at the Democratic primary rally Wednesday at 7 p. m. in the Gaithersburg recreation center.

Sponsored by the elected Democratic precinct officials of Montgomery County's farming community and the Montgomery County Democratic Victory Committee, the rally will also include a hill billy band and speeches by four or five of the county candidates.

Democrats Claim Montgomery Gain

The Democratic Victory Committee of Mntgomery County yesterday laid claim to more than two-thirds of the 9353 new voters registered in the county since the November, 1948 general election.

Because of 4100 removals from the rolls, the victory committee stated, the total registration showed an increase from 51,881 to 566,881. Of the current total, 37,424 are Democrats, 16,484 are Republicans, and 2962 are unaffiliated.

The victory committee attributes about half of the new Democratic registrants to the work of Democratic "flying squads" headed by Donald E. Gingery of Rockville and Warren Browning of Bethesda.

Former Hungarian Officials Arrested

London, Aug. 27 (AP).—The official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported today that two former high ranking members of the Communist Hungarian government have been placed under arrest.

Tanjug said that former Minister of Justice Istvan Ries and former Minister of Light Industry Gyorgy Marosan had been jailed. Hungary announced on July 18 that Ries had resigned and on August 5 that Marosan had quit. They were the last two members of the Social Democratic Party in the cabinet.

'Tap' Quiz Tripped Shimon, Pearson Says

the Occidental Hotel wire-tap was part of the job he had done on Howard Hughes.

"I made a mistake, there is no quesion about it," the lieutenant sputtered. "Let me explain. I came in off my honeymoon and I was called in to give a statement. I was crowded. I was groping around to see where I was going."

Incidentally, testimony taken by the Senate committee from Sergt. George H. Robison, jr., corroborates Shimon's own sworn statement to the police board one year ago. Robison testified Shimon ordered him to tap the wires of Hugh Fulton at the Occidental for two or three weeks in May or June of 1947. The Mayflower and Carlton wire tapping took place in July and August of the same year during Brewster's probe of Howard Hughes, at which Hughes, head of Trans-World Airlines, accused Brewster of pressuring him to amalgamate with Pan-American Airways.

Another Discrepancy

The Senators also discovered another discrepancy between Shimon's two stories. He was asked at last year's police inquiry: "In the same investigation at the Carlton Hotel, was a tire tapped?"

"The telephone wire was not tapped," Shimon denied.

Yet last week he admitted he had tapped a wire at the Carlton, but got a bathroom 'phone. Questioned about the discrepancy, Shimon explained: "What I meant by that, there were no results on that (Carlton) wire. As I told you, I had a dud there, and if you get no results, there is no tap."

Lieut. Shimon also got a severe grilling regarding the alleged shadowing of "Chick" Lappin.

"Did you report to your superior officer about the work you were doing for Senator Brewster?" Senator Pepper inquired.

"What superior officer are you referring to?" Shimon parried.

"I assume that a lieutenant of police has a superior officer," snapped the Senator.

"I was assigned to the District Attorney's office and only under his direction. I did not have to report to (Police Chief) Barrett," replied Shimon.

"But you told us that in this case, Major Barrett's office was the one that assigned you to do this work," retorted Pepper.

Detailed to Brewster

"All he did was send me there, detail me to Senator Brewster," Shimon explained.

"You did not feel you were under obligation to make a subsequent report to the chief's office respecting an assignment which the chief's office had specifically given you?" Pepper asked incredulously.

"It was not necessary, not called for," Shimon muttered.

"Now, you did incur some expense, you said, at the Carlton Hotel where you took a room," the Senator noted.

"That is true," admitted Shimon.

"Did Senator Brewster authorize you to incur any expenses?" demanded Pepper.

"I did not think I needed authorization," the uncomfortable lieutenant replied.

"Did you expect Senator Brewster to reimburse you or the Police Department?" Pepper pressed.

"That was up to Senator Brewster," Shimon replied.

"Did you render him any bills through the Police Department?"

"I did not render any bill through the Police Department," admitted Shimon.

"Do you ordinarily in the performance of public service send a bill for expenses to the complainant, or do you send the bill to the Police Department for whom you are working?" Pepper demanded.

Shimon explained he was attached to the District Attorney's office, therefore had not submitted any vouchers to the Police Department since 1940.

Pepper also grilled the lieutenant about a letter of commendation dated September 29, 1947, from Senator Bridges, New Hampshire Republican. This letter, addressed to Major Barrett, reats: "It is a pleasure to say a word of commendation in behalf of Lieut. J. Shimon who has been loaned to us to do special work. During the time he has been with us ne has rendered eminently satisfactory services under the most difficult circumstances. I have no hesitation in recommending him most highly. I am always glad to give any information about one who has given such absolute satisfaction. I believe that it might be to advantage to have this information for Lieutenant Shimon's record in your department."

"Would you kindly tell us," Pepper inquired sweetly, "what work you did for Senator Bridges or his committee?"

"Oh, I did a lot of odds and ends for Senator Bridges," replied Shimon. "I have done it for a period of years, personnel checks, everything. Whenever they wanted or needed a little advice."

Questioned On Assignment

"You do not recall that there is any reference on your record to any assignment to Senator Bridges or his committee, do you?" Pepper asked.

"I do not recall of any," admitted Shimon.

"I have before me now a photostatic copy of what purports to be your record given to the committee by Major Barrett, and it contains no reference of any assignment of your services to Senator Bridges or his committee.

"Now then," Pepper continued, "Senator Bridges refers here to your services being 'eminently satisfactory under the most difficult circumstances.' That does not suggest just a routine check."

"Well, suppose I suggest you ask Mr. Bridges what he meant by that," retorted Shimon sarcastically.

"It is possible that we will inquire of both of you," snapped Pepper.

"I think he is better qualified to explain his own letter," Shimon shrugged.

"I doubt very seriously if anybody who requests difficult work be done is better informed than the gentleman who does it," bristled the Senator.

Tedious Leg Work

"It was not difficult," Shimon finally explained. "Probably tedious leg work checking."

Pepper also cross-examined Shimon on his income. Shimon said his salary was $4672 and admitted outside income from selling a few automobiles. His only other extracurricular business, he testified, was the automobile agency he established in partnership with William J. Nolan in which, he claimed he lost money.

The Senators asked whether he had received income from a detective agency, but Shimon replied flatly: "I did not."

Later, however, Shimon corrected himself.

"I have a local lawyer here who also has a private detective agency. I am in no way connected with it, but I showed him how to get started," Shimon explained.

Navy Department Lawyer

He identified the lawyer as Marion B. Wilson, an attorney in the Navy Department.

"I just advise him, give him my contacts. In fact, it was my idea, I guess, that he should go in the business," Shimon explained.

Shimon admitted receiving "about $1200" from Wilson for his advice.

As for mystery man Henry Grunewald, Shimon admitted meeting him in 1943 or 1944.

"I met him through a mutual friend, William Power Maloney," Shimon reported . . . "Grunewald is a former investigator, former FBI man, one of those things, you know. I met a lot of Maloney's friends. He met a lot of my friends."

Lappin May Appear Today Before Wire-Tap Body

Abner "Chick" Lappin, who allegedly shadowed Senator Brewster (R., Me.), "most probably" will appear today before the Senate subcommittee investigating wire tapping, a committee source said last night.

Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon of the Metropolitan Police, meantime, is definitely slated for an appearance before the committee. The sessions will start at 10 a. m.

The committee source said "you may have some interesting conflicts between Mr. Shimon's testimony and Mr. Lappin's testimony, and between the testimony of Mr. Shimon and other policemen who have testified.

Lappin last night denied he ever shadowed Senator Brewster.

He said he had contacted the committee and emphasized he hoped to appear voluntarily. He said he had not been served with a subpena.

Shimon has told the committee, according to Chairman Pepper (D., Fla.) that the telephones of multimillionaire Howard Hughes were tapped in 1947 to check on Lappin as Brewster's "shadow."

Said Lappin last night:

"The whole thing's a lie. It's made of whole cloth.

"I never followed Brewster. I did not do so for Hughes; I did not do so for any of his associates.

"This whole thing is a joke.

"I know Howard Hughes," said Lappin. "His wealth is estimated at $237 million. Don't you think a man of that wealth would hire the best detective agency in the world rather than somebody like me?

"Why, I'd lose myself if I ever tried to follow anyone," he asserted. "This guy Shimon's in a helluva mess. . . ."

Lappin described himself as a publicist for several industrial concerns.

tempts to keep a stiff upper lip.

Helena, the 6-year-old, came to visit her mother and Mrs. Corbin tried to explain why she could not stay with the girl. It's hard for a little girl to understand if she "is 6 and going to school this year."

Helena turned pale, obviously holding back the tears. Then they came as she wept quietly.

A relative came over. "Don't cry. You'll make mommy sick."

Mommy was already crying. "You're going to be a good girl," was all she could say.

She held out a piece of tissue and both wiped away the tears. Hazel, the 11-year-old eldest, dug out a nickel and offered it to Helena.

Then as the girl patted away the "wrinkles" in her starched green and white dress, the mother gave her a hug and murmured, "Bye, honey."

As the girl walked out with her cousin, the mother covered her face with her hands and wept unabashedly. A hardened newspaper photographer standing by wiped away a few tears, too.

When the Wrights arrived with the twins, whom they had picked up from a relative in Manassas, the scene was repeated. Mrs. Corbin walked over to the twins, being held by her husband, and gave each a kiss.

Her brother-in-law, Bernard, noted, "As many as she's got, she finds time to love 'em all."

The twins' father, asked if he would like some help with the pair, declared firmly, "I'll hold them till the world comes to an end."

A few minutes later, they left with their mother for Charlottesville, 117 miles away.

Martin Urges Speedy Use Of Controls

Republican Senator Martin last night urged President Truman to invoke wage-price controls speedily and "clear across the board" if Congress grants the authority.

The Pennsylvania Senator spoke out as a Senate-House conference committee on anti-inflation legislation remained deadlocked on the issue of whether to give Mr. Truman a free hand to impose such controls and rationing.

Several members of the committee have predicted a compromise will be worked out by the group Tuesday. There likewise have been forecasts that all authority for wage-price-rationing curbs will be wiped out of the legislation if the deadlock cannot be broken at that meeting.

"Unless controls are put into effect at once, clear across the board we will have a race between prices and wages that will mean a dangerous inflation," Martin said in a broadcast transcribed for Pennsylvania radio stations.

The Senate passed a home front mobilization bill which would require the President to invoke wage-price controls together and all along the line if he imposed them at all.

The House measure, on the other hand, permits the use of such controls on a selective basis in advance of any overall program.

The Administration has made it plain that it favors the House provision, which would clear the way for selective controls.

Impounding Of Any Spanish Loan Is Hinted

By The Associated Press

Lawmakers heard yesterday that President Truman may impound the proposed $62,500,000 loan to Spain if Congress approves it finally as a part of the $35,554,000,000 appropriation bill.

An Administration lieutenant who asked not to be quoted by name told a reporter he would not be surprised if the President acts to block a financial aid transaction which he has publicly condemned.

Secretary of State Acheson has criticised the Spanish government as failing to give its people democratic civil liberties and Mr. Truman was quoted last week by Senators as roundly condemning the loan proposal.

Backers of the legislation argue that Spain is stragetically important to Western defense, that she is a strict foe of communism who probably would support us if war came.

Congress already has approved the principle of the transaction. The House voted 165 to 90 to make $62,500,000 available to Spain. The Senate previously had voted, 65 to 15, for a 100-million-dollar loan.

The difference in figures will be at issue in the Senate today when that body takes up the $35,554,000,000 bill for final action expected to send it to the President before nightfall.

boat at 1:30 p. m. James O'Keefe was steering.

At 2:30, Wood related, O'Keefe stood up, leaving the rudder free and the boat started zig-zagging. On one of the turns, all five occupants were shoved to one side, and the boat rolled over on its back.

"O'Keefe went down immediately and never came up," said Wood. "I dragged Mike Rizzo oyer to the boat. Sammy was already there."

Then he started for shore, about 40 feet away, Wood continued, with Garner thrashing along behind.

When he got to shore, Wood said, he turned to see Garner just a few feet from safety "fighting the water."

"I swam back and tried to get Garner," Wood went on. "I touched his hand but couldn't grab it as he went down."

Mrs. Julian Garner, the victim's wife, said her husband was a native of Fairfax, Va. He served four years in the Army in World War II, part of it in the European theater. They had no children.

Viet Nam Asks For U.S. Arms To Equip Army

Paris, Aug. 27 (U.P.). — Premier Tran Van Huu of the Indo-Chinese state of Viet Nam appealed today for American arms to equip a strong native army.

With American guns, planes and tanks, the premier said, a Viet Nam fighting force can be built up to take over from the French the five year long struggle against Ho Chi Minh's red guerillas.

The premier said an American decision to arm the Viet Namese would serve two purposes:

1. The 150,000 French troops, the hard core of France's regular army, who have been tied down in Indo-China, would be released; and,

2. A national army, Viet Nam's own, would inspire not only the people of Indo-China, but the other peoples of vital southeast Asia in the war against communism.

"Viet Nam wants to become a truly independent State, but it cannot be genuinely independent so long as its soil is occupied by French troops." Tran said.

The United States already has pledged $23,500,000 of economic aid to the French-sponsored Viet Nam government, and is reported ready to ante up another 200 million dollars for arms and equipment for the new state.

Premier Tran said in an exclusive interview that negotiations with the United States for arms aid are making good progress and hat he hoped to sign an agreement with United States Minister Donald Heath when he returns to Indo-China.

Defenseless Washington

Never has the ridiculousness of the absentee government of Washington been better demonstrated than in the action of the House in cutting District civil defense from $290,000 to $30,000. Washington wants to spend its own money to prepare itself against disaster, and the money is in the District treasury, but the House, like an exasperated parent, says no. Hence, Washington may be doomed to have a director of civil defense with nothing to direct. Indeed, just to do the job up brown, the Appropriations Committee also did a bit of legislating on another point in the District budget. It eliminated all funds for child day care centers—an item of increasing importance in the emergency—after Congress had specifically voted to continue them for three years. These absurdities ought to be pressed home to every Congressman who still doubts that home rule is necessary.

That the cut in civil defense was made blindly is virtually admitted by Chairman Bates of the Appropriations Subcommittee. He is quoted as remarking: "So far as I'm concerned, they've got all they're going to get. I've made no study of civilian defense, but I don't think we ought to ask District taxpayers to spend money until we know we need it." (Italics ours.) This, we submit, ought to go down in the books as a prize example of burying one's head in the sand. When will Mr. Bates be convinced that the money is needed—after the bombs have hit?

Purge In Bulgaria

Apparently the purge of the Communist Party in the European satellite countries has taken on the character and something like the proportions of the great Soviet purges of the later 1930s. In Bulgaria, for example, some 92,000 persons were expelled from the party between January and June of this year. In other words, the Bulgarian purge has already accounted for about one fourth of the entire membership of the party.

Most of the victims of the purge, it may be presumed, are now dead or in jail or dragging out their lives in forced labor camps. They have been described in the party press as remnants of the "Kostov gang," and indeed most of them seem to have been party functionaries of various ranks who owed their appointments and power to Traicho Kostov during his tenure as secretary-general of the Bulgarian Communist Party and vice premier of the republic. Kostov was hanged last December at Sofia for various alleged crimes against the state, including sabotage, espionage and conspiracy with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia to deliver Bulgaria to the Anglo-American imperialist warmongers.

It has likewise been noted that many victims of the purge have been, like Kostov himself, veterans of the Communist movement in the Balkans. These included some of Kostov's former colleagues on the Bulgarian politbureau, and some army generals and one-time partisan leaders. In this respect, too, the pattern of the Russian purges—which ended with the virtual extermination of the "Old Bolsheviks" of 1917—has apparently been followed.

The party ranks depleted by the grandiose purge are apparently being filled by recruits drawn largely from the younger elements of the peasantry. The greater part of them appear to be imperfectly "developed," as the phrase goes, as is shown by the large numbers still attending the party schools of indoctrination. Most new party officials are also peasants. These facts are doubtless related to the program of the Chervenkov government for the rapid and complete collectivization of Bulgarian agriculture, which has apparently been meeting the same passive but stubborn peasant resistance that it has encountered in all other countries where it has been attempted. Meanwhile, an effort is being made to blame the deficiencies of Bulgarian industry upon the machinations of the liquidated Kostovists.

The underlying motive of the Balkan purges is not altogether clear. Beyond any doubt they were accomplished on stern orders from Moscow. That some of the Balkan parties were infected with Titoism is not at all improbable. What is even more probable is that there existed within the party ranks a strong opposition to the program of immediate collectivization. But neither of these factors, nor both together, suffice to explain the scale of the purges.

A possible explanation is that the Kremlin has decided that the type of Communist bred by the party in the years between 1917 and 1945 is now an anachronism. There is good reason for believing that in countries where the Communist revolution has been accomplished, Stalin and the Cominform prefer to deal with post-revolutionary types—with the sort of Communist who, though he may be weak on dialectic, is strong in blind obedience to orders.

Matthews Vs. Acheson

The acerb and unfortunate exchange between Mr. Francis P. Matthews, Secretary of the Navy, and Mr. Dean Acheson, Secretary of State, supported by the President, serves to emphasize the cleavage within the Government between the strategic disciples of Mr. James Burnham and those of Mr. George F. Kennan, to which we called attention in these columns last March 25.

The difference between these schools is, to be sure, one of means rather than of ends; both wish to deliver the non-Communist world from any further danger of aggression by the Kremlin or its satellites. The Burnhamites, however, accept the view set forth in Mr. Burnham's book, The Coming Defeat of Communism, that the deliverance can be accomplished only by the forcible destruction or total collapse of the Soviet regime. According to this view, the Communist Party, inside and outside of Russia, has been continuously at war with the governments and peoples of the West since early in 1944. When this fact and its corollaries are recognized by the enemies of communism, Stalin will lose the great advantage he has so long possessed. This advantage consists in his power of initiative. Up to now, Stalin—so runs the argument—has been able to call the shots where and when he chooses.

There is no doubt that the Burnhamites feel that their argument has been greatly strengthened by the events in Korea. For the United States the Korean war is an example of what the military textbooks call "peripheral defense." It presents formidable problems of logistics, involving the transport of troops and equipment over thousands of miles of ocean. For the Communists, however, there are no such problems, since Communist Korea borders upon Communist Manchuria and Communist Siberia, which is to say upon the Communist "heartland."

And even (say the Burnhamites) if the Korean Communists are defeated and driven back beyond the thirty-eighth parallel, Stalin will retain the initiative. He will have committed none of his own forces, will have sacrificed nothing except a few tanks and a few altogether expendable political commissars, and will have lost none of his power to order a fresh irruption at some other point upon the globe. Victory in Korea, then, will be like the victory of the Berlin airlift—a brilliant and costly technical achievement, but in no way impairing Stalin's initiative and in no way disturbing the Soviet pattern of power in Europe and Asia.

An outright war with Russia (it is argued) would at least enable the West to choose the battleground most advantageous to itself. Just where this battleground is supposed to lie is, of course, merely a matter of conjecture, as far as most of us are concerned. Doubtless, however, it would be somewhere in Europe; perhaps Mr. Churchill's "soft underbelly," a terrain no worse than the Korean mountains. At any rate, when Mr. Matthews in Boston last Friday asserted that we must be prepared to pay any price for peace, "even the price of instituting a war to compel cooperation for peace," he was undoubtedly reflecting the opinion of many minds in the Pentagon.

Against this doctrine, of course, is the Kennanist policy of "containment," that is of localized resistance to any and all further attempts at Communist aggression—a policy which has been supplemented to take in "the building up of situations of strength." This policy does not deny the danger of a general war with communism, but it does not recognize a war as inevitable or demonstrably necessary. Behind it appears to be a well-founded belief that "wars to compel peace" or to destroy the possibility of aggression seldom accomplish their purposes, and are as often as not productive of evils greater than those they are intended to eradicate.

Of this the recent war surely affords an example. It also affords an illustration of the fallacy that military considerations are more important in the development of policy than political ends. Most of the political concessions made to Russia in the course of that war appear to have been based upon high military opinion that the war could not be won without Russian assistance. It is, of course, the statesmen rather than the military who must take responsibility for the mistakes, but it ought at least to be remembered that most of the mistakes, such as those of Tehran and Yalta, were predicated upon military advice.

No one, of course, disputes Mr. Matthews' right as a citizen to say what he said at Boston. Whether he was well advised to do so while remaining a member of the Administration is another matter. Up to now the formal policy of the Administration has been "containment." The chief result of the controversy between Messrs. Matthews and Acheson, therefore, has been to increase the confusion and bewilderment already existing in the popular mind.

Excess Profits

Senator George threatens to hold up the interim tax bill if the Senate passes an amendment to it providing for an excess profits tax. He warns that the Finance Committee would have to hold hearings and study any such proposal before taking the bill into conference. That means that passage of the pending tax bill would be delayed indefinitely. It is to be hoped, therefore, that the Senate will resist the temptation to curry favor with organized labor and other pressure groups and reject the excess profits tax rider.

The interim bill, contrary to assertions of some advocates of excess profits taxation, increases the tax burdens of corporations as well as individuals. Much more tax revenue is, of course, needed to finance extraordinary defense outlays, and Senator George is preparing to introduce new tax proposals at the next session of Congress. Meantime, prompt passage of the pending measure would act as a check on inflation, despite its restricted scope. Indiscriminate taxation is as disruptive from the economic viewpoint as indiscriminate budget-cutting, and the Finance Committee should be given an opportunity to study various types of excess profits taxation as well as alternative methods of raising revenue before any action is taken on proposals for raising additional revenue.

Capital Transit

Why has Capital Transit declared the largest quarterly dividend in its history immediately following a rate increase necessitated by a sharp decline in earnings? The answer given by a spokesman for the company is that the higher dividend is justified by the additional earnings from the recent rate increase. The company's July earnings statement (not yet released) will throw some light on the effect of fare increases, but obviously it will be some time before the full effect of those increases can be gauged. Furthermore, if the request of the Potomac Electric Power Co. for an increase of 70 percent in its charges for electricity furnished Capital Transit should be granted, about a third of the net income from higher fares would be absorbed. Until this pending rate case is decided, therefore, the transit company cannot rely on an anticipated increase in earnings to maintain higher dividends. That uncertainty makes its precipitate action all the more puzzling.

However, the public should not jump to the conclusion that the recent increase in fares was unwarranted, for the record showed that current earnings were insufficient to produce a fair return on capital investment. Moreover, the company will be able to present a strong case for another fare hike if operating costs, including charges for electricity, are substantially increased. Only confusion results from a failure to recognize that the rate of return on the investment, not the amount paid out in dividends, determines whether fares are too high or too low.

If earnings disappoint expectations, Capital Transit could draw on its earned surplus for funds required to pay larger dividends. Last year a minority group of stockholders urged the company to use its free surplus to buy in and retire the shares of stock subsequently sold to a Florida group by the North American Co. A spokesman for the petitioners pointed out that dividends had been cut or passed year after year while earnings were being ploughed back into the system for the benefit of the public. This conservative dividend policy, he alleged, had depressed the market price of the stock below its true value. Notwithstanding these protests, the sale was consummated and control of the company passed to a small group of Floridians for a cash outlay not as large as the company's unobligated cash surplus.

Through a liberal dividend policy, these absentee shareholders can obtain funds that might come in handy to pay interest on the money they borrowed to finance their stock purchases. Large dividends also make Capital Transit stock more attractive to other investors, help to boost its market price and facilitate conversion of paper profits into actual capital gains. We do not know, of course, whether the liberalized dividend policy of the new management will result in a drain on accumulated surpluses. That depends on future dividend policy and future earnings. But it is not necessary to peer into the future to find flaws in a regulatory system that permits a few nonresidents to acquire control of a local public utility whose free assets, available for payment of dividends, exceed the amount of cash expended to obtain control.

Tennis Crown

The rise of professional tennis has not dimmed the luster of the amateur game, though it has thinned out the players available to the American selectors for Davis Cup competition. For instance, Gonzales took up professional tennis soon after he won the single championship last year, so that he could not be drawn upon to help defend the international trophy in this year's tourney. However, the experts wonder whether any combination could have prevented the Australians from taking home the Davis Cup. They had brought over one of the youngest teams in tennis history, all compact of dash and brilliance, and sustained by the leadership and court craftiness of Bromwich, who was a member of the winning team from "down under" 11 years ago.

There was no denying the Australian bid at Forest Hills. And their victory is an extremely popular one with both players and fans in this country, for the Australians at home, as Schroeder said on Saturday, have shown American victors much generosity and hospitality. In their triumph on Saturday they found the Americans equally lavish with their felicitations. Tennis is a noble game which in international competition is free from bickering and bad feeling, and is thus a tie of international fellowship.

Phony Peace Appeal

The so-called World Peace appeal petition initiated in March in Stockholm speciously seeks to outlaw the atomic bomb as an instrument of warfare. This appeal is a spurious Communist propaganda device to divide and delude the peoples of the free nations by playing on their genuine revulsion from the nature of the weapons that modern science has devised.

At the same time, it is vital to stress that its Communist origin is not the sole or even the strongest reason why the appeal should be rejected and discredited. For it is in fact an empty gesture, ineffectual alike for the prevention of war or the mitigation of its horrors.

The appeal is patently not a sincere proposal for genuine disarmament. It deliberately omits any provision for the enforcement of any degree of general disarmament. It speaks of international control, but it evades any measures for international inspection or effective enforcement. It is restricted to atomic weapons. It is silent as to any over-all limitation in standing armies, submarines, airplanes, non-atomic bombs, guns, warships, and poison gas, to say nothing of bacteriological warfare.

The degree to which this appeal is blatantly insincere is manifest in the fact that, while the United States is superior to Russia in the development and stockpiling of atomic weapons, Russia is overwhelmingly superior in the size of its armies and the number of its submarines and airplanes. In other words, the only disarmament which the appeal calls for is the only weapon with which the United States offsets the vast preponderance of Russian manpower and armament in being.

We, therefore, call upon all our fellow-beings to reject the appeal unqualifiedly and to push forward with the utmost vigor through the United Nations, in cooperation with other peace-loving nations, in the search for a workable basis for honest disarmament, not restricted to atomic weapons.

Inevitable War

Mr. George F. Kennan, retiring State Department counselor, was reported in your August 23 issue as having warned "against the mistake of 'regarding war as inevitable and thereby writing off the chances of peace.'"

Much to my regret I must disagree with his thesis most emphatically. The immutable law of red nazism, according to Lenin and Stalin, is that war is absolutely "unavoidable," to use their own term. Since the very beginning of the Soviet misrule in 1917 this has been reiterated time and again. It is in the writings of Lenin and Stalin for all to see and heed, if we know what is good for us. The only way a catastrophic war between the Soviet slave citadel and free nations will be avoided is if and when the long-suffering Russian peoples rise and overthrow their present government.

We of the free world can and must contribute much toward that goal. The Soviet government has been laboring assidiously ever since 1917 to bring about the destruction of the free governments of the world and has made no bones about it. We have been handling this with kid gloves and to a certain degree still do.

It will not be accomplished by letting the Soviet phonographs in the United Nations to use the international platform for their nefarious propaganda. The refusal of the New York and Boston longshoremen to unload Soviet merchandise has done more toward boosting the morale of the masses behind the Iron Curtain against their governments than all the billions we have spent in Europe since the Marshall plan was announced.

Russian Strength

Perhaps the most overworked word today is the word propaganda, and propaganda itself is greatly overrated. People who think Russia has talked herself to where she is today have let their imagination blind them to the facts. Russia owes her power to her strategic location and to the fact that she is bigger and more ruthless than her neighbors.

Some of our columnists point out the mistakes we made at Yalta and the other conferences. I do not think our representatives were out-talked or outmaneuvered. We simply did not have the power then to compel Russia to make concessions anymore than we have had the power since to make her keep the commitments she did make.

It will take more than propaganda to get us out of the mess we are in in the East. Win or lose, the war in Korea will not settle anything. The time has come to tell Russia that we cannot fight her on her own ground, or contain her in her own boundaries, but, if necessary, we can and will blast her cities, towns and factories to pieces with our atom bombs.

June, 1940—June, 1950

Mr. Browdy's letter in your issue of August 20, points to a striking parallel between September 1, 1939 and June 25, 1950. On both occasions, the aggressors resorted to the "big lie" that they were only defending themselves. This is the old story of the flagrantly guilty protesting their innocence. Let us indeed "exploit the dismal parallel." But there is also another which we might fruitfully examine.

We could profit by comparing June, 1940, and June, 1950. At both times a great awakening took place in the American mind. The 1940 awakening resulted from Hitler's defeat of the democratic allies in France and the Low Countries. Paris was lost to the barbarians and only the miracle of Dunkirk saved the British and us. Americans began to look the danger in the face and to slowly untie the hands of our Government so that it could take proper action. Let some competent historian review that period for us now.

History repeats itself, not like an idiot, but like an artist. Therefore we need imagination to detect the common theme in spite of the variations. We are not now preparing for a presidential election, as we were in 1940. With the isolationism of that year swept into history's dustbin, we are part of the United Nations. Our eyes are turned not only towards Europe, but also towards Asia. The differences between 1940 and 1950 are immense. But there are similarities.

In 1940 our President had to defend himself against the "rotten" charge of desiring to "plow under every fourth American boy," while today our President finds it necessary to denounce the same kind of "contemptible statement" against his Secretary of State. The question arises today, as it did in 1940; which will gain the upper hand, the idiocy of partisan politics or the wise statesmanship called for by the times? SIDNEY KORETZ.

Shipbuilding Profits

The late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in one of his famous fireside chats solemnly promised the American taxpayer, just after Pearl Harbor, that during World War II, he would personally see to it that "no additional millionaires would be created."

Shipyards, which were not privately owned, were built, equipped and otherwise completely financed by the taxpayer's money, including the salary of every employe in the yard. In other words, every employe from the yard president down was on the Government payroll. The maximum allowable salary, established by Congress and increased by that body when income taxes were increased was $25,000 per year for the yard president. In addition he had an unlimited expense account which was not audited in Washington but in Atlanta, Ga., where the account was never questioned but paid at once in full. Moreover, these presidents and vice presidents were permitted to be presidents and vice presidents of other yards, and for government-owned plants. Some of these men were drawing as much as $100,000 annual salaries in spite of the fact that we do have a law which prohibits any person from drawing salaries on two different Government payrolls.

Now, all of the foregoing we can understand because presumably they were men of outstanding abilities. What people did object to was the fees paid for each vessel completed in yards which were entirely owned by the Government. The little cliques which were running these yards, and others, were paid without one cent of investment, $165,000 per ship. When the negotiation law was enacted, the above figure was cut down to $135,000 per ship. However, the Maritime Commission then turned around and allowed these cliques $15,000 for launching expenses and $15,000 for delivery expenses, which made a joke of the law and brought back the total figure to $165,000.

In the California shipyard on Terminal Island, over 400 vessels were completed. These cliques were permitted to invest 65 percent of that money in tax-exempt Government bonds. Now, no amount of talking or explaining could convince anyone that those ships would not have been completed without the payment of these handouts.

Incidentally, when World II broke out, Great Britian confiscated all available vessels of all nationalities anywhere in the world. The British paid the owners of these vessels a nominal charter hire and carried their own marine insurance on these vessels. When this country entered the war, the War Shipping Administration took over about 70 percent of the ships England confiscated. But why is it that we had to pay Great Britain several times the charter hire she was paying the owners of these ships?

I realize that we have a statute of limitations, the purpose of the foregoing is to help prevent making the same stupid mistakes we made during World War II.

The Battalion

WITH THE U. S. FORCES IN KOREA: Over Baker Company's command post persimmon grove overlooking No Man's Land, dusk was already falling and there was a sharp rattle of small arms fire from the South Koreans defending the mountain crest far above.

"It sure sounds good," said one officer at length. "But it makes me mad when their tanks won't come up far enough. I like to get them with bazookas."

Here was the heart of the matter. The whole little valley had been efficiently transformed into a grim trap for the enemy armor and infantry that had to come this way to gain the main road to the South Korean provisional capital, Taegu. In a few minutes, just as we reached the battalion command post in a rocky gully, the enemy announced his intention to test the trap. There was a loud whistling sound and a tremendous crash on the flank above. Colonel Check, sitting on a rock in a tangle of telephones, grunted happily.

"That's the mortar preparation," he said. "We ought to clobber them tonight."

Darkness fell. Whistling and crashing of the incoming mortar went on interminably. Suddenly the radio, astonishingly clear, spoke insistently. "Able Charlie to Amazing Able, over. Able Charlie to Amazing Able, over. It was Charlie Company, two hours' time up this mountain, reporting both that the telephone line was out and that there was noise of tanks at the end of the valley. Capt. John L. Beard, the liaison officer of the Eighth Field Artillery, called his forward observers, got an estimate of nine tanks and much enemy infantry, and then directed his rearward batteries of 105-millimeter howitzers onto the target. Our guns commenced a slower whistling and a more distant booming. The battle was joined.

WITH INFINITE incident, with endless uncertainty, the fighting continued all through the night. At one moment the South Koreans on the mountain crest called for support, and our big mortars spoke. At another, the forward observers reported a tentative enemy advance. Colonel Check ordered flares, and as our firing testified, the attackers hastily retired, peevishly blasting away with their flat trajectory guns. Linesmen went out to repair broken communications among the dark precipices. Runners came and went. The noise of fighting rose and fell.

Yet not even the wisest was sure what was happening—whether the artillery really had knocked out its target; whether the enemy really had turned back or were creeping across the rice paddies; whether the South Koreans still really held the mountain crest on the exposed flank. In night fighting, an infantry battalion is like an organist with an inadequate central nervous system, which survives because all its well-trained members rapidly and correctly react to local stimuli.

The time for these reactions to be fully tested came at last, about 3:30 a. m., after a long lull. Suddenly the forward observers reported the enemy's full advance. They had passed the crossroads. They had passed the village of Charpyongdong. They were still coming on, and two tanks were already within Charlie Company's perimeter. While Capt. Beard's artillery roared away and the enemy answered, the men of the First Battalion held their fire until the flare went up.

There followed a curious coughing crash from all our mortars, all our tanks; then after a few minutes, an explosion like a giant firecracker blowing off; and after that, for half an hour, the wild rattle of machine-gun and rifle fire. At 5 a. m., when the pale dawn was just beginning, the whole North Korean force took flight. The battle was over. In the command post, men lay down to doze on the hard rocks.

THE SUN was hardly up, however, when Colonel Check set off to find the results of the night. A confusion of wrecked and smoking vehicles with two tanks among them, just where the road emerged from Charpyongdong, announced the artillery's success. By the stream, where they and their men were happily shaving, Lieut. Jesse F. Vansant of "Alma" and Sergt. Howard Ezell of "Ida" (all our armor bears incongruously girlish names) told how they had got three more of the enemy's tanks at point-blank range, while the bazooka man picked off a big self-propelled gun. The three rifle companies reported few casualties, but when the colonel went further forward there were North Korean bodies sprawling everywhere in the rice paddies. Five tanks, the guns, the road trucks, several hundred dead—the night's score was good. The trap had worked. The immediate commentary was "supplies" by Capt. L. V. Merchant, whose Fox Company of the Second Battalion had shared the enemy's infantry attack with Baker Company of our battalion.

"Colonel Check, sir," said Merchant, grinning triumphantly, "I want you to tell Baker Company that their machine-gunning was beautiful, just beautiful. He left arms and weapons and ammunition all over those damn rice paddies. It was just beautiful." You form, it seems, a new but understandable concept of beauty in the infantry.

Thoughts For A Korean Settlement

UNTIL now the Chinese government in Peiping has remained very much in the background of the Korean war. In fact some observers have wondered, I think erroneously, whether the Red Chinese were fully consulted by the Russians before North Korea was directed to attack, and whether the Chinese may not be sulking in their tents, annoyed because the Soviet action in Korea provoked the United States to intervene in Formosa and thus to deprive them of their chance to make an easy capture of the island.

Now, however, there are signs that the Peiping government is beginning to play a bigger and more active role in the Far East. This increasing activity coincides with the growing probability that the North Korean offensive has failed in its objective—namely which was to reach a military decision that would enable the Communists to dictate the future of Korea. The alternatives now are a long hard war or a negotiated settlement. A long war is almost certain to involve China and a settlement must interest China.

As the Chinese come forward more and more, we shall, I think, see that the Chinese interest in Korea is at least as great as the Russian, and that an understanding about Korea was already implied, indeed almost declared, in the Soviet-Chinese treaty signed in the Kremlin on February 14.

THE CRUCIAL sentence of the treaty says in its somewhat clumsy English translation that Russia and China "undertake jointly to take all the necessary measures at their disposal for the purpose of preventing a repetition of aggression and violation of peace on the part of Japan or any other state which should unite with Japan, directly or indirectly, in acts of aggression." This says that they are going to prevent a repetition of aggression by Japan or any state united even indirectly with Japan. The word "repetition" takes on great significance—so it seems to me—if we study what happened in Korea on June 25, 1950, in the light of the more than three centuries of conflict over Korea between China and Japan.

The geographical position of the Korean peninsula is such that Japan and China have always had, and are bound always to have, a vital interest in it. Korea dominates the sea, the land, and also the air communication between Japan on the one hand, Manchuria and North China on the other. The Sino-Japanese war of 1894 was fought about Korea, and it was the Japanese victory in that war which gave Japan its base on the mainland, confirmed by the Japanese victory over Russia in 1904, for the penetration of Manchuria and North China.

IN THE eyes of the Chinese "a repetition" of Japanese aggression means the return of Japan to Korea. For that is the gateway, indeed the only gateway, through which Japan can expand into the mainland of Asia. Furthermore, though China and Russia have great conflicts of interest over Manchuria and inner Asia, they have a common interest as against Japan in Korea and in the Liaotung peninsula, which is just across the Yalu River on the northern border of Korea. Russia and China have never fought each other. Both have fought Japan separately to expel her from the mainland—in 1894 and in 1904—and then they have fought jointly against Japan in the Second World War.

The Soviet-Chinese treaty of last February says that they will take all the necessary measures at their disposal for the purpose of preventing "a repetition" of Japanese aggression. In Chinese eyes the South Korean government would be a dependency of the power that occupies Japan and exercises temporarily Japanese sovereignty; the dissolution of the South Korean state "by all the necessary measures at their disposal"—namely, by the North Korean army—would be an action, contemplated by the Soviet treaty, to prevent a repetition of Japanese expansion, with American backing, into Asia.

IF THIS reading, or perhaps I should say this deciphering, of the relation between China and Russia is correct, then it is a mistake to assume, as I think we do, that Russia alone is interested in Korea while China is interested in Formosa. If one studies the geography and the history of Korea and Formosa, the conclusion is inescapable, I think, that China's interest in Korea is very much greater than her interest in Formosa.

In the hands of Chiang, Formosa has a large nuisance value against the Chinese Communist regime. But the destiny of China has never been, and could not possibly be, greatly affected from Formosa. But Korea is the strategical centerpiece where the vital interests of China, Soviet Asia, and Japan meet in the Far East.

IT IS interesting to remember that until June 25, when this country's honor was challenged by naked aggression against the authority of the United Nations, those who were most concerned with American interests in the Far East were thinking about Formosa and Japan, not about Korea and Japan. As we work out our policy, it will be well to realize that our stake in Korea is one of honor and high principle and not of vital American national interest.

Those who have a permanent vital national interest in the future of Korea are, besides the Koreans themselves, their three immediate neighbors, the Japanese, the Chinese, and the Russians. As respects a long-range settlement in Korea, we are involved not as principals but as a member of the United Nations and also, as a trustee of those legitimate Japanese interests in Korea which Japan herself, being disarmed, is unable to protect.

IN MAKING plans for a long-range settlement we must not let our feelings warp our judgment. We made that mistake in 1945 when we disarmed Japan with such excessive thoroughness: our fury against the Japanese caused us to deny that Japan has a permanent and essential part to play in the Far East.

Now we are angry at the Chinese and furious with the Russians. We had to be furious with the Russians as we had to be furious with the Japanese. But we do not have to be as unwise politically about the Russians as we were about the Japanese. Let us try, if we can, to be wise enough to know that Korea and Japan and China and Russia will all still be there in the Far East when we who make speeches and write articles are dead and forgotten, and that in a long-range settlement it is the enduring interests of nations that have to be taken into account.

64th Day of Fighting

Summary of Steps Taken by Armed Services To Meet Manpower Needs of Korean War

Yesterday the war in Korea passed its 64th day and its demand for men had become focused on practically every home in America.

Already the armed forces were aiming at increasing their manpower from 1,400,000 to 2,400,000 by next June.

All the Marine Corps' 80,000 ground reserves were alerted for the call to service no later than next July. Four divisions, two combat teams and unknown numbers of National Guard supporting units were under orders for induction. The Navy and the Air Force had reached deep into their reserves and, like their sister services, were preparing to reach even deeper.

The draft had been revived with a call, so far, for 100,000 men. And the end was nowhere in sight.

Most reserve officers and men of all three services could count on being called to active duty sooner or later, but nobody could be sure when the call would come or absolutely sure it would reach him at all. Events had moved swiftly since the black hour of 4 a. m. June 25 when North Korean Communist troops, armed, equipped and trained by Soviet Russia, plunged south across the thirty-eighth parallel.

Truman's Order Of June 27

Two days later, on June 27, President Truman announced, "I have ordered United States air and sea forces to give Korean government troops cover and support." But that proved not enough.

The first United States infantry was flown to Korea July 2 and moved immediately into battle. Despite their sense of relief that definite action finally had supplanted long suspense, Americans wondered if and when the action might reach out and touch them personally.

Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson already had reassured them. He said on June 28 that it was not contemplated to call reserve components to active duty in the foreseeable future or to ask for application of the draft.

Six days later, on July 4, the Air Force called to active duty an unspecified number of electronics specialists. Nine days after Johnson's assurance, the President ordered expansion of the armed forces and use of the draft.

Since then activation of reserve and National Guard units has gone ahead steadily, training camps have been reopened, and unorganized reservists of all services have been called to active duty with or without their consent. The Defense Department long ago drew its curtain of military secrecy across numbers and units, but a few facts are available.

Steps Taken by Army

The Army has taken the following action:

July 8—Called for enlisted reservists to volunteer for the duration with a one-year minimum. Most urgently needed were radar, radio, tank and antiaircraft artillery mechanics, engineer heavy equipment operators, cryptographic technicians and engineer construction specialists.

July 10—Called on selective service for immediate drafting of 20,000 men, 19 to 26, with veterans of World War II deferred for the time being. This call later was expanded to 100,000 men to be drafted by the end of October.

July 21—Began calling nondivisional National Guard and Organized Reserve units into Federal service. While no list of these units is available, their character may be determined by the fact that in the District a radar maintenance unit, a truck company, two military police battalions and an antiaircraft artillery group have been called from the guard and an engineer construction battalion from the reserve.

July 25—Asked voluntary return to extended active duty of company-grade officers in 16 arms and services with priority need for medical and dental officers, engineers and infantry.

July 26—Asked voluntary return to active duty of Women's Army Corps officers and enlisted women.

July 31—Ordered reserve officers on extended active duty retained indefinitely. Of the 45,251 non-regular officers on extended active duty last March 31, 39,000 would have been eligible for relief during 1951.

July 31—Called up four National Guard infantry divisions, the 28th (Pennsylvania), 40th (California), 45th (Oklahoma), and 43d (New England), and the 196th Regimental Combat Team (South Dakota) and the 278th RCT (Tennessee).

August 2—Offered veterans of units in the Far East, either in the reserves or not, an opportunity to volunteer for service with their old units.

August 4—Ordered involuntary recall to active duty of 62,000 enlisted reservists, all to be in service by mid-October. The 190,000 enlisted reservists include those serving under the draft act of 1948, who will be called on the same basis as veterans of World War II.

August 9—Called for voluntary recruitment of 650 nurses, 70 dietitians, 40 physical therapists join the Army Nurse Corps and 65 occupational therapists to the Women's Medical Specialist Corps.

August 11—Ordered involuntary recall to active duty of 7862 company grade reserve officers in the combat arms and 1582 officers in the medical and dental services.

August 18—Ordered involuntary recall of 570 company-grade officers of the engineer reserve. The same day inactive and volunteer women reserves were invited to return to active duty in the WAC.

August 24—Announced recall of an additional 47,000 male enlisted reservists, bringing the total to be placed on active duty by October 25 to 109,000.

August 25—Asked Congress for authority to draft doctors, dentists and other scientific and professional men.

Action by Navy

The Navy:

July 7—Announced voluntary recall of commissioned and enlisted reserves.

July 14—Announced that 140 enlisted reservists (exclusive of air personnel) had been accepted for active duty, 57 enlisted members of the air reserve had requested active duty, and 1472 reserve officers had requested active duty.

July 19—Announced that naval reserve nurses with minor dependents were ineligible for active duty.

July 20—Announced immediate recall of "several" organized air reserve units.

July 26—Asked reserve chaplains under 50 and in the grade of lieutenant commander and below to volunteer for active duty.

July 28—Announced drive to recruit 70,000 Seabees as a standby reserve, not for immediate active duty.

August 4—Froze all regular and reserve enlistments for 12 months and announced partial removal on its ban on new reserve commissions for doctors, dentists, nurses, medical interns, medical and dental students and electronics specialists.

August 8—Halted voluntary separation from service of regular, reserve and temporary officers. The Navy expected to hold onto 1700 officers next year by this method.

August 15—Announced a policy of handling reservists' requests for delay in recall to active duty on an individual basis.

The Marine Corps:

July 12—Called for volunteers, especially veterans, to fill the gap between enlistment and training of new recruits.

July 20—Ordered all Marine ground units into active service and called up an unspecified number of reserve air squadrons.

July 23—Called additional air reserve squadrons to active duty to bring regular squadrons to full strength.

August 8—Announced that all its 80,000 volunteer reserves (those not assigned to units) would be inducted, the first 50,000 by October 31.

August 18—Announced 2300 reserve ground officers would be called up by July, 1951, and 300 non-pilot air officers would be called at once.

August 18—Called for volunteer reserves, 18 to 32, for immediate extended active duty.

Air Force Calls

The Air Force:

July 4—Asked an unspecified number of reserve electronic specialists, officers and men, to volunteer for active duty.

July 7—Announced all its calls to active duty would be on a voluntary basis.

July 25—Issued instructions for involuntary recall of "selected" reservists, to and including the grade of captain, for specific nonpilot vacancies.

July 26—Announced limited voluntary and involuntary recall of reserve medical officers to fill specific vacancies.

July 28—Announced involuntary recall of 50 reserve chaplains under 42 in grades of first lieutenant and captain. Asked 300 volunteers for its chaplain reserve.

July 28—Announced women reserves (WAF), both commissioned and enlisted, would be recalled involuntarily under the same proceedures applying to male reservists.

August 2—Announced 495 positions in its Judge Advocate General reserve open through grade of captain.

August 11—Announced it would need approximately 8000 reserve officers and 42,000 reserve airmen to meet "critical requirements." These reservists will be called voluntarily and involuntarily, the first increments to be inducted "by early fall."

August 20—The first induction of Air National Guard units was reported to be due "within the next week or 10 days."

UMT Again Proposed

In addition to these moves affecting reservists of all the service and young men eligible for the draft, President Truman, Secretary of Defense Johnson and Congress brought forward again the often proposed and as often defeated program for universal military training.

Mr. Truman asked that it be studied and then threw cold water on the project by suggesting it would not be needed at once. Johnson urged its early enactment by Congress and Chairman Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee called hearings and predicted favorable action by Congress.

One very large class of citizens was left uncertain of its future—that comprising men who held Army of the United States commissions during World War II who had been separated and joined no reserve component. The Judge Advocate General of the Army, late last month, gave it as his opinion that "most" of these former officers were subject to recall when and if needed.

Commissions Differ

Further investigation brought out that these officers were commissioned under one of two laws. The great majority received their commissions under the National Defense Act of 1920, which obligated them to serve until six months after the "emergency."

The remainder were commissioned under a Joint Resolution of 1941, which obligated them to serve until six months after the end of "hostilities." The obligation of the latter was canceled in 1947 when Congress declared hostilities at an end.

The difficulty is that very few, if any, officers commissioned under these two laws know which one applies to them. The only way to determine, it appears, is on the basis of each individual case as it arises.

Pressman Admits Communist Membership Here in 1934-35

Lee Pressman former general counsel of the CIO, acknowledged last night that he was a member of "a Communist group" for about a year in 1934-35 during his Government service.

Pressman issued a statement on the eve of renewed questioning by the House Committee on Un-American Activities which has called him with the hope of getting "missing links" in the Hiss-Chambers case.

He is scheduled to appear before the committee at 10:30 today. His statement follows:

"A number of people have written and called me urging me to further clarify the position I took in my recent letter resigning from the American Labor Party. This, I decide to do, as well as take this opportunity to expose the many distortions which have been circulated regarding my past activities.

"A grave crisis confronts our Nation and all humanity. The warfare raging in Korea threatens to unleash a world conflict which would destroy our civilization. All my life I have opposed aggression. I therefore, denounce the fighting initiated by the North Korean forces in South Korea.

Opposes Communist Position

"The Communist Party and its forces in the labor movement are the supporters and apologists for an aggressive war. I vigorously oppose this position. I desire to support the United Nations and my country.

"It is my fervent hope that the United Nations can devise immediate steps which can bring about a quick end to the present bloodshed and assure world peace.

"There has been considerable speculation regarding my past activities. I believe it best to set forth certain simple facts which should clarify this situation.

"In the early 1930s our country was deep in a depression. The future looked black for my generations just emerging from school. At the same time the growing spectre of Nazism in Germany presented an equally grave threat. In my desire to see the distruction of Hitlerism and an improvement in economic conditions here at home, I joined a Communist group in Washington, D. C., about 1934. My participation in such group extended for one year. In the latter part of 1935, I left the Government service and Washington to reenter the private practice of law in New York City and discontinue any further participation in the group.

"I believe it of interest to comment that I have no knowledge regarding the political beliefs or affiliations of Alger Hiss. I do know that for the period of my participation he was not a member of that group.

"I call attention to the fact that on a previous appearance by me before the House Un-American Activities Committee, there occurred the following colloquy with Mr. Stripling, the committee's counsel, which appears at Page 1023 of the record of the proceedings of August 18, 1948:

"Pressman: 'Has there been any charge made by any witness that has appeared before this committee that I have participated in any espionage activity while an employe of the Federal Government or thereafter?'

"Stripling: 'No, there has not been.'

Explains CIO Resignation

"In 1936, I was appointed the general counsel of the CIO. In 1948, I resigned for reasons which I then publicly stated. Contrary to present misstatements of fact, that action was of my own accord attested to both by the letter of appreciation for my services given to me by the president of the CIO and that after my resignation I was reained to represent the CIO and Philip Murray in connection with their indictments under the infamous Taft-Hartley Act.

"My contribution to the cause of organized labor during that period is a matter of public record.

"But the future under present grave conditions, should be of paramount importance in the life of individuals as in the case of nations.

"The onrushing frightful conflict between ideological forces today threaten our destruction. We find the resurgence of Nazism assisted by the release of die-hard Nazis who were convicted of the most horrible crimes. We are confronted by the driving aggressive Communist attack.

"Each individual must constantly peer into his own conscience to evaluate his convictions upon which to base his faith and creed.

"I deeply appreciate that within our democratic way of life, when past beliefs prove false, there is the opportunity for change and to contribute in whatever manner possible toward the dignity and well being of man and the preservation of peace for all humanity.

Primary Victors

Rep. Regan And Rogers Win in Texas

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 27 (AP).—The only Democratic Congressman from Texas who had to fight for his renomination—Representative Ken Regan of Midland—won his fight and said he would be back in Washington Monday.

Regan defeated Paul Moss, wealthy Odessa oil and cattle man, in Saturday's second Democratic primary.

Texans also named another nominee for Congress, a new lieutenant governor, a State commissioner of agriculture and three high judgeships in State races.

Walter Rogers, Pampa attorney who calls himself a conservative Democrat and conducted an anti-Administration campaign, won the Congressional nomination from the Panhandle's Eighteenth District. He defeated Mrs. Altavene Clark, Government career woman who calls Amarillo her home.

Democratic nomination almost always is equal to election in Texas. However, Republicans are working hard for reelection of Texas' only GOP Congressman—Representative Ben Guill of Pampa—whom Rogers will have to face in November.

The new lieutenant governor is Ben Ramsey of San Augustine. He is a former State legislator and Secretary of State for Texas. He defeated Pierce Brooks, a Dallas insurance executive.

Communists Defy Los Angeles Regulation

Los Angeles, Aug. 27 (U.P.).—Los Angeles Communists refused yesterday to comply with a county ordinance requiring them to register with the sheriff's office.

The sheriff said he would wait until September 1 before making any arrests.

Burma Rebels Lose Town

Rangoon, Aug. 27 (AP).—The Burmese government today announced its troops have recaptured Kayan, 38 miles south of Rangoon, from rebel White Band units of the People's Volunteer Organization, who had occupied the town since August, 1948.

THE IVY LEAGUE MODEL . . . A NATURAL APPROACH TO FASHION

The Ivy League model is probably today's most important fashion, both with University men and business men because of the natural approach it takes to fashion.

There is practically no padding in the shoulders, the inner construction is soft, and the lines are straight-hanging. This is not only flattering but extremely comfortable because it eliminates that over-stuffed look and pinched-in feeling.

Yanks Win In 10th, 2-1, Trail Tigers by One Game

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

OF COURSE YOU could say that Ned Garver's hard luck began when kid-like, he let a part-time scout for the Browns talk him into signing with that organization back in 1944. Personal friendship swayed him, and he turned down offers from three other big league clubs.

Garver has won only nine, lost 14 for the Browns this year, but every pennant contender in the American League is eager to get its clutches on the medium-sized righthander. General Manager Billy Evans, of the Tigers, declared bluntly last June, "he's the best pitcher in our league."

Povich

If the fragrance of Garver's pitching has been wasted with the Browns, it hasn't gone unnoticed around the league otherwise. The Tigers, the Yankees and the Red Sox all were hopeful they could buy him from the impoverished St. Louis club before the June 15 trading deadline, and blinked when the Browns refused their staggering offers.

"We offered 'em what added up to a good part of Briggs Stadium for Garver,' said Evans, "more than we've ever offered for any other ball player." The amount can be gauged, somewhat, from the fact that a year before the Tigers tried to buy Gerry Priddy for $250,000.

ASKED WHY HE was so smitten with Garver . . . What did the guy have . . . Evans was explicit in a sweeping sort of way. "Everything," said Evans. "That good pitch, and control to go with it, and all that wonderful competitive fury. And he's only 24, and so-o smart. Where do you find a finished pitcher at 24?"

Garver's 9-14 record this season is, indeed, a horrible libel on the skill of the medium-sized righthander who has lost a half-dozen heart breakers to first division clubs. His most recent defeat, when the Yankees beat him, 3-2, in the ninth inning, was pretty typical.

In that game, Yogi Berra reached second base on an outfielder's fumble, and romped all the way home on an infield hit by Hank Bauer while the Browns' first baseman took the throw and "froze," unaware that Berra wasn't stopping at third base. It was the second time this season that Garver was licked by the Yankees on the same kind of a play.

And just before that, up in Boston, he had the Red Sox beaten, 2-1, in the ninth with two out when an infielder's fumble let 'em tie up the score. Vern Stephens' grand-slam home run was the crusher.

"I DIDN'T MIND that homer," Garver was saying yesterday at Griffith Stadium. "Any time they hit a long ball off me, it's my fault. But it's rough working for the Browns sometimes. In that game at New York, we wound up with an outfielder playing first base, a second baseman playing short, and the leftfielder playing third."

You would never suspect from Garver's performances with the Browns that he is the least bit discontented, however. He volunteers as a pinchrunner, is used as a pinch-hitter (batting average .288), and in one game even played the outfield. Did pretty well out there, too. Threw out at home the only guy who tried to test his arm.

He doesn't have any squawk, either, about the salary the Browns are paying him. "They treat me pretty well in that department, as much as they can afford to pay, I guess. Except that I know I won't make any of that fancy money, like I could with some of the richer clubs. When I remember what some of these other pitchers are making, guys who can't carry my glove, I sort of cuss my luck."

THE TOUGHEST DEFEAT he had to take this season was of his own making, Garver confesses. "That was the day I didn't beat the White Sox. I was on first when Kokos tripled, and forgot to touch third base on my way home. That was in the third inning. The White Sox took me into the thirteenth and licked me, 3-2."

He has his own ideas about the pennant race. "The Yankees, Tigers and Red Sox look tougher than Cleveland to me, but I guess that's because I'm a pitcher. If you can get rid of three guys, Doby, Rosen and Easter, you can stop the Indians. But the Yankees and Red Sox are dangerous all down the line, and so is Detroit, almost."

That isn't counting the Indians out of it though, says Garver. "You have to give Cleveland a pitching edge. They can throw a good pitcher at you every day—Lemon, Wynn, Feller and Garcia. And then they show you Flores in relief and you have to watch his screwball for three innings before you know what he's throwing. Maybe I like the Indians best, at that."

Georgetown, Navy Get Jump On Area Grid Squads Today

College football in this area starts basic training today in preparation for its late September attack on baseball.

Georgetown's Hoyas and the Naval Academy Midshipmen break out the cleats and sweat pants today with George Washington and Maryland following on Friday.

The Hoyas, 55 of them, will report to Head Coach Bob Margarita at 9:30 at their Medical Field for the twice-daily workouts.

Margarita, with a number of good ends on hand, will attempt to make a tackle out of Bob Noppinger, his star flanker during 1949. Noppinger is fitted for the new position in one respect, at least. He tips the scales at 220 pounds.

Navy with Eddie Erdelatz at the helm, launches its workout with 40 leading candidates. Navy's junior varsity team, 43 strong, also will report to Jayvee Coach Frank Foster today.

Erdelatz, who succeeds George Sauer, will have one month in which to prepare for his opening game against Maryland September 30 in the Terps' new stadium. He's banking heavily on a couple of veterans to carry the team that will be minus 12 lettermen from last year's squad.

End and Captain Tom Bakke and Quarterback Bob Zastrow are expected to carry a big load for the Middies. Halfbacks Bill Powers and Frankie Hauff and Fullback Dave Bannerman are other experienced hands.

Eagles Whip 49ers, 28-10

San Francisco, Aug. 27. (AP).—The Philadelphia Eagles, National Football League champions for the last two years, defeated the San Francisco 49'ers, 28-10, in an exhibition game here today.

The Eagles, led by Tommy Thompson, drove 69 yards in the first period. Jim Parmer, halfback, scored the touchdown.

In the third Bosh Pritchard ran 42 yards for a touchdown. In the same period Thompson threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to Right End Pete Pihos.

WHAT, NO UMP?—The umpire seems to be missing but he is not necessary here as G. Coan (30) plainly beats out a bunt. It happened in the first inning of yesterday's second game at Griffith Stadium and started a four-run Nats' rally. St. Louis First Baseman Don Leanhardt stands helplessly by, waiting for the late throw from Pitcher Don Johnson (22). Pitcher Mickey Harris, in the strange role of first base coach, cheers Coan on

Henrich's Pinch Hit Beats Chisox

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Pinch-hitter Tommy Henrich belted a long single to right field with the bases loaded and one out in the tenth inning today to give the New York Yankees a 2-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Allie Reynolds went the distance, yielding two hits, to hang up his 12th victory.

The victory moved the second-place Yanks to within a game of the league-leading Detroit Tigers who split a doubleheader with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Reynolds was brilliant in outpitching Lefthander Bob Cain. The lone Chicago run was unearned due to an error by Johnny Mize in the sixth inning. The Yankee righthander fanned eight to run his leagueleading total to 130. He walked only two hitters while Cain passed eight.

Cain hurled a four-hitter for nine innings but fell apart in the tenth. With one out in the tenth, Joe DiMaggio smashed his third hit, a single. Hank Bauer followed with another, sending DiMaggio to third and raced on to second when Outfielder Dave Philley threw late to third in an effort to head off DiMaggio. Joe Collins was intentionally walked to fill the bases.

Henrich batted for Bobby Brown and the Sox outfield moved in close so as to be able to cut off the winning run at the plate in the event a short fly was hit. But the lame-kneed veteran hit a long one, so deep to right field that Outfielder Marv Rickert didn't bother to even chase it. The ball bounced on the grass and then hopped into the bleachers. It could only be scored as a single, since just one run was needed.

Phils Win; Lead Bums By 5 Games

Chicago, Aug. 27 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies increased their lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers to five games today, defeating the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 1, before darkness forced a halt to the second game with the score 4 to 4 after 11 innings.

Bubba Church won his seventh victory when he limited the Cubs to four hits in the first game while the Phils pounded Paul Minner for 15 hits. One of the Philly hits was Mike Goliat's eleventh homer of the season.

Eddie Waitkus highlighted the day's hitting achievements with eight successive hits, three in the first game and five in the second.

Bob Miller, the Phils' starter, lasted until the eighth, when the Cubs had runners on first and second with only one out. Then Jim Konstanty, the great relief hurler, was called to the rescue. In his fifty-sixth appearance of the season, Konstanty held the Cubs hitless for three and two thirds innings before darkness fell.

Nats Win, 8-0, Lose, 11-10

Haynes One-Man Show in Opener With Five-Hitter

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Joe Haynes, of all people, produced a 8-to-0 victory for the Nats over the Browns yesterday, but the rest of the tale at Griffith Stadium was not as thrilling to the 5373 customers.

In the second game the Nats took an 11-10 licking, in 10 innings.

The Nats' pitching success ended with the startling performance of Haynes, who was going the route for the first shutout victory in seven weeks.

In the three-hour and ten-minute second game, Bob Kuzava, Elmer Singleton, Conrado Marrero and Mickey Harris were battered for 15 hits by the Browns. Harris was the losing pitcher, although more culpable were Kuzava who blew a 4-0 lead, and Marrero who couldn't hold a 9-8 edge in the eighth.

Eddie Yost shuttled from hero to goat in that second contest. Back in the seventh inning, with his fourth straight hit, he banged in the tying run for the Nats. In the tenth, he helped toss the game away with a wild throw. Harris had two out and nobody on in that tenth when Yost pulled

Browns Take 2d In 10th as Yost Makes Wild Throw

Vernon off the bag with a wide heave after grabbing up Sievers' ground ball that would have closed out the inning.

The next thing that happened was a game-winning triple to left by Ray Coleman. Gil Coan finally got his glove on the ball after a long dash, got his feet twisted, fell down, and came up empty-handed.

The opener was a one-man ball game, with Haynes dominating the scene completely and breezing to his shut-out victory after the Nats handed him four runs in the first inning, two in the second and another in the third.

The big right hander's performance was a throw-back to his salad days as the ace relief man of the White Sox when his control was the envy of the league's pitchers. He walked nobody, and only in the third inning was his shut-out seriously endangered.

In contrast, Al Widmar was no success at all, and didn't last out the second inning.

Widmar was still pitching two-baggers in the second.

Haynes banged one quickly against the left field wall, and Yost pumped a double into left. The Nats' sixth two-bagger of the first two innings was by Noren, at the expense of Pillete who relieved Widmar and ran into the same double trouble.

That made six runs for Haynes, and Deste's two bagger in the third gave him his seventh, a half dozen more than he required.

That second game commenced like another breeze for the Nats when they hammered Don Johnson for a 4-0 lead in the first inning on five consecutive singles by Coan, Noren, Vernon, Mele and Michaels.

But Bob Kuzava, who had deplaned only a couple of hours before after a trip to Michigan to the bedside of his ill son, gave those runs right back to the Browns in the third, Les Moss' two-bagger was the big blow.

In the sixth, the Nats finally reclaimed the lead at 6-5 for Elmer Singleton, Kuzava's relief

Tigers Lose 4-3 to Macks, Then Win, 8-1

Philadelphia, Aug. 27 (AP).—Detroit retained a slim one-game lead in the American League today splitting a doubleheader with the Philadelphia Athletics. The Tigers lost the opener 4-3 when Sam Chapman homered in the eighth with one aboard. In the nightcap, Art Houtteman recorded his seventeenth triumph as Detroit won 8-1.

Detroit jumped away to a quick 3-0 lead at Hank Wyse's expense in the opening game. After the veteran Philadelphia right-hander had retired the first two men to face him, George Kell doubled and scored on Vic Wertz' single. It was Wertz' 110th run batted in. Hoot Evers followed with a double, scoring Wertz and reached home himself on Johnny Groth's single.

Rookie Ray Herbert, making his debut in the majors, survived a second inning jam when the A's Elmer Valo singled and Billy Hitchcock doubled with none away. The runners held their bases as Kermit Wahl grounded out Herbert then fanned Joe Tipton and Wyse.

Philadelphia scored twice in the fifth on Tipton's single, Wyse's sacrifice, a walk to Eddie Joost, Barney McCosky's single and Ferris Fain's outfield fly.

Meanwhile Wyse, after getting Don Kolloway for the third out in the first inning, retired the next seventeen men in order before Kolloway singled with two out in the seventh. When Wyse walked Johnny Lipon to open Detroit's eighth, he was yanked in favor of Bob Hooper who finished the game and received credit for the win, his 12th.

Joost, A's shortstop, suffered a severe cut on the bridge of his nose in the second game. He fell

Vollmer Hits 4-Run Homer To Beat Tribe

Boston, Aug. 27 (AP).—Cleveland blew a 7-0 lead today and was beaten 11-9 by the Boston Red Sox.

Clyde Vollmer's pinch-hit grand-slam home run climaxed a six-run seventh when three consecutive Cleveland errors filled the bases with two out.

The Sox used five pitchers with Joe Dobson, knocked out of the box by Detroit yesterday, pitching hitless ball over the two final innings to preserve the victory which was credited to Chuck Stobbs.

Most of the 31,474 fans had given up on the Sox' chances when the Indians scored seven runs in the third inning. Twelve went to bat and collected three walks and five hits, one a grand slam homer by Ray Boone.

The Sox came back with five runs of their own in their half of the third. Starter Bob Feller walked three and was rapped for three hits, including Walt Dropo's homer with two mates on bases. It

Giants Break Even With Reds, 11-6, 1-3

Cincinnati, Aug. 27 (AP).—Howie Fox pitched a four-hitter in the second game of a doubleheader to allow the halve a twin York Giants. The Reds, lost the first game, 11-6, but won the night cap, 3-1 to stop their 10-game losing streak.

Monte Irvin homered in the eighth to give the Giants their only run in the second game.

Don Mueller and Hank Thompson were New York's big guns in its easy first game victory. They drove in three runs apiece as five Redleg pitchers tried in vain to stem the 17-hit barrage.

Cards Bury Dodgers, 13-3; Hit 4 Homers

St. Louis, Aug. 27 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals feasted on Brooklyn Dodger pitching today with a 13-to-3 attack that included four homeruns, a triple and three doubles by the Red Birds.

Cloyd Boyer hurled eight-hit ball for the victors. Two of the homers were from Stan Musial's bat.

The Cardinal triumph snapped a Brooklyn 10-game winning streak.

The other St. Louis homers were by Bill Howerton and Tommy Glaviano. Roy Campanella hit a four-bagger for the Dodgers.

Fred McNair, Smith Win In Doubles

By Gordon Beard

Jim Thackara captured the District of Columbia tennis championships at the Woodmont Country Club yesterday, defeating Lieut. Elston Wyatt in straight sets, 6—1, 6—2, 7—5.

Running only when he was reasonably sure of retrieving Wyatt's volleys, the 36-year-old Thackara paced himself perfectly. The hard-trying younger Wyatt, however, seemed more than slightly fatigued by the hot sun.

Top-seeded Thackara was much too steady for eighth-ranking Wyatt, who had upset second-seeded Don Leavens and third-ranked Barney Welsh in earlier rounds.

Few Errors

After Wyatt held service to open the match, Thackara swept the next nine games to win the first set and take a 3—0 lead in the second.

Thackara made so few errors with his pinpoint sideline shots, that two consecutive misplays in the second set caused Wyatt to exclaim, "Two in a row—it's fantastic!"

Wyatt, thwarted earlier by Thackara's passing shots, tried rushing the net again in the third set and had mild success. Thackara muffed match point in the tenth game, but came back to take the next two games to regain the title he won in 1947.

Smith, McNair Win Doubles

An economist for the International Monetary Fund, Thackara returned to this country from Paraguay only last week, while Wyatt leaves for Navy duty in the Pacific next week.

The win was Thackara's second major local victory of the year. He previously captured the City of Washington title.

In the men's doubles finals Alphonso Smith and Fred McNair won a well-played net battle from Col. Ramsay Potts and Clayton Burwell, 6—2, 7—9, 6—2, 6—4.

Smith and partner Virginia Boyer were on the losing end in the mixed doubles, with Phil Neff and Mrs. Ann Gray winning, 6—4, 6—4.

Bunker Hill Beaten Twice

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 27 (AP).—A well-regarded Washington, D. C. Bunker Hill Post team was beaten twice today and eliminated in American Legion junior baseball sectional play here.

Kearney Post of Bristol, R. I., hammered Washington for a 12-4 decision in the first half of a twin bill, and Somerville, Mass., then trounced Bunker Hill, 8-1.

Two defeats lead to elimination under the tourney plan used by the Legion. Bristol and Somerville tangle tomorrow in the first game of what amounts to a two-best-of-three series, with the winner to become one of four national finalists at Omaha September 4-8.

Third Baseman Danny Keyes of Washington, the day's outstanding individual, hit a homer in the fifth with one on. John Linthicum drove in the other two Washington runs with two singles.

Linthicum with three hits led Washington in the second game, while Keyes scored the only Bunker Hill run.

Kelley Scores 3d Rifle Victory in Maryland League

John Kelley, jr., of the Terrapin Rifle Club, fired a 399x400 to win the last match of the Maryland Rifle League's summer series at the Greenbelt range yesterday.

Dick Waters of the National Capital Rifle and Pistol Club also posted a 399, but Kelley led in bullseyes, 31-24. Mrs. Ruth Morgan of the Greenbelt Gun Club finished third with 397.

Although he entered only five of the eight summer matches, Kelley won three times and became the first league riflelman to ever win more than two matches.

The Greenbelt Gun Club captured the team championship with a 1579x1600 and finished the season as league titlists for the third time in four years. The club's eight-match average was 1576.

Elks Lose, 8 to 7

Northeast Bodyworks nosed out the Silver Spring Elks, 8-7, in a National Capital City League game yesterday on the Ellipse. Bob Miller, starting pitcher who went to the outfield later in the game, singled home the winning run in the ninth inning.

STRETCHING A POINT—Tom Brown (fore court) was forced to make shots like this yesterday before winning his Davis Cup singles match against Aussie Ken McGregor. Brown's victory was the only one scored by the United States team as the Aussies took the coveted cup, four matches to one

Brown Beats McGregor in Davis Play

By Gayle Talbot

Forest Hills, Aug. 27 (AP).—A magnificent rally by Tom Brown, jr., of San Francisco spared the United States the ignominy of a shutout in the Davis Cup matches today after the new world tennis champions had come within a single set of making it unanimous.

With a crowd of 11,000 cheering him on as he lifted his erratic game to its heights, the dark and terrific young lawyer came back to down the 21-year-old Aussie prodigy, Ken McGregor, by the marathon scores of 9—11, 8—10, 11—9, 6—1, 6—2, in a three-hour thriller.

Though the invaders long since had captured the cup, Brown's victory left a little sweeter taste in the mouths of those who had watched the boys from Down Under take the hides off our best for most of three days. Also, it raised at least a little hope that the trophy is not gone forever.

It was a badly needed tonic, as in the day's earlier singles Frank Sedgman, the young Australian champion, had made the count 4—0 in a one-sided licking of Ted Schroeder, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2. Tennis historians were going back some 40 years to find a similar disaster to American Cup forces when McGregor captured the first two hard-fought sets from Brown.

They had discovered that in 1909 an Australian side had trimmed Uncle Sam 5—0, and in the process had dropped only a single set.

All the research into past disasters went for nought as Brown, playing magnificent, daring tennis pulled out the third set by breaking McGregor's service in the twentieth game, gave the tiring young Aussie a bad beating in the short fourth and then flatly outgamed him in the fifth.

man, on singles by Singleton and Yost, and Coan's fly ball.

Whereupon Singleton got wild. He walked two men, wild pitched one home, and gave up singles to Moss and pinch-hitter Lollar in the seventh. It added up to three runs and an 8-6 lead for the Browns.

The use of pinch hitters brought Clarence Marshall in as the Brown's next pitcher, and he got in trouble quickly. He walked Vernon and threw Mele's tap to the box wild past second. Cass Michaels doubled two runs home, and Yost singled in a third to put the Nats back in a 9-8 lead.

Marrero got the pitching job then, but he faced four batters in the eighth and couldn't get anybody out. Lenhardt, Wood and Moss banged him for hits that produced two runs. Mickey Harris finally took over with two on and none out, and halted the carnage with the Browns on top, 10-9. Two were out when the Nats tied the score in the eighth. Mele tripled into right center and the run was a gift when Marshall's throw to first for the third out on Michaels' tap pulled Lenhardt off the bag.

Finally in the tenth, the Nats lost the game they were lucky to stay in that long.

Clarendon Wins Church Tourney

Richmond, Va., Aug. 27 (AP).—The Clarendon Methodist Church of Arlington won the Virginia Softball Association's Sunday School championship here today.

Clarendon slugged out a 14-5 victory in today's finals over Williams Court Baptist of Portsmouth, after the two teams earlier had gained the title game with shutout victories.

The home run king for the entire tournament was Norman Pumphrey of Clarendon Methodist, who hit five circuit blows in four games.

Joel Leeman Wins California Swim

LaJolla, Calif., Aug. 27.—Joel Leeman of the Ambassador Hotel Swimming Club, Washington, D. C., today won the LaJolla rough water 1-mile swim with a time of 24.46 seconds.

Florence Chadwick, who recently broke Gertrude Ederle's time for swimming the English Channel, had won the swim the past three years.

Kiner Sets Record In N. L. With 40th, Off Ruth's Pace

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27 (AP).—Ralph Kiner, the box office draw of the cellar dwelling Pittsburgh Pirates, set a National League record today by hitting his fortieth homer in the first game of a twinbill with the Boston Braves.

Kiner became the first National League player to hit 40 or more homers for four seasons. Previously, Kiner and Johnny Mize were tied for the record at three years each.

The late Babe Ruth, who set the all-time season record of 60 homers in 1927, hit 40 or more in 11 seasons. Kiner now is one game behind Ruth's record-breaking season pace.

Forest Heights Takes Lead

Forest Heights took over first place in the Arena Baseball League with an 8-1 victory over White Rabbit Restaurant yesterday on the Ellipse. Jack Pry Motors, league-leader until yesterday, lost a 6-3 decision to the Ballston Indians to drop one-half game behind Forest Heights.

Forest Heights has won 11 games and lost four, while Pry has won 10, lost four and tied one.

In the only other league game scheduled for yesterday, Click's Sunoco forfeited to Southeast Stores.

Redskins Win Again, But It's Still Early

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 27—Despite last night's 31-7 success over the Chicago Cardinals in Denver, today's discussion of the unbeaten, untied Washington Redskins begins on a pessimistic note.

It's just simply a reminder that the Cincinnati Reds won the championship of the Grapefruit League last spring, but are currently in seventh place, 25½ games off the National League pace.

This is not intended as a reflection on the Redskins' three straight pre-season victories or a prediction of things to come. Instead, it's merely a suggestion—don't get too excited, not yet, anyway.

The team is basically a young, green team. It has outstanding potentialities, but as yet can't be mentioned in the same breath, say, with the Philadelphia Eagles or the Cleveland Browns.

Another test of its strength—perhaps the toughest of the exhibition season to date, comes in the Cotton B

Norm, Mike Brown Win Father-Son Golf

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

Washington regained the Maryland State father and son golf championship yesterday, thanks to Norman Brown and his son, Mike, of Prince Georges Country Club.

The Browns won a one-hole, sudden-death playoff from Craig Wilton and his son, Craig, jr., of Kenwood after both finished with 79s. Low gross won the tournament, held at Kenwood, in which a record field of 49 teams competed.

The defending champs, Bill Johnston and his son, Eddie, of Baltimore Country Club, were two strokes off the pace with a gross 81.

Three other Washington teams won prizes. Col. R. B. Oxrieder and his son, Charles, of Bethesda, took second low net with 85—16—69; Sam and Marve Sugar of Indian Spring won third low net with 70, and he A. H. Hobelman of Kenwood fourth low net with 71.

WASHINGTON: Washington won an interclub match with Belle Haven, 18-15. Comdr. Frank Heyer of Belle Haven led the shooters with a brilliant four-below-par 66.

R. H. Rife scored a hole-in-one with a four wood on the 135-yard ninth. He was playing with Luke Lamb, Ed Goetz and D. R. Monsees.

R. L. Harnsberger, 80—13—67, led qualifiers for the Horton Cup. Luke Lamb's net 69 was second, and W. R. Little was third with a net 70.

FORT DUPONT: Sam Kononchuk, 42, 36—78, led qualifiers for the men's club championship. Paul Nicholson, 39, 41—80, was second. Ralph Hussey had an 82 for third. Joe Bachmurski and Dutch Bowie tied for fourth with 83s. Bob Miller had 84, Ed Bunge and Bob Suite, 85 each and Defending Champ Bob Plitt was ninth with 42, 44—86.

ARMY NAVY: Captain D. L. Day won the blind bogey with 95—16—79. Col. George Warner, Col. Pete Peters, and Col. G. H. Krieger were second with net 77s. Col. F. G. Smith and Peters won the best ball twosome with a net 64.

Faulkner, Eiden Double In 3-Run 7th

Trailing 6-5, the Federal Bureau of Investigation scored three runs in the seventh inning and won the Departmental League championship with an 8-6 triumph over the Union Printers yesterday on the Ellipse.

A walk to Ray Brown started the F. B. I.'s winning rally in the seventh. Ed Eiden and Jim Faulkner both doubled and Faulkner moved to third on Stan Ense's sacrifice. Bob Rohr scored Faulkner with a long fly.

Ense relieved Bob Jones in the seventh inning and received credit for the win while pitching two-hit ball for the last two and one-third innings. Harry Wolfe was the loser.

Ed Bahlow and Jim McCabe had two hits each for the F. B. I., but Bill Valentine of the Printers was the day's best hitter with a double and two singles.

F. B. I., by virtue of its victory, will represent the Departmental League in the city series which starts today on the Ellipse.

Guy Lombardo Wins Abbreviated Gold Cup

By Happy Walker

Baltimore, Aug. 27.—Through no fault of the drivers, the widely publicized Gold Cup event, scheduled highlight of the day, fizzled out in the second heat, as the Star Spangled Banner Regetta came to a close here today at Maryland Yacht Club.

Ten thousand spectators waited patiently throughout a 22-event program for the big boys to perform. At starting time, Guy Lombardo's Tempo VI, Danny Murphy's Dee Jay V and Ernie Chase's Pep VI made up the field.

In the first heat Lombardo, who flew in from Toronto, did his best to give his admirers a fair shake. The short, hazardous course was too much for the Tempo and Guy gave up the lead in the second lap to Pep VI, a 25-year-old racing warrior.

Chase's Pep developed ignition trouble and temporarily withdrew in the fifth lap, putting Lombardo back in the lead. Seconds before the finish, Norman Lauderbach gunned Dee Jay, threatening Lombardo's lead, but Dee Jay finished second with Pep VI taking third after emergency repairs.

In the second frame, Dee Jay did not start. Then Lombardo lost two blades of his prop and withdrew while Pep was towed off the course after three laps. Lombardo won the cup on the first heat points at a speed of 58.614 mph. After the race Lombardo's Tempo was shipped to Detroit to participate in the Harmsworth Trials this week.

It was the screaming 225 hydros which produced the greatest thrill of the day as Al Oulette, Manchester N. H., Jerry Powell, Richmond, and E. A. Widenhaus, Concord, N. C., battled for top honors in their two-heat class at speeds up to 69.071 mph., 11 miles faster than the Gold Cups. At the finish it was Oulette, Widenhaus and Powell, respectively.

AAU Ends Outdoor Swim Year Tonight

Eight District senior AAU swim crowns will be at stake tonight as more than 100 swimmers bring the outdoor season to a close at Takoma Park pool.

In the men's division, the 400-yard freestyle relay, the 100-yard freestyle, the 220-yard breast stroke and the 100-yard backstroke titles will be on the line.

The four women's events each has the defending champion entered. Bettie Roland of Takoma will defend the 100-yard freestyle and the 100-yard breaststroke, Ambassador; Mary Freeman the 100-yard backstroke, and the Takoma women's relay team will try to retain its 200-yard relay title.

Ambassador, ahead in both men's and women's divisions, is expected to annex both team titles. Audrey Cunningham, 14-year-old mermaid from Congressional Country Club, will make her first try in women's senior competition, probably in the freestyle or backstroke.

The Federal Diary by Jerry Kluttz

Administration To Seek Defeat Of Whitten Rider

The Administration will urge the Senate to kill the House-approved rider to the 16-billion-dollar supplemental budget bill that restricts Federal worker reinstatements, promotions, and transfers.

This is the effect of the rider offered to the House by Representative Whitten (D., Miss.):

1. Requires that all reinstatements, promotions, and transfers after September 1 to classified jobs shall be made on a temporary basis;

2. Directs the Civil Service Commission to "make full use" of its authority to require an agency to make temporary appointments to defense jobs;

3. Forbids any classified employe who is laid off in a reduction of force to be appointed, transferred, or promoted to a job of a grade higher than the one he held on September 1;

4. Directs the Government to certify the names of all employes laid off in reductions of force for appointments, if qualified, to the defense agencies, but at salaries and grades not to exceed those held at the time they were laid off, and finally,

5. The Defense Department is given the power to call on other Federal agencies to supply it with additional personnel as it may require.

The controversial rider doesn't require that all appointments after September 1 be made on a temporary basis as was first proposed by the House Appropriations Committee.

Cleared With Committee

The Whitten amendment was approved by the House by a voice vote after the minimum of debate. It was cleared in advance with members of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, and GOP leaders.

Even if it's knocked out by the Senate, it's taken for granted that the Civil Service Commission will follow the suggestion of the House and extend the system of emergency appintments to all other defense agencies. Furthermore, that it will restrict grade promotions, transfers, etc.

But top officials believe the rider, as written, would work hardships on many employes and make it difficult to recruit new people. They argue convincingly that the Civil Service Commission ought to have the discretion to handle all types of cases and situations instead of being tied down to a rigid law.

Text of Rider

Since the rider is of prime interest to tens of thousands of employes and former employes, it's quoted in full as it passed the House:

"In making appointments in the Government service the Civil Service Commission shall make full use of its authority to make temporary appointments in order to prevent increases in the number of permanent personnel and no employe in the classified civil service promoted, transferred, or appointed to a position of higher grade shall be eligible, in the event of separation from the service through reduction in force, to reinstatement at a grade above the grade held by such employe on September 1, 1950, and all reinstatements, transfers, or promotions to positions subject to the Classification Act of 1949 shall be temporary asd shall be made with the condition and notice to the individual reinstated, transferred, or promoted that the classification grade of the position is subject to post-audit and correction by the appropriate departmental or agency personnel office of the Civil Service Commission.

"The names of all persons to be terminated under reductions in force in the departments and agencies of the Government shall be certified as eligible for appointment to positions in agency programs determined by the President to be related directly to national defense, if qualified, at not to exceed the grade and salary last held in the terminating agency or department; and,

"The Department of Defense is authorized to call on other departments or agencies for such additional personnel as it may require within the limits of its funds."

This explanation of the rider was made to the House by Representative Whitten:

D. C. Youth Loses Race With Police, Hits Pole

Son of Ex-Principal At McKinley High Held in Maryland On Three Charges

En route home after a night at North Beach, three Washington youths lost a race with Maryland State police when their auto crashed into a pole near Prince Frederick early yesterday.

According to an Associated Press report, State Trooper Walter H. Wall identified the driver as John Daniel, 23, of 3815 Jocelyn st. nw., and charged him with drunken driving, reckless driving and speeding.

Wall said Daniel's auto sideswiped another and snapped the pole off at its base.

Daniel is the son of Frank C. Daniel who retired three years ago as principal of McKinley Tech High School. Mrs. Daniel still teaches there.

Works for Dairy

The elder Daniel said his son drives a truck for Chestnut Farms.

Daniel, along with William W. Terrill, 24, of 2322 39th st. nw., who, friends said, works for a gas station, was treated for minor injuries and released at Calvert County County Hospital, 13 miles south of the smashup on Route 260.

A third occupant of the auto, Thomas Nichols, 25, of 5305 Connecticut ave. nw., an employe at the Library of Congress, was admitted to the hospital with a broken arm.

Bond for Daniel was set at $800 and a hearing was scheduled for Friday.

Two Hurt in Silver Spring

A 21-year-old Takoma Park man and his 17-year-old wife were injured last night when their auto ran up an embankment and turned over on New Hampshire ave. near Piney Branch rd. in Silver Spring, Md.

The victims were identified by Montgomery County Police Officer Preston Hall as Forrest M. and Marie Case, 51 Takoma ave. Case was treated for shock and released from Washington Sanitarium while his wife was admitted for possible head injuries.

Case told police he was headed south on the avenue when an auto headed north pulled out to pass, forcing him over to the side. Hitting the curb, his auto went out of control, Case said, ran up the embankment and slid back down on its top.

Mrs. Case was thrown clear. The auto was demolished. Police charged Case with reckless driving.

James Lee, 31, of 616 Washington ave., Jefferson Village, Falls Church, suffered several broken bones after he was struck by an auto on Lee blvd. near Annandale rd. last night. Arlington Hospital authorities said his condition was critical.

A technical charge of reckless driving was lodged against the driver, William O. Caston, 43, of 643 Lee blvd., in Westlawn subdivision, Falls Church.

Dump Truck Collides With Three Autos

Aided by directions from bystanders, a police private yesterday afternoon chased and arrested a 20-year-old youth who police say admitted being the driver of a dump truck that smashed three cars in Southwest Washington.

The suspect is Edward Buchanan, 907 Half st. sw. He was charged with driving without a license, and booked on three counts of leaving the scene of a collision.

After crashing into the parked cars, the dump truck was abandoned. Witnesses told police they saw three men leave it.

Pvt. Herman D. Evans arrested Buchanan in a house in the 900 block of Golden st. sw.

Officer Evans, riding with Corpl. Scott E. Moyer, responded to an accident call about 12:15 p. m. to 6th and G sts. sw. They found a car belonging to James Fleming, 1385 Florida ave. ne., heavily damaged by the truck.

While following the "they-went-that-way" directions of witnesses, their pursuit was interrupted by a second accident call—this one to 7th and F sts. sw.

There they found two smashed autos—one belonging to Charles W. Breeden, Accokeek, Md., the other owned by Eugene W. Corbin, 708 F st. sw.

A short distance away, the truck was abandoned.

Carnival Is Scheduled By Franconia Firemen

The Franconia Volunteer Fire Department will hold its annual carnival August 31, September 1, 2 and 4.

Featured will be a parade on Labor Day at 3:30 p. m., the selection of a carnival queen that night, a concert by the 50-piece Herndon High School Band Friday at 8:30 p. m. and a demonstration of fire fighting methods Saturday evening. Proceeds from the carnival will be used to build a new firehouse.

"Oldsters" Hobby Show Scheduled Here For Fall

ADEPT AT LANDSCAPES—Carl F. Ernst, 78, is a retired commercial artist who now finds great satisfaction in devoting his time to painting. He is among those who will enter their work in the Hobby Show for Older Persons

NEEDLE EXPERT—Mrs. Edna F. Laux, a clerical worker in the Treasury Department, plans to submit one of her afghans. She started doing needle work at 10

There's nothing particularly new about a hobby show, except this coming one for Older Folks only.

Even at this early date it looks like the show is going to go over big.

Maybe it's because the folks who do good work at any age like their work to be noticed.

Take men like Carl F. Ernst, 78, of 1552 33d st. nw., a retired commercial artist. He likes the idea of this Hobby Show for Older Persons, where the entry qualification is a life of 60 years or more.

He plans to exhibit some of his oil paintings, the ones he's been making for fun during the past four decades. It's a great hobby for a person with artistic talents, and like all hobbies a good shock absorber for the jolt of retirement.

Retired 2 Years Ago

Ernst retired two years ago from his position as commercial artist with a Baltimore printing house. Oil painting had been his uncommercialized hobby, and retirement just meant he could spend more time at it.

He plans to enter some of his paintings in the special Hobby Show, sponsored by the District of Columbia Recreation Board and United Community Services. The show, an exposition of the activities of older folk, is scheduled to be held in the lobby of the Department of Commerce building from November 17 through November 20.

Another early entrant is Capt. Harry M. Dengler, metalworker hobbyist, who has "only a couple" more years to go before Federal retirement. Dengler is a training officer for enforcement agencies of the United States Treasury Department. Retirement holds no particular dread to him.

Scrap Metal Hobby

Capt. Dengler, Inactive Reserves, United States Army, pursues his hobby in the basement of his home, at 1505 Van Buren st. nw. He makes things, things useful and ornamental, out of scrap metals. Scraps from opium tins, copper from old stills, and the household scraps of yesteryear, like brass doorknobs and old teakettles.

It's a good hobby for anyone, he says. All one needs are a few hammers, a Bunsen burner, and some soldering wire. The burner and solder are needed to "sweat on" the medallions and other souvenirs he solders to his hammered out ashtrays, fruit bowls, candlestick holders and the hundred and one other items Dengler fashions.

Then there's Mrs. Edna F. Laux of 2022 31st pl. se., who does clerical work in the United States Register's Office, Treasury Department. She plans to enter one of her afghans in the hobby show. Women are as eligible as men in the contest, as long as they admit to being 60 or more.

Started at 10

Mrs. Laux didn't say how many years she's been doing needlework, but said she started at the age of 10. She makes tablecloths, bedspreads, antimacassars, embroidered pocketbooks. Not for money, just as a hobby.

Tea tagging, a hobby for some comparable to matchbox collecting, will also be exhibited. Theodore A. Werkenthin of 3601 2d st. S., Arlington, Va., isn't old enough in his own right to enter the hobby show. He's eligible, however, as president of Tea Taggers, a national club dedicated to one unusual hobby.

Tea Taggers collect the tags affixed to tea bags. It's like stamp collecting, only there's no momentary value to tea tags, explained the club president. Werkenthin has entered his collection, 6500 tea tags taken from tea bags at points all over the world.

Data About Show

About the exhibit itself. The show is open to any person 60 years of age or older in this city, Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax Counties, Va., and Prince Georges and Montgomery County, Md.

The entry committee, and their telephone numbers in case you want more information or an entry blank, include chairman Henry M. Stabler, Sandy Spring, Md., (Ashton 2096); secretary, Miss Mildred D. Sheets, Sandy Spring, Md. (Ashton 2096).

Members for Washington, D. C., Mrs. Franklin Sartwell, 200 Rhode Island ave. ne. (NO. 8281); Mrs. Marion S. Westmoreland, 40 53d st se. (VI. 0249); Miss Estelle M. Whiting, 1110 9th st. nw. (HU. 3320).

Members for Montgomery County: Dr. Charles H. Ligon, Sandy Spring, (Ashton 6776); Member for Prince Georges County: Robert J. Englehart, Brentwood, WA-5234. Member for Alexandria: Keith O. Lynch, Alexandria, Va., (AL. 1746.

Member for Arlington, Va.: Paul E. Roberson, Arlington, Va., (GL. 2268). Member for Fairfax County, Va., Allen F. Marshall, Alexandria, Va., (OV. 0958).

By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

FROM SCRAP, TOO—Capt. Harry M. Dengler, inactive reserves, U. S. Army, spends his spare time in metal work, making useful and ornamental objects out of scrap metals. All you need, he says, are a few hammers, a Bunsen burner and some wire. He forgot to mention skill also is needed

Hitchhikers Beat District Man, Escape In His Car

R. M. Oliver Found Stripped, Dazed on Maryland Roadside; Has Head Injuries

Attacked and robbed by two hitchhikers he had picked up in his car, Raymond M. Oliver, 49, of 721 12th st. se., was found dazed and stripped on Route 2 near Huntington, Md., about noon yesterday.

Oliver was detained for observation of head injuries at the Calvert County (Md.) Hospital last night. His condition was believed not serious.

Calvert County Sheriff Elmer Herring said the hitchhikers had taken Oliver's 1939 Buick, his clothes and money. In Washington, Mrs. Oliver said her husband had about $10 with him.

Oliver told police he had picked the men up outside of Washington. He was en route, he said, to North Beach, Md. His wife said he left on the trip about 10 a. m.

$950 Recovered

A physician from Havana, Cuba, received $950 yesterday that was stolen from his room at the Cairo Hotel.

Police said Dr. Remigu Humario and his wife had hidden the money under a mattress before going sightseeing. When they returned, the bed was made up but the money was gone.

Two maids, arrested by Detective Sergt. R. W. Creel and Pvt. M. E. Pitts, admitted the theft after six hours' questioning. They returned the money. Police said no charges were placed against the maids because Dr. Humario was due to leave Washington yesetrday afternoon.

Police yesterday charged James W. Robinson, 29, with the robbery of a 50-year-old man in a comfort station in Franklin Square, nw., about 6 p. m., Saturday.

Quick Arrest Made

Robinson was arrested an hour-and-a-half after the robbery. Robinson told police he lives at 1314 D st. se.

The victim was Clarence B. Nunnally, of 1024 10th st. ne. He said his attacker knocked him down and took his wallet and $17.

Camp Lee Oaks, of 1312 12th st. nw., told police he chased a man into an alleyway between 12th and 13th sts. nw., soon after the robbery, but was frightened off when the man brandished a gun and knife.

Fair Weather Here to Last Another Day

"Looks like a run of fair weather at least till Tuesday," the weatherman said yesterday.

Temperatures today are expected to push 88 degrees with humidity "on the high side"—over 50 percent.

"But there's no rain in store for us right away," the weatherman said. A couple of thunderstorms 80 miles away in West Virginia were due to fizzle out last night.

Temperature yesterday hit 86 at 4 p. m. Low was 67 at 5:15 a. m. Humidity was 51 percent.

Park Police said large crowds attended the Watergate's last performance of "Kiss Me, Kate" and the Sesqui drama, "Faith of Our Fathers," at the Sesquicentennial Amphitheater, 17th st. and Colorado ave. nw.

County Group to Hear Palsy Association Aide

Mrs. J. Howard Brinckerhoff, field director for the executive committee of the United Cerebral Palsy Association, Inc., will be guest speaker at the regular meeting Thursday of the Prince Georges Cerebral Palsy Association at 8:15 p. m.

Mrs. Brinckerhoff will complete the affiliation of the Prince Georges group with the national association at ceremonies in the County Service Building, Hyattsville.

Shiloh Baptist To Be Scene Of Convention

Fifteen hundred delegates are expected to attend the fifty-third annual Lott Carey Baptist Foreign Mission Convention opening Tuesday at Shiloh Baptist Church, 9th and P sts. nw.

Eighty-seven of the Negro Baptist churches in the District, along with an estimated 5000 others in 15 States, are affiliated with the organization.

Several distinguished speakers will address the four-day gathering, including Dr. Edwin McNeil Poteat, president of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State, and Mrs. Wallace N. Streeter, president of the Washington Council of Church Women.

Addresses will also be made by speakers from Bermuda, Belgian Congo, China, India, Haiti, Portugese Islands and West Africa, where the convention currently has missionaries.

A preconvention musical program will be given at Shiloh Baptist Church tonight at 8:30 by a convention chorus of 100 voices under the direction of Prof. W. E. Patterson, Norfolk.

Dr. O. S. Bullock, Raleigh, is president of the convention. Mrs. A. B. Randolph, 1336 T st. nw., is president of the women's auxiliary.

Gospel Festival Slated for Friday

The First National Gospel Festival will be held at Griffith Stadium Friday at 8 p. m., sponsored by Cherry's National Gospel Foundation, Inc., 537 Randolph st. nw., and the Bible Way Church, 1130 New Jersey ave. nw.

A number of well-known gospel singers, including the Ward Singers of Philadelphia, Mrs. Willie M. F. Smith, the St. Louis Gospel Choral Union and Willa Saunders Jones have been booked to appear, the sponsors said yesterday.

Duckett to Aid Drive

Prince Georges County Community Chest yesterday announced appointment of Brice D. Duckett of Mitchellville to head the financial division of the 1951 Red Feather campaign. Duckett is assistant vice president of the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co.

Nigerian Youth Being Wooed To Communism, Pastor Says

A Baptist missionary with more than 20 years' experience in West Africa said yesterday that many of the young people of Nigeria are "being swept off their feet by Communism."

The Rev. William L. Jester, reporting to his home Metropolitan Baptist Church, 6th and A sts. ne., said, "Russia is offering hundreds of scholarships to the country's youth, bringing them to the Soviet—and you know what that means."

The slight, balding minister said the British were "freely predicting that missionaries may be compelled to leave the country in the next 10 years" because of the spread Communism.

Mohammedan Inroads

The missionary also cited the "great inroads" that Mohammedanism has made coming in from North Africa. He estimated there are 12 million Mohammedans, 8 million pagans and a half million Christians in the country.

Dr. Jester and his wife first went to Africa in 1928, and for the past two decades have been doing medical and educational work in Nigeria.

In another service, the Rev. William H. Alexander, minister of the First Christian Church, Oklahoma City, said there are "four philosophical questions which determine your at-homeness in the universe."

Attitude Toward Life

Dr. Alexander, speaking at the National City Christian Church, 14th st. at Thomas cir. nw., asked: "Do you have a wholesome attitude toward life? Do you have a self fit to live with? Do you have a world fit to live in? Do you have a philosophy fit to live by?" He said:

"The most important thing is not what happens to you but what you let what happens to you do to you . . . We aren't what we think we are, but we are what we think . . . Nothing matters—riches, honor or fame—unless basically we have a self fit to live by . . . No matter how bad things are without, we can have a world fit to live within ourselves . . . I commend the philosophy of the Gallilean . . . It will work anywhere . . ."

At the Central Presbyterian Church, 15th and Irving sts. nw., the Rev. Donald W. Richardson, retiring dean of the Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, took his text from four words in the fifty-fifth chapter of Isaiah, second verse: money, bread, labor and satisfaction.

The noted China missionary said, "Money becomes valuable only when it is used to buy things or do good with. It is not, however, the supreme good. It can't buy you time, health, happiness or an entrance into the Kingdom of God. . . .

Money Can't Buy Time

"Labor is the means that men employ to buy the bread and other material things to satisfy our legitimate human needs . . . Satisfaction is always the end in view . . . But money, bread and labor alone do not satisfy because . . . the physical and material alone can never satisfy a starving soul."

Another topic, "Peaceful Living in Troubled Times," was discussed by the Rev. Charles H. Monbleau, minister of the First Parish (Universalist), in Malden, Mass., at All Souls' Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvards sts. nw.

Slow Rate of Living

At the National Memorial Baptist Church, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw., the Rev. H. C. Eatough, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Cambridge, Mass., also dealt with peace of mind.

"People are longing for peace and unable to find it," Dr. Eatough said, "with a resulting breakdown in social relationships, trust and confidence in fellow man and collapse of inner trust and confidence.

Deadline Nears For Veterans Who Seek GI Courses

Veterans planning to enter training under the GI bill for the first time or to change schools this fall should make application at the Veterans Administration's Washington Regional Office, 1825 H st. nw., before September 15.

Since July 25, 1951, is the deadline for starting GI bill training for those separated from service prior to July 25, 1947, many former servicemen are expected to start training in the forthcoming term.

This means that veterans with other than routine reenrollment applications who delay their application may find such a crush at the VA office that their initial fall term subsistence allowances would be delayed, the VA said.

Remembrance Service Held At Old Church

A service of remembrance was held yesterday for a small, gray-framed building in Silver Spring which for 77 years served both as a church and Sunday school.

The structure, part of the plant of Woodside Methodist Church, 8814 Georgia ave., is to be removed to make room for the church's new education building, the Rev. Philip C. Edwards, pastor, said.

Yesterday 100 persons, including a former pastor, the Rev. Ralph D. Smith, gathered to recognize the members and the work of the congregation during the years 1873 to 1925, and to honor the frame structure which was then the only building available for religious purposes.

The Rev. Paul Lehman told some of the history of the building. It was first built in 1873 on the eastern side of Georgia ave., now occupied by the Johns Hopkins Laboratory and was then known as Sligo Methodist Episcopal Church, he said.

Music for the program was by Mrs. Mabel Whitney Shauck, who has been pianist and organist for the church since 1902, and Mrs. Mary Roeder Marston, daughter of Mrs. Esther Roeder, one of the oldest members of the church. Miss Jessie Kimpton and George T. Day told of some of the struggles of the Epworth League, and Carl Roeder, who in his youth cared for the oil lamps and wood stove, described some of the trials of a janitor in the old days.

Others on the program included Mrs. H. H. Howlett, president of the Ladies' Aid Society for many years, and Mrs. Grace Williams, both of whom told the history of the group.

Burned in Gas Blast, Woman's Condition Fair

Mrs. Alice Smith Hefferman, 32, of 806 17th st. nw., who suffered second and third-degree burns Saturday in a gas explosion at her apartment, was reported in fair condition yesterday at Gallinger Hospital.

Mrs. Hefferman was transferred to Gallinger from Emergency Hospital for mental observation yesterday at 10:30 a. m. Police said the explosion, which blew out a living-room window, was touched off when Mrs. Hefferman lit a cigarette.

Plea Aired For District Home Rule

The presidents of the Federation of Citizens Associations, the Federation of Civic Associations and the Central Suffrage Conference yesterday made last-minute appeals for the passage of the home-rule bill in this session of Congress.

The trio—Herbert P. Leeman, Woolsey W. Hall and Culver B. Chamberlain—spoke on the Americans All radio program over WOOK. Dr. Tomlinson D. Todd, president of the Institute on Race Relations, acted as moderator.

Particular attention was paid by the speakers to action in Korea and its relation to the home-rule fight.

Leeman said, ". . . while our boys are dying in Korea, the advocates of special privilege in our city are using their influence to keep us from having an American form of government in the District of Columbia."

Hall said, ". . . If America would sell the Western way of life to the teeming millions of the East who now are shaking off the drowsiness of centuries and seeking their place in the sun, it behooves the representatives in Congress to set their house in order and not permit an insignificant but defiant cabal to obstruct and nullify the will certainly of the President, the United States Senate and probably of the House of Representatives . . ."

It was pointed out on the program that the House will not have a chance to pass on the bill unless 218 members sign a discharge petition to bring the measure out of the House District Committee. Already 209 members have signed, Hall said.

Major Lakin, Shooting Victim, Off Critical List

Maj. James T. Lakin, Army congressional liaison officer who shot himself Friday, was reported "resting comfortably" and as off the critical list yesterday at Walter Reed General Hospital.

Lakin, who lives at 818 South Florida st., Arlington, was reported by Arlington police Friday to have emptied five slugs into his left shoulder because he was depressed.

AFGE Support Pledged to Oust Government Reds

Omaha, Aug. 27 (AP).—The full support of the American Federation of Government employes (AFL) was pledged today to rid the Government service of Communists and fellow travelers.

The pledge was contained in a policy statement issued by Henry G. Iler, Washington, D. C., president of the federation, on the eve of the group's twelfth convention.

Iler declared that the AFGE "long ago put itself squarely on record with respect to subversive organizations. We in the AFGE have a responsibility in addition to that of patriotic citizenship. We are employes of our Federal Government and we owe to our Government full support to rid the service of not only Communists, but fellow travelers as well."

He declared that agency loyalty boards and the Loyalty Review Board "should resolve all reasonable doubt in regard to the loyalty of federal employes."

India Quake Survey Records 5000 Dead, Serious Damage

New Delhi, India, Aug. 27 (AP).—Floods following Assam's devastating earthquake of 12 days ago have further damaged vital natural resources. The death toll, meanwhile, approached the 5000 mark from what seismologists here say was the world's fifth most severe recorded shock.

Assamese in the millions turned skywards in prayer as tremors were felt yesterday for the eleventh straight day. Dibrugarh, a town of 80,000 population, had one severe shock at noon followed by several minor tremors. Seventy percent of the town's buildings were destroyed in the first big shock of August 15.

Late reports from Dibrugarh said the town was threatened with inundation by the earthquake-dammed Dibru and Brahmaputra Rivers. In the Subansiri River area, west of Dibrugarh, 100 persons were feared drowned. The director of Poona's central irrigation and canal research stations is flying to Dibrugarh to help authorities save what is left of the town.

Necessarily incomplete assessment reports of the disaster reaching India's capital from quivering Assam show that possibly five million persons have been left homeless and the property damage was placed at 20 million dollars, but much of the loss in crops, farm animals and natural resources cannot yet be determined.

The quakes are bringing the subsoil to the surface, threatening permanent ruin to the great tea industry which has made famous this rich but earthquake-ridden land in India's northeast corner. Tea is one of the main factors in bringing India dollars and other foreign exchange.

There is a further threat to the tea plantations from the swollen rivers whose courses have been changed by the upheavals. The flooded streams are contaminated with mineral oil and sulphur which are injurious to the cultivated land.

Government officials estimate it may take years to restore completely the collapsed bridges and roads sunken or covered by landslides.

Reports from the Indo-Tibet border say a red glow is still seen nightly in the sky over the isolated mountain-top country of Tibet where the epicenter of the quake is located. Geologists surmise volcanoes are still active in that neighborhood. But an aerial survey will have to await next spring when the clouds and mist clear from the Himalayas area.

The Arena's Well Worth Your While

By Richard L. Coe

OUR TOWN can take pride in our new Arena Theater, now playing "She Stoops to Conquer" in the newly renovated Hippodrome, where everything is new except, praise be, the air-conditioning.

Since the demise of the Washington Civic Theater—and you have to be long in the tooth to remember that—this city has not had a resident acting company. This is not the case of countless smaller cities across the country.

Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Pasadena, Seattle, Dallas, aye, and even bedraggled Baltimore have had their resident acting companies for years. Leaf through the August issue of Theater Arts and you'll find how lively homegrown theaters can be across our incredible land.

True, we have innumerable small groups of nonprofessionals, but none of these can be more than a part-time hobby for working people.

Taking countless bull sessions by the horns, Edward Mangum has bravely chucked his G. W. teaching job and corralled a surprisingly efficient company into making the Arena's first production something that can delight everyone in town. Now that "Kiss Me Kate" has departed for Hershey and Philadelphia, the thousands who enjoyed themselves at the Watergate should wend their paths to the intimate 250-seat Arena and see quite another style of live acting.

There they will see what can be done when a determined hand finally takes the risk which no one has attempted since the Civic blew itself out. Most of the players have been seen here before and those making their bows are now residents for the duration of the venture. While it's naturally too early to tell what future productions will be like, certainly this opener augurs well.

Holds Its Vitality

Oliver Goldsmith's friendly comedy of 177 years stands the central staging test surprisingly well. Usually modern comedies are employed to send off these "theater-in-the-round" ventures, but evidently figuring that he was taking a plunge anyway, Mangum seems to have decided on a high dive. Saturday night's sell-out performance, where I finally caught up with the new group, came off happily indeed.

For the good Oliver, the most liked writing man of his era, wrote truly and cheerfully in this yarn of a private home that wasn't an inn, of a friendly squire who wasn't mine host and of a young lady who was not a serving wench.

The Great Tony Lumpkin

It contains some delightfully vital characters of theatrical literature, but none so rare as Tony Lumpkin, the bumptious fool who causes all the trouble and finally sets things to rights. This was a part Joe Jefferson played for years; even during the generations he did "Rip Van Winkle" his admirers begged him to go back to Tony. It's also a part Bobby Clark's been longing to act.

Fortunately, Tony is in sound hands. He's embodied this time in a newcomer, who should prove mighty handy to Director Mangum, Lester Rawlins, a Carnegie Tech graduate and a veteran of two summer stock seasons in Connecticut. Rawlins prances knowingly, but speaks better. He reads much humor from the lines and I think the illustrious actors who've preceded him in this celebrated part would approve encouraging him.

New, too, is Dorothea Jackson, a capable young lady who seems to have had considerable professional experience elsewhere. She's the Constance and also should be valuable in the future.

Modest Price Scale

Most of the others you've seen before about town, at C. U., G. W., Mount Vernon or Alexandria. Henry Oliver is an immensely affable Squire Hardcastle, Ionia Zelenka a neatly-poised Kate, Orville French a well-troubled Marlow, Stuart Smith a nicely-spoken Hastings, Virginia Thurston a capable Mrs. Hardcastle. And Henry Danilowicz tackles a character role, Diggory, with broad comic effect.

It would be futile to go further into all the names who have made this venture possible, had I such detailed information, but I can only urge you to pay the Arena and the scrambled Hardcastle family a visit.

For Washington now does have a resident acting group and its first effort at least is well worth your support. The $1.90 price scale (matinees are $1.50) is happily modest and Goldsmith's comedy will give you many good laughs.

Jewish Group To Aid Israel Resettlement

Tel Aviv, Israel, Aug. 27 (AP).—Jacob Blaustein of Baltimore, Md., president of the American Jewish Committee (AJC), said today American Jews will help stave off a crisis in Israel by supporting Premier David Ben Gurion's plan to settle 600,000 more Jews here.

Blaustein said American Jews would "go far" in helping to raise the $1,680,000,000 needed for the settlement program and to help Israel attain national food self-sufficiency.

The AJC president ended a series of conferences here with high government chiefs and is leaving by plane tonight for Burgenstock, Switzerland, to visit Israeli President, Dr. Chaim Weizman, who is there for his health.

The nation's worsening economic situation brought demands today from the General Zionist Party for an extraordinary session of parliament, now in recess until November 16. The General Zionists, who are advocates of free enterprise, have a bloc of seven members in parliament.

They declared that the government must act to halt "panic buying and the hoarding of currency." They blamed the government's recent order rationing clothing and footwear for precipitating what they called a serious situation.

Bankers said heavy withdrawals of funds were caused by false rumors in the Swiss press that the government planned to freeze bank accounts and sponge up savings by compulsory loans.

Bank withdrawals reached $5,600,000 in a single week. The circulation of Israeli currency is now at a peak of over 180 million dollars—a rise of 26 million dollars since last May.

To Hear Candidates

Albert Guedotti, chairman of the Republican Club of the Fourth Precinct, Second District, Prince Georges County, last night announced that he has asked county school authorities for the use of Landover iHlls School for a "know your candidates" program.

Paris Puts Seal On Fleece Coats

I've never been more thrilled than when I found that fleece coats—the darling of American women for years—were the smartest coats in the fall collections of the Paris dressmakers this year. Of course I must admit that the fabrics were the most glamorous fleeces I've ever seen—long hairy ones that look like teddy bears, heavy shaggy ones like poodles, and even some that are clipped to look like little curly lambs! Only a few of these new fabrics have arrived over here as yet but we have beautiful shaggy fleeces of our own as you know. So when you buy a new fleece coat this fall you may have the happy knowledge that it's a fashion shown in Paris, too.

Water Retention May Delay Diet Results

By Ida Jean Kain

REDUCING IS sometimes an uphill climb. While science promises that calorie subtraction and weight loss is as exact as four minus two . . . it can be a case of delayed arithmetic. Paradoxical as it may seem, it is possible actually to gain weight while dieting to reduce.

It happened to one dieter just recently. Naturally she wrote to complain bitterly . . . she had dieted the better part of a week, and when she stepped hopefully on the scales to see how much weight had been lost, she found the indicator up almost 2 pounds! That was just too much . . . dieting agreed with her . . . she thrived on it! Her letter implied that she felt like pitching the scales . . . and the dietician . . . right out the window.

You may suspect that she had been cheating on the side, but she assured me in no uncertain terms that she had stayed strictly with the diet. I believe her . . . she couldn't have been that positive had she cheated even once.

Now to explain this aggravating phenomenon. Again we have to go back to the old bugaboo, water retention. Here it is in scientific terms, as it was given in the American Medical Association Journal: "On a low calorie diet, tissue fat is oxidized, either as such or after reconversion to carbohydrate. The tissue spaces are then occupied by water or interstitial fluid, with greater specific gravity than fat."

In other words, the stored water which temporarily replaces the fat weighs heavier than the fat. Consequently dieters who tend to store water may actually gain several pounds while dieting to lose weight.

It gives a clearer picture to think of the fat as being stored in tiny cells, each one containing a droplet of fat. As fat is drawn on for energy, the droplets in the cells get smaller. But when there is a stubborn tendency to water retention in the cells, no weight loss is apparent, and there can be a temporary weight increase. But when the water balance adjusts, the stored water will be abruptly released through the kidneys, and will be followed by a seemingly sudden loss in weight—perhaps 5 to 6 pounds, or even more.

This persistent water storage can go along for 10 days, or even 16. One dieter wrote that with her it continued for 21 days, and just when she was about to abandon all hope, her weight suddenly dropped 11 pounds!

Regardless of which way the indicator on the scales points, keep right on the high-protein, low-calorie diet, and one fine morning you'll jump for joy.

Woodlawn Attracts Stream of Visitors During August

At historic Woodlawn Mansion visitors each Sunday during July and August have averaged high, with a steady line of interested tourists and others during the week. The shrine, former home of Nelly Custis of Mount Vernon, has recently acquired the loan of an exquisite rosewood piano, to add to the rare furnishings sent last spring from the Metropolitan Museum of Fine Arts, from Mount Vernon, and from private owners.

The volunteer hostess list for next week, announced by Miss Mayme Parker, chairman, will include members of the following DAR Chapters: Abigail Hartman Rice, Katherine Montgomery, Marcia Burns, Ruth Brewster, and Thomas Nelson.

Serving this week for several days are members of the Belle Haven Woman's Club, Garden Section and members of the Col. John Donelson, the Constitution, the Richard Arnold, and the Victory Chapters, Daughters of the American Revolution. Individuals assisting were Mrs. Nelson Bard, regent, Little John Boyden Chapter, DAR, with Mrs. Carlos Campbell, Mrs. Charles Wesley Metcalf, Mrs. William B. Tibbits, and Mrs. Clem C. Williams. From the Constitution Chapter were Mrs. George A. Cook, Mrs. Charles Vassar and Mrs. H. Lovina Opdycke. Edwin Heath, representing the Sons of the American Revolution, and Mrs. Heath were on duty, also.

Your Baby and Mine

Always a Reason for Night Crying

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

THERE is no one answer to why a sleeping baby should waken at night and cry. It might be hunger, as often the last meal of the day is less "hearty" than is necessary for sound slumber. It might be that the baby sleeps too much in daytime and has its wakeful hours at night. If ignored by the sleepy parents, it would cry. Here are two other reasons why children have been peevish at night.

Mrs. H. A. D. writes, "When my boy was about two years old he began to waken at naptime and scream and kick his legs. Later, he began doing this at night. We tried everything and finally took him to a doctor. She could find nothing wrong, until I mentioned that his toenail on one foot was very thick. The doctor attributed this to pressure on the wrong part of his foot.

"We had special insoles made for his shoes (though he had been wearing a corrective shoe) and this prevented him from toe-ing out as he had been doing. In three days he was a different child. He had been walking in a way which strained his muscles and at night the pain woke him up. There is no more crying and kicking, now, except when he goes bare-footed. I have received so many good ideas from your column so I am passing this one on."

"Our baby is almost nine months old," writes Mrs. M. A. P., "and recently he began waking up at night crying. I always found him dry but in a moment he would wet. So I feel that this was the reason he wakened.

"I try to get to him as quickly as possible and after I remove his diaper I cuddle him a little until he ceases crying. Then I put him on the potty and he voids. I have never found that he is subject to nightmares when he has been hurt or frightened in the daytime. My baby didn't have any teeth until a week ago and now he has two shiny ones."

Thank you both for writing and now you can see how different are these two cases yet both of them had to do with babies who cried at night.

It is just possible, Mrs. M. A. P., that the coming of those two teeth had something to do with the baby's fretfulness. Every mother knows that teething babies do act fussy.

Ask Anne

Readers Turn Tables, Offer Anne Suggestions And Homemaking Cues

READERS take over in toto today! Their answers to recent questions range all the way from how to make good garlicky dill pickles to where old blankets can be made into new ones.

DEAR ANNE:

Mrs. P. E. H. of Alexandria might try my uncle's (!) recipe for dill pickles:

Using a 2-gallon crock, he places therein:
6 quarts water
1 cup salt
3 or 4 cloves garlic
Handful of pickling spice
Handful of fresh dill
10 or 12 small cucumbers, scalded

After scalding the cucumbers with boiling water, he takes them out and puts them in crock with other ingredients listed above. In three or four days, they are "half-dill," and it takes about a week for them to be fully ripe.

E. B. E., Washington.

DEAR ANNE:

In answer to the question about what firm converts old woolen blankets into new ones, the Cambridgs Woolen Mills, Cambridge, Minn., does this. You send old woolen articles —blankets, clothing, preferably wool knit goods —to the company and they give you so much credit per pound on a new blanket. They have a price list they send on request.

B. T., Washington.

DEAR ANNE:

Someone asked what will cut the gloss on painted walls and other surfaces before repainting. There is a solution, also used as a paint cleaner, that will serve for this purpose. One place you can get it is in the paint department of a local store. (Telephone, National 5100.) Some detergents will also do it. Heavy duty cleaner is still the more economical, but the surface should have 24 hours of drying before painting.

J. N., Washington.

DEAR ANNE:

Regarding the recent query from M.N.M., about an amateur singing group that sings madrigals and church music, there is a group called the Newcomb Club Singers directed by a Bethesda musician. They sing mostly for their own enjoyment, but will do so for organizations at times. The group is made up principally of women. Always room for more singers.

Mrs. J. P. S., Washington.

WEEKDAY DINNER

Grilled Frankfurters — Whipped Potatoes
Hot Cabbage Slaw — Bread and Butter
Peach Crumble — Beverage

PEACH CRUMBLE

Ingredients: ½ cup all-purpose flour, ½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar, dash of salt, 5 tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 pounds freestone peaches (5 medium-sized).

Method: Mix flour, sugar and salt together in mixing bowl; work in butter or margarine with pastry blender or finger tips until well blended. Peel, pit and halve peaches; fit in heat-resistant glass pie dish (8 inches across by about 2 inches deep) so that cavities are up. Crumble flour mixture over top of peaches carefully. Bake in a slow (325F.) oven about 1 hour. Some of flour mixture may trickle down and mix with peach juice that seeps out to form a small amount of delicious sauce. Serve warm with thin cream. Makes 5 servings.

Jet Pilots Learn Weather's Whims From Pretty Schoolmarm

WILLIAMS AIR FORCE BASE, ARIZ.—Men who will pilot speedy jet fighter planes for the United States Air Force take lessons here from a schoolmarm.

Officers believe Miss Jeanette Thede is the Nation's only woman civilian instructor for the United States Air Force Pilot Training command.

She finds no disciplinary problems among students in her classes in weather.

"The 130 student officers and aviation cadets are here to learn and they mean business," explains the 30-year-old native of Davenport, Iowa.

The tall, willowy teacher has been putting Williams Base students through their climatological paces for the past 15 months. Her attendance last summer at Special Staff School at Craig Air Force Base, Ala., makes her the only civilian girl ever to take the instructor's course.

Her all-male classes learn how to use constant pressure charts in high altitude jet flying and are briefed on weather conditions as they relate to flight planning.

Night school in Davenport provided Miss Thede with fundamentals in weather and navigation. Her first introduction to cadet-pupils was at Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., where she went as a student and stayed to instruct in weather and Link training.

For two and one-half years she taught weather and navigation to aviation cadets at Sao Paulo, Brazil. Before being sent to South America, Miss Thede, who has a good command of the Portuguese language, was given a four-month language course in Florida.

For a Strong Skeleton

Device Checks Minerals in Bones

By Adelaide Kerr
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Aug. 27.—Now science can read your skeleton. Keeping up your skeleton is as important to your health as keeping up your weight or your teeth.

Strong bones promote normal growth in childhood and help old people ward off the bugaboo of getting shorter with old age.

Keeping a healthy skeleton was once largely guesswork, Now science has taken the matter in hand. And because she made a vital contribution to that science, Dr. Pauline Berry Mack received the 1950 Francis Garvan gold medal—America's highest award to women chemists.

Dr. Mack is professor of household chemistry at Pennsylvania State College where she directs the Ellen H. Richards Institute.

Dr. Mack won the Garvan medal for developing an electronic method for finding the exact amount of mineral in bones. The present machine used for this purpose is a room-sized assembly of devices which scan x-rays of bones by means of a beam of light. It takes the guesswork out of estimating bone density.

Pool of Calcium

"Most persons think that their skeletons are fixed entities like a concrete structure, and that once they reach maturity, they do not change," said Dr. Mack, "But this is not so. The skeleton not only is a supporting agent for the body; it also is a reservoir of calcium. The nerves and muscles need calcium. The body needs calcium also for many other purposes. If our daily food fails to supply adequate calcium for all needs, nature will drag what is required out of the skeleton. So the skeleton is gaining and losing mineral at all times; and it can maintain its equilibrium only when it is gaining the same amount from the diet that it loses on other ways.

"If this equilibrium is not maintained the skeleton gradually becomes demineralized. We sometimes see marked evidence of demineralization in older persons who gradually become shortened in stature.

"A new-born infant's skeleton must grow, it must take on about 400 new bony centers at certain stages along the way, and it must lay down sufficient mineral to resist rickets and lesser degrees of poor mineralization.

If a diet is inadequate, a child may grow at the expense of bone density. On the other hand, nature sometimes will slow up growth so as to conserve what mineral is available, thus making a smaller but denser skeleton."

Progress Charted

The electronic bone density evaluation method makes it possible to follow the skeletal mineralization progress of a child, of a woman in pregnancy, and of other adults from maturity through old age. If the diet is not keeping pace with the skeletal needs of the body, an improvement can be made.

Dr. Mack and staff have taken more than 100,000 skeletal x-rays of almost 13,000 subjects representing every age group from birth to 92 years in both sexes, and are building a catalogue showing the range of mineral density values found, as well as norms for different sex-age groups.

"Today we are able to detect approaching demineralization before it becomes acute, and to get busy with dietary or other types of therapy in time," said Dr. Mack.

"There still is much experimentation to be done in the field of feeding and therapy in relation to bone density. Many data on this subject, however, already have been collected in the Ellen H. Richards Institute. Research work to date verifies the fact that milk is our chief source of calcium; but it shows also that liver is an especially important food in building and maintaining well mineralized bones. In fact, an all-around good diet is needed for proper skeletal well being."

Dr. Mack, a Missourian is the wife of Dr. Warren Bryan Mack, head of the Department of Horticulture at Penn State.

Parents Add Responsibilities As Children Begin Schooling

Parents whose children are starting to school this fall have a job cut out for them, according to James L. Hymes, jr., former president of the National Association for Nursery Education.

"Starting a youngster to school does not mean that you do nothing from now on and the teacher does all," declares Dr. Hymes in "Three to Six: Your Child Starts to School," published today by the Public Affairs Committee.

"Now you work with the teacher and other parents, cooperatively, to get the children what they need."

Meet Teacher Early

Dr. Hymes gives a series of hints on how parents can best meet their new responsibility:

Meet your child's teacher before the school year starts. The more she knows about your child the more she can help him feel at home.

Don't worry if your child is upset when you take him to school on opening day, but don't leave him before he is ready.

Give your support to the sound things that your child's school does. You can help it improve.

Remember that play is the nursery school's business, and that it is the center of a good kindergarten and first grade too.

Don't Hurry Child

Don't hurry your child into learning to read. When your child is ready, you will know it and the teacher will know it.

Be sure to join your Parents Association—the P.-T.A, or whatever its name is in your community—and help make it into an active organization, promoting the good of the school.

Find out if there are not ways in which you can help the teacher in her classwork.

"Working right in the classroom with children may sound like a big order," Dr. Hymes admits.

"But managing a group of children is more than a 9-to-3 job. There are details of organization that you could put your shoulder to."

Help With Equipment

"There are pictures to be mounted, paints to be mixed . . . equipment to be repaired, lunch-money to be collected. . . . Some groups hear more stories because parents volunteer to bring books from the town library and because another parent mends torn books and keeps them in circulation."

"Some children in first grade have blocks simply because their fathers came in after hours and made them. Some classes have rich out-of-door space because parents have gone on salvage hunts: a piece of rope and a tire that make an extra swing, a big log that the children can balance on an old strip of garden hose that becomes part of the fire station and the filling station in turn."

"Of course," Dr. Hymes points out "one person—the teacher —could try to do it all, but the children get far less that way . . . These are your children. The more you can free the teacher for teaching, the more your youngsters will learn."

Club Federation Leaders Off Today

Indian dolls, bright warm sweaters, cowboy kerchiefs, wallets, candy and dolls dressed for a party—these and many more gifts will find their way to 120 displaced children in Switzerland.

These gifts will cross the Atlantic in the luggage of the 30 women club leaders who will leave today for a visit of the leading women's clubs in Europe. Members of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the women will visit England, Denmark, Belgium, Netherlands, France, Switzerland, Germany and Italy.

Headed by Mrs. Hiram Cole Houghton, national president, the group will leave from New York by "Stratocruiser" on the first part of a 37-day "world cooperation" trip to Europe.

Teach Children Which Flowers to Pick

FLOWERS have a fascination for children, but every child should be taught just which wild flowers to pick and which NOT to pick or uproot, states American Home in an August feature.

Pussy willows, for instance, are plentiful and it does no harm to cut branches of it. A sharp knife or keen pruning shears should be used, however. All the flower-like weeds make good pickings—daisies, clover, goldenrod, black-eyed Susan, butter-and-eggs, Queen Anne's Lace. They can be picked and enjoyed in bouquets and arrangements.

So can the field and meadow grasses, which should be cut carefully, of course, and placed in water without delay. Wild violets may be picked and, if entirely immersed in water for a few hours, they will become fresh and perky.

On the other side of the picture, however, there are many wild flowers that are disappearing and will completely vanish unless protected by all of us. These, in general, are plants of the woods and swamps—trailing arbutus, princess-pine, bloodroot, lady-slipper, trillum, gentian. Children should be warned against picking these wild beauties before they are entirely gone.

has the authority now to authorize agencies to make temporary appointments, but it has not exercised that authority to the extent that it should. For instance, in some of the departments today, if folks in the active Reserve are called into military service, the Department is directed to put in department is directed to put in a permanent employe in that position.

"When the man comes back from the service he is entitled to the return of his job, and then the department has two full-time employes on its hands.

"The amendment I offer directs the Civil Service Commission to exercise its full authority to place such employes on a temporary basis so as not to increase the total number of permanent positions."

In addition to that, during the last war and since then, many persons transferred to other agencies, mostly wartime, where they were upgraded, and then when they went back to the old agencies they went back at several grades higher and competed with all of those in the Federal service at the increased grades.

"Here we set out that they shall be transferred at the same grade, and if they go back to the other agency they go back at the grade which they left."

Teamwork At Hospital Saves Baby

Medical teamwork—in and out of the operating room— saved the life of a premature baby girl born with a rare and major defect in her food pipe and windpipe, doctors reported yesterday.

During an operation performed on the infant at Children's Hospital Saturday, the baby's breathing stopped "for a few seconds that seemed like an eternity," a surgeon said. The heart continued beating, but "feebly."

The first child of a young couple, the infant was born Tuesday at Doctors' Hospital, three or four weeks prematurely. A nurse and the infant's pediatrician, Dr. George A. Cardany, noted that the infant's respiratory tract produced an unusual amount of mucous.

X-ray diagnosis disclosed two rare conditions: (1) The lower segment of the foodpipe was attached to the windpipe instead of to the upper segment of the foodpipe; (2) the upper end of the foodpipe ended in a "blind pouch."

Consultant Called

Dr. Edgar Davis, professor of lung surgery at Georgetown University Medical School, was called in as consultant.

Meantime, because of mucous, one lung had already collapsed partially. Added to this was the danger from pneumonia.

The teamwork that began with the spotting of the condition took over in earnest now.

Every five minutes or less the child's respiratory tract was cleared (aspirated).

An ambulance, especially equipped with oxygen and an incubator, transported the child to Children's Hospital from Doctors'.

Dr. Davis began the operation. His technique was first to disconnect the lower portion of the foodpipe from the windpipe. He then closed off the windpipe to prevent the lungs from being flooded with the contents of the stomach.

Sewing Required

Next the pouch of the upper end of the foodpipe was opened, and sewed to the lower end.

The task of Dr. Joel B. Hoberman, an anaesthetist, was to force a mixture of oxygen and ether into the child's lungs by way of a tube connected to the windpipe.

But before the tube was to have been connected, the child stopped breathing. Dr. Hoberman immediately inserted the tube this forcing the infant to resume respiration.

The last aspect of teamwork in the operating room was a constant infusion of blood—a drop at a time—to make up for whatever blood was lost in the operation.

Dr. Cardany said last night that the child's condition could be called quite good—if you consider what has been done.

"We're still not out of the woods yet," he added.

Cunningham Dies; Was Navy Lithographer

Wilton L. Cunningham, 75, lithographer with the Navy Department Hydrographic Office for 40 years, died of a heart attack Saturday at Manresa-On-the-Severn near Annapolis, Md.

Hamster Aids Research on Toothpowder

A fast-multiplying animal, the hamster, is credited with speeding up development of a penicillin tooth powder.

It wasn't the animal's reproduction rate, however, but the speed in which it can develop tooth decay that counted, said dental researchers.

Dr. Helmut A. Zander, professor of dentistry at Tufts College Dental School, Boston, revealed the key role of Golden Syrian hamsters in proving the worth of a penicillin dentifrice. Last Tuesday the Food and Drug Administration authorized the prescription sale of the product, Dentocillin.

The hamster, Dr. Zander reported, proved the laboratory animal of choice because it can be fed to develop dental cavities at the rate of nearly one cavity a day. Brushing their teeth, however, wasn't quite as easy as working with school children.

But the hamsters whose teeth were brushed with the penicillin product developed a low of 18 cavities. And the holes were smaller, Dr. Zander reported. The 18 cavities, he reported, covered an area of 469 millimeters per animal as compared to a cavity area of 2506 millimeters per animal in the water-brushed group.

In other phases of the research program, school children in two elementary schools at Walpole, Mass., were recruited. Dental examinations after a year of daily brushings, Dr. Zander reported, showed the children getting the penicillin product had developed 55.3 percent fewer cavities than their classmates.

In his latest report of the school program to the Journal of the American Dental Society, Dr. Zander showed the children using penicillin powder developed 53.8 percent fewer cavities during their second year of daily brushing.

Other testings of the product were made with 3416 penitentiary inmates, and 1064 private dental patients.

The dentifrice will be available, when prescribed by a dentist, sometime in mid-September, its makers announced.

I am telling you about the most beautiful setting for a home in this part of the United States. This setting for this home is located on River rd., right across from the entrance to the Congressional Club. I advertised this beautiful setting for a home but nobody bought it so I decided to build my own home on it and it is [illegible] about completed. Ride out on River rd. and just view this house as you go every day and you will get a thrill out of it like I do. It is the next ride I am going to take when I am through writing this ad in over the telephone in The Post. You know why this setting for this home is so beautiful? It is very easy to understand. God Almighty made this beautiful setting for a home. As soon as the home is completed I will develop a beautiful lawn. There are people riding by on this hill every day to talk to my builder, Mr. Ed Elgin, who want to buy this home but they can't have it, but you can build yourself a home on the adjoining hills that I have. I will sell you this other ground in large quantities at that it cost me 22 years ago, plus interest and taxes to an acre, which is approximately $6500. I want to sell small parcels. It is clear of debt and I can give you generous terms. If you want to discuss this matter further with me you can reach me at my home, WO. 0933. Fulton E. Gordon, owner. Brokers attention.

Are We Alert for A-Bombing?

Volunteer Air Raid Posts Will Gird Nation

(This is the first of a series of five articles on the story of America's preparations for a possible atomic attack. George W. Herald was a press-association bureau chief in Berlin and Vienna from 1945 to 1949. During World War II he served in a U. S. Army airborne supply unit and as deputy chief of the German section of the American Broadcasting Station in Europe.)

By George W. Herald

The telephone rang the other day at a restaurant in White Plains, N. Y. A girl cashier picked up the receiver and here is what she heard:

"This is the Peekskill observation post. We want to report a group of three unidentified aircraft overhead."

In the next ten minutes, similar calls came from Mount Vernon, Tarrington, Tuckahoo and Ossining. The restaurant people promptly transmitted the information to Stewart Air Base, near West Point.

It quickly turned out that this was just a "trial alert" to test the new air raid warning set-up in New York State.

In fact, all over the Nation, the United States Air Force is perfecting its alarm system against atomic surprise attack. The White Plains inn is but a small unit in that test system.

It is one of four "filter centers" which, in case of emergency, will gather reports from 618 spotter posts scattered throughout New York State. Each of these posts is manned by 20 volunteer citizens taking turns day and night.

Most other States are now following this example. If you want to take part in "Operation Lookout," you simply apply to your local civil defense director.

All reports on suspicious planes will be relayed to two newly created headquarters: the Western Air Defense Command, covering the territory west of the Rocky Mountains, and the Eastern Air Defense Command, protecting the rest of the country from Maine to Florida.

The two commands don't rely on human spotters alone, of course. They are rapidly building a 161-million-dollar network of radar stations aimed to cover the approaches to the United States and Canada. Some of these stations are on ships for off-shore warning service. Others are equipped to keep in constant touch with jet-fighters patrolling the air at high altitudes.

According to Canada's Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, the aim of the Joint Chiefs of Staff is to throw a radar "picket fence" around the entire North American continent.

But is such a fence going to deter the Russians?

"They have their problems too," says Comdr. William T. Greenhalgh of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces. "It would be much more difficult for them to penetrate our defense zones than is generally assumed. They possess neither aircraft carriers nor round-trip bombers and, above all, they are short of suitable gas. Their best aviation gas is only 91 octane."

Still, Commander Greenhalgh, one of our top experts on Soviet resources, doesn't underrate the opponent. He holds it possible that Stalin, in a supreme bid to destroy our industrial power, could manage to send a group of aircraft on an atomic bombing mission to the United States.

Although such planes wouldn't have enough fuel to return to their bases, it wouldn't be exactly a suicide raid. The crews could always try to bail out at a prearranged site on the coast and be picked up by Russian submarines. But the minute their craft were detected, our Air Defense Command would swing into action.

The command has devised four kinds of alerts:

(1) A confidential yellow alarm indicating a raid is possible.

(2) A public blue signal announcing a raid within 15 minutes.

(3) A public red alert indicating an attack in eight minutes.

(4) A white "all clear" signal.

Despite objections, sirens are still considered the best instruments to warn the public, and all communities have been told to put their old squeakers in order.

Air Defense would immediately send up jet fighter squadrons from the nearest bases such as Mitchell Field, Long Island; Otis Base at Falmouth, Mass., Langley Field in Virginia or Selfridge Field in Michigan.

According to Air Force spokesmen, interceptors such as our highly maneuverable FX 70-1 can fly circles around any Russian bomber. Moveover, they are built to carry guided missiles under their wings and direct them at enemy aircraft with sure-fire "homing" devices.

Therefore, our defense chiefs are confident that the "eyes and ears of USA; will be able to thwart all blitz attacks coming over the Arctic route. On the other hand, they realize that the areas to be defended are immense. Some bombers, they are afraid, will always come through, and the best way to get them is to hit them at their bases.

"No air-tight radar fence exists here or anywhere else," General George C. Kennedy declared, summing up the situation. "A radar net is like a dike: one hole can spell disaster. But we can limit the damage considerably if all of us, military and civilians, see to it that they don't catch us napping."

There's Moral Here, But Just What Is It?

—By John Crosby—

FOR THE BENEFIT of the vast numbers of incomprehensibles who aspire to be radio writers, I'd like to tell the story today of Jean Holloway. There's a moral in Miss Holloway's story, but I'm darned if I know what it is. She violates all the traditions.

In the first place, she didn't want to be a radio writer or any other kind of a writer. She wanted to be an actress. She entered a radio acting school at San Jose State College and discovered to her horror that one of the requirements was the writing of a radio script. This so incensed her that she protested to the dean of the college that this was no way to teach acting. She had to write the script anyway and she did it as badly as possible to prove she couldn't write.

Much to her alarm, it was the best one turned in, was put on the college radio station, became a regular radio series on that station, won the Harper Award and much, much later was re-sold—every last script—to sordid commercial interests for much pelf.

But that's getting ahead of the story. Still hankering to be an actress, she wrote a script with a fat part in it for herself. But another girl got the part.

STILL TRYING to flee from the crass profession of writing, Miss Holloway, then aged 17, took off for New York and tried to break into radio as an actress. But her fun-loving college friends crossed her up. They sent her Kathryn Howard script to the Ted Collins office, then producing the Kate Smith Hour, which was looking for a dramatic sketch for Helen Menken.

Sam Schiff, of that office, bought the script, and later bought another one. A short time after that, Miss Holloway resigned herself to her fate and signed a five-year contract to write all the Kate Smith shows. For all I know, she was the youngest person ever to break into radio writing. She was certainly the most unwilling.

ALL THIS was nine years ago. In the interval, she has turned out thousands of radio scripts. Last year she was writing five shows—Hallmark Playhouse, Prudential Family Hour of Stars, The Railroad Hour, Mr. President and Dr. Kildare. Also for 11 weeks she did "The First Hundred Years." She has become so deeply enamored of radio that during a two-year stint writing movies for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, she used to sneak around the radio shows out of sheer homesickness. She has long since returned to her first love and swears she'll never write for movies again.

Her research for Mr. President and for historical novels has made her a great authority on a lot of subjects she has no interest in.

She's also become a great authority on radio's taboos. Sponsors, she says, don't want anything harking of controversy, the remotest mention of a competitive product, or any drinking. She had to cut the drinking scene, an important one, out of "Magnificent Obsession," even though it was sponsored by a liquor company. She'll tell you there's no way to write about the Civil War without bringing complaints from somebody.

She knocks off a script in five or six hours (actual writing time after the research is done), works at night, takes one day off a week and has never had a vacation since radio first tapped her nine years ago. No, she's never had ulcers either.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bill Gold is on vacation. His column today takes the form of a letter to his managing editor.

Dear Boss:

In 1930 I covered police and courts for the Kentucky World (may it rest in peace).

Owner, editor and publisher of the World was the late Bruce Susong, who had previously been editor of the Northern Kentucky edition of the Cincinnati Post.

The communities across the Ohio from Cincinnati were overrun with vice of every description, and Bruce thought there was a need for a home-owned paper that would spearhead a fight to run the underworld out of Northern Kentucky.

So he scraped up all the money he could, begged and borrowed some more, and started the World. Its brief existence was marked by political upheavals, raids, arrests, court battles—and deficits that made an old man of Bruce Susong before his time.

One summer Saturday when most of the city officials of Newport, Ky., were in Cleveland for a big heavyweight fight, Bruce engineered his biggest coup.

The night before, the Attorney General came up from the State capital, and at a secret conference laid plans for the next day's fireworks.

About 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, he strode into police headquarters, identified himself, deputized everybody in sight, and ordered a series of raids on the town's wide-open gambling dens.

In one place alone, some 200 customers were taken into custody. Bob Cottingham and several of his top henchmen were arrested, and the joint above Rosen's auto accessory store was systematically wrecked.

A few days later, there was a public burning of gambling paraphernalia on the river bank. Indictments, trials and political repercussions made headlines for months. The gamblers, we told ourselves, were licked.

o+o

Two years later, Newport was as wide open as ever. The building which had housed the Kentucky World became a huge gambling joint, and the spot where my desk had stood was occupied by a well attended crap table.

Newport and its sister city, Covington, attracted high rollers from all parts of the country. Anybody (except a policeman in uniform) was free to walk in and bet his money, with no peep holes, no "guest cards," and no questions asked.

A dozen places in Kenton and Campbell counties would take a $1000 bet on a horse right up to post time. The crap games made Washington's Jimmy LaFontaine look like a piker. Their limit was $200 on line or come bets, with double odds (up to $200) on all bets. They'd book $50 on "eleven," "aces" or "sixes."

In other words, a player could pick up $1000 on a four or ten, or $1600 on aces or sixes. With that much riding on every roll of the dice, it was not infrequent to see winnings (and losings) far in excess of $10,000 in a few minutes of play.

Occasionaly, there would be a slight case of murder at one of the places, and then everybody would have to shut down for several days. And of course when the grand jury was in session twice a year, all hands would get a week's vacation — except employes of the horse books.

For some reason horse betting seemed immune from the political pressures that beset the craps, blackjack, roulette and faro.

Gambling, as you can see, was big business. The operator of one place in town once confided that it cost him $800 a day to open his doors.

Out in the county, beyond the city limits, two plush nightclubs did things on a far grander scale. They brought in floorshows featuring the likes of George Jessel, Cross and Dunn and Sophie Tucker, plus the biggest name dancebands in the country. The shows alone often topped $5000 per week in salaries.

Occasionally, some hoodlums would hijack the bankroll, and there were times, too, when an imported gunman would walk up to some wayward member of the fraternity on a downtown street, and calmly pump him full of lead. Lawyer Danny Davies always managed to present a scholarly defense, and Northern Kentucky went placidly about its business.

o+o

All this, I'm told, remained unchanged until just a few weeks ago. Then Robert Montgomery went on the air with a series of weekly programs that named names, and challenged public officials to say it wasn't so.

The sheriff of one of the counties mumbled "Gambling? There ain't no gambling here" —but he wasn't fooling anybody.

The heat was on, and everybody closed up.

In two weeks, there were a few cautious openings, but the word immediately went out to shut down again. The gambling investigation in Washington, coupled with the radio attacks, was finally doing the job Bruce Susong thought he'd accomplished 20 years before.

When we went nightclubbing last night, we found one big club in Covington running as usual, except that it now observes a 1 a. m. closing rule.

But in Newport, employes and operators stand around on the street and grumble, as they pick their teeth, that "it looks like they're going to drive everything out of town, into the country." Even Sleepout Louie (the name is famous enough to have crept into the Damon Runyon stories) has folded up everything but his horse book.

But the Lookout House is still going full tilt in one county and Beverly Hills ("Showplace of the Midwest") and the Latin Quarter in the other.

And someplace up in heaven, Bruce Susong is probably just as unhappy as he was in his last days on earth.

Bill.

P. S. Here's a strange wrinkle: You'd think Robert Montgomery would be afraid of retaliation for those troublesome radio broadcasts. But the word here is that, unbeknownst to Montgomery, the gamblers hired a bodyguard for him, to make sure that nobody harms him. The story is that they feel they've got enough headaches without being blamed for trying to "get even."

Bovine 'Source' Is Most Reliable

By Drew Pearson

Every year about vacation time there is a big argument in the Pearson family—not about Senator Taft—but about what to do during our vacation.

Pearson

The Little Woman naturally wants to get away from home. For some strange reason she seems to feel she should get away from three meals a day, moths in piano and musical crickets under the radiator. And with her boy just coming of draft age, she wanted to get off to the Maine woods or the mountains where we could forget about Korea, and the woes of the world.

On the whole I didn't blame her. But being almost as disagreeable in my home as I am to Congressmen, I confess that I put up an argument.

"If we go to some beach resort," said I, "the folks in the hotel lobby will be whispering 'there's that fellow that President Truman called a so-and-so.' Or nice old ladies will be wanting autographs, and every amateur politician in the place will be claiming he can make predictions better than I can, and will want to stay up all night to prove it.

"In brief," I concluded, "it will be just like Washington."

"But that's your public," replied Mrs. P., "and you know perfectly well down deep in your heart that you wouldn't be happy without your public. If the little girls and the old ladies in hotel lobbies didn't come up and ask for your autograph you'd think you were slipping."

"Now look," I protested, "we have a nice farm in Maryland with the Potomac River flowing right past our front door. Why should we leave it? Let's forget about gallivanting about the country and take life easy at home."

Mrs. P. let out something akin to a snort at this.

"You have a deadline every day with a column seven days a week," she said. "Yet now on your vacation you want to take on two deadlines a day—cows!"

"I realize they have to be milked twice a day," I admitted, "but at least they don't ask for your autograph.

"Besides cows don't talk politics," I continued. "And they don't complain—except when you take their calf away. They don't even worry over what you say about them, the way Senator Byrd of Virginia does. And they don't make long-winded speeches like Congressman Jacobs of Indiana."

Maybe I shouldn't have argued so much. I felt guilty about it afterward. Because in the end we settled for—two deadlines a day.

"It's your vacation," she said, "and I guess you're entitled to do what you want. So if you want cows, we'll vacation with the cows."

So we did, and on the whole I think Mrs. P. enjoyed it.

A Bellicose Bull

Of course, she didn't enjoy it when the bull got loose and acted just as bellicose as Senator McCarthy, though his name happens to be Harry Truman. You see, I name the bulls for my various "admirers," one of whom is Senator McKellar. It was with considerable regret this summer that we finally sent Senator McKellar to Baltimore and the sausage factory. I had come to be quite fond of the old senator; but like his namesake from Tennessee, he had become quite ornery, and we had to ship him off.

I admit also that Mrs. P. probably didn't get any vacation thrill over my filling the silo. In the old days when labor was so scarce we had to use German prisoners, she used to help out by driving a truck. But this summer, thanks to a new Holland forage crop harvester, we got the silo filled in no time, and she didn't have to help.

A few years ago, we used to spend a week of backbreaking toil, cutting down corn, stooping over to pick up the bundles, loading it on trucks and feeding it into an ensilage cutter. But this year, thanks to the forage crop harvester, the crop was automatically picked up in the field, chewed into fine bits, spewed into trucks and then blown up into the silo. Instead of twenty men for a week, we used six men for four days. That's what labor-saving machinery has done to the farm.

However, Mrs. P. did have quite a time with her dog, which finally brought forth two pups, compared with my cat which had three kittens. And farm life was not entirely dull. We took in a swell movie, "The Lawless"; sued Fred Howser, the attorney general of California for $500,000 (he having sued me for $300,000); and entertained King Peter of Yugoslavia, a very democratic little guy who was just as courteous in meeting our cook as in meeting a Senator.

Oh, yes, I forgot to say that in order not to be too hardhearted, I took Mrs. P. up to Long Island where we took in the trotting races at George Morton Levy's beautiful Roosevelt Raceway, visited my old boss, Herbert Bayard Swope, and my old student, Ernest Cuneo, went sailing on the sound, and relaxed generally.

On the C. & O. Canal

But I think the best part of the vacation was the Sunday when I took Mrs. P. on a canoe trip up the old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

Well, that was our vaaction, which I think Mrs. P. enjoyed reasonably well—especialy the canoe trip that cost only 50 cents. And I came back, still the incurable optimist, hoping that some day wars can be stopped and that the debacle in Korea may be one faltering step toward stopping them.
